MILWAUKEE COUNTY GENEALOGICAL SOCIETY Rev. 1985

Am not sure they were sons, but children of Edward + Agness (? Mosby?) Davison (per will filed 4 Apr 1773)* were given as: 11 children total
4 boys 7 girls

*Mosby Davison
Edward Davison
Charles Davison
Sarah Davison - (m. John LeMaster) (aka LeaMastre - probable Huguenot descent)
John B Davison
— (Davison) Vest wife of James Vest
5 other daughters

*Will of David Mosby Davison filed 3 June 1794 (compiled 20 Sep 1780) (died in Campbell Co.)
mentions father Edward Davison.

Buckingham Co VA list of tithes (1764) lists "Edward Davidson (constable) and Charles Davidson; 1:400:0" (1 tithe (acres?) no slaves?) (+ other Davidsons, q.s.) (+Chastaines, Baleys etc)
" lists of tythes (1773 + 1774) show both Edward Davidson, Jr + Stephen Davidson (1773) and Charles Davison (1773) plus Edward Davison, constable (both 1773+1774) also (no tythe) Edward Davison (nephew?) son of David bro?

It appears that this (constable) Edward Davison moved to Prince Edward Co (or else boundaries changed + so he was there already) and then went to Campbell Co, as did some Vests note: Buckingham Co "tythes" show these Vests:

George Vest among the tithables of Thomas Stephens in 1774 (an apprentice?) or stepson
John Vest in 1773 + 1774
Richard Vest in 1774
Vests + Davisons or Davidsons not on the 1800 Buckingham Co tax list.

 "Kegley's Virginia Frontier" (page 466) shows Richard Vest in Captain Looney's Co, Botetourt Co Militia - "1 horse + 5 cattle" during Dunmore's war - Vests not mentioned elsewhere in 2 vol book.

Early Buckingham Co records show John Vest (1763 + 1796) on Willis Creek, a neighbor of Patrick Henry! This is north of Appomattox River, on southern Cumberland Co. border.

* His will ment Prince Edward Co. (Another Torrence ment. Pr Edw. Co wills - John 1754w, Joshua 1771i, Richd 1775i)

This map was taken from a Henrico County History. It uses the names and boundaries of present counties of Virginia, as well as present cities. The area within the dark lines was the original Henrico county when it was first formed. As data later in this book will show, John of Chesterfield lived in what is now the eastern suburban part of the city of Colonial Heights, but was then open farmland. If the soil was fertile it must be because it included floodplains, for Englishmen had been ekeing out a living in that vicinity since the reign of Indian Chief Powhattan. The map does not show it clearly, but he was definitely close to the James River, and far below the fall line. His supposed Uncle Valentine Vest was slightly to the west, on the drains of the Appomattox, in Amelia County.

Alfords were on Seneca Creek in 1767, having come there from Buckingham, two years after that John Vest's will. And our James Vest Sr. and the Childresses were there around 1770. Later Chesterfield records show that John's son James remained in Chesterfield, so he cannot be ours. My own search has identified three different Phillips, countless Johns, many James & Valentines, Williams, George. It is obvious that our branch and the Chesterfield branch have coomon ancestry, but he could not have fathered our James Vest Senior!

The Virginia family descend from the Skipwiths of Prestwould in Leicestershire. Sir Henry Skipwith, Knight of Prestwould, was created a Baronet 20 Dec., 1622. His eldest son, Sir Henry, died single, and was succeeded by his brother, Sir Grey, who settled in Virginia. His son, Sir William, married Sarah, daughter of John Peyton. His eldest son, Sir Grey, born 1705, died without issue and the title devolved upon his brother Sir William, born 1707, died 1764, who married Elizabeth, only daughter of John Smith, High Sheriff of Middlesex. Their eldest son, Sir Peyton, 7th Baronet, married Ann, daughter of Hugh Miller. The descendants of the Skipwith family are still numerous in the South.

The Virginia immigrant, Peter, was a son of Peter and Eleanor Montague of Boveney, Parish of Burnham, Bucks, and was born in 1603. His mother was a daughter of William Allen of Burnham. His uncle, William Montague was a Fellow of Kings College, Cambridge, and Richard Montague, Bishop of Norwich, was his father's cousin. Peter Montague came to Virginia at the age of eighteen years. In 1627 he patented 150 acres in Upper Norfolk county, what is now Nansemond, and of which he was a Burgess in 1652 and 1653. He also owned considerable land in Lancaster and represented that county in the House of Burgesses from 1651 to 1658. His will, dated 27 March, 1659, was probated 25 May of that year. He mentions his wife Cicely, and sons, Peter and William, his three daughters, Ellen, Margaret and Elizabeth, and the child of Ann, late wife of John Jadwin.

ABRAHAM CHILDERS, JR.

Abraham Childers, Jr., was born in 1655, a year before his father's 1656 purchase, in the colony of Virginia. He received some education since he always signed his name. Several depositions confirm the year of his birth. The first, made 2 Dec. 1678 at the age of 23, stated he had been appointed by both parties to start horses for a race and they were fairly started. He signed as Abram Childres.[8] On 10 Feb 1680/1 at the age of 25 he deposed that about three weeks before Christmas Edward Mathews had of him 100 pounds of tobacco or thereabout and it was to fill a hogshead. He signed as Childers.[9] On 23 March 1685/6 Abraham Childers, aged 30, stated that last night at John Pledge's home he saw "hung up in the said John Pledge's chimney" '8 or 9 Pieces of Pork" and they were not there a day or two before, that they were barrow pork, and that last August he saw in Derby's corn field 8 or 9 barrow and sows when Henry Pew said they were John Pledge's and John Cannon's This deposition was signed Abraham Cildrs.[10]

On 2 June 1679 depositions were taken from several persons concerning the burned buildings on Capt. Byrd's plantation. The Saturday before Easter several persons were picking up nails, of whom Abram Childres alone was named. The question was did they belong to Captain Byrd or were they free?[11]

Also in 1679 forty tithables were ordered by the court to "fit out men, horses and armor." Abraham Childres appears on the Curles list with two tithables.[12] At the April 1683 Court Abraham Childers was impaneled for the first time on the Grand Jury.[13] After that he served many times until his death.

On 13 Nov. 1687 Abraham Childers purchased from Edward and Samuel Mathews 135 acres on the north side of Four Mile Creek below Polley's Spring which was part of a patent for 1536 acres granted to Capt. Edward Mathews, deceased. No price for the land was stated. Witnesses were John Cannon and Thomas Charles and the deed was recorded 1 Dec 1687.[14]

In 1691 Abraham Childers sold to John Pleasants 12 acres on Four Mile Creek between the land Pleasants has formerly purchased of Abraham and the land Pleasants had bought of Edward Mathews, next to Pleasants' Mill and near the spring, for which he received 750 pounds of tobacco. Witnesses were James Morris and Philemon Childers Jr. The deed was recorded 1 Oct 1691 and in a memorandum both parties agreed that Abraham and his heirs should have the privilege of the landing on the 12 acres for free egress and regress and Abraham was not to put up "shutters, gates or barrs" between the landing and Abraham's home.[15] No wife released dower.

✓ Proof that Abraham had a brother named Philemon is provided by a deed of gift of 20 Aug 1686 whereby Philemon Childers gave for "good love and affeccon wch I bear unto my cosens, Abraham, Henry and Robert sons of Abraham Childers" a young sorrel mare about three years of age. The children were underage. Philemon made his mark as a circle with a horizontal line through the middle. This deed was recorded the same day.[16]

At about age 38 Abraham Childers made his will on 6 Dec 1693. It was not recorded until four and one-half years later on 1 June 1698. His daughter Jane was not born when he wrote his will but was named in her grandfather Henry Pew's will. Abraham styled himself as a "James River planter." He gave to son Abraham (III) one shilling. Son Henry was to receive personalty and one half of the land lying on the west side of the first branch between One and Four Mile Creek when he became 21 and if he died without issue then to son Robert. To his wife Ann he gave personalty, the animals and one half of the land where he lived with all buildings and orchard, lying on the east side of the first branch between One and Four Mile Creek and at her decease to son Philimon. If Philimon should die without issue, then to son John. His wife Ann was to be his executrix. The witnesses were Richard Franklin, Abigail Wakefield and T. Newcombe.[17]

Abraham Childers married Ann Pew, daughter of Henry and Jane Pew. From this point on the christian names Abraham and Philemon multiply. Great care must be taken with the succession in the two branches. When Abraham Childers III's father died, his first cousin, also named Abraham being older, became Abraham, Sr., and Abraham III in direct line of descent moved up to Jr., as will be noted in the reference to his grandfather Henry Pew's will. Abraham III became Sr. when his cousin died in 1720.

THE CHILDREN OF ABRAHAM AND ANN (PEW) CHILDERS WERE:

A. Abraham (III), married 1st Elizabeth Cannon, 2nd________, 3rd Lucy (Thomas) Nevil.
B. Henry, married Lucretia Jones.
C. Robert, married Catherine_____.
D. Philemon, married Elizabeth _____.
E. John, married Elizabeth_____.
F. Jane, married John Smith, her first cousin once removed. She was born ca.1695, not being named in her father's will. John was the son of Humphrey Smith and Mary Childers the daughter of Philemon Childers, Sr., son of Abrah. On 2 Dec 1713 Humphrey Smith, planter, gave to his son John for love and affection 50 acres on the north side of James River on Queen's Cabbin Creek, branch of the Chickahominy. Witnesses were Thomas Childers and Mary Childers.[16]. On 11 June 1728 John Smith of St. James Parish, Goochland County, purchased from Matthew Agee for 5 shillings 100 acres on the south side of James River and east side of Mathews Branch bounded by Edward Maxey, Francis James, Peter Fore and Mathew Agee's land. Witnesses were Thomas and Obedience Turpin and Peter Bruce. Agee's wife Ann relinquished her dower right.[19] On 8 June 1731 John Smith of Goochland County sold to John Roper of Charles City County his 50 acres in Henrico Parish for L10, mentioning that it was part of Humphrey's gift to his two sons John and Philemon of 100 acres which had been split between them. Witnesses were John Ward and William East. Jane, John's wife, gave up her dower right.[20] The remaining Goochland County deeds have not been searched but there must have been a purchase in the Albemarle County area since John Smith and his wife Jane sold land to Peter Jefferson in July 1746.[21]
At this time John Smith made his will on 29 May 1754 his 1728 purchase was in King William Parish, Cumberland County. To his vife Jane he gave the plantation and his real and personal property for life; to son Abraham a small chest and items; to son Humphre(y) one trunk and animals; to son Childaws (sic) items and a horse; to sons Elacksander and Joseph each amimals and items; to daughter Mary Blankinship one mare; to sons John and James each a feather bed and furniture. John and James were to have the 100 acres purchased from Matthew Agee after Jane's death and if both died it was to go to Elacksander. The rest of the personal property lent to Jane was also divided between John and James.

The executors were to be Jane and John. Witnesses were Thomas Hall and William Nathaniel Maxey. The will was proved 28 Feb 1756.[22]

The Children of John and Jane (Childers) Smith were:

1. Abraham. He may be the Abraham Smith of Dinwiddie County who left a will dat 5 Jan 1782 and proved Feb. 1782.[23]
2. Humphrey. Before 1757 when he was named in her father's will, he married Judith or Jude Worley, daughter of John Worley.[24] His will, dated 15 Feb 176 and proved 23 June 1766, mentioned only his wife Judey, to whom he gave every thing and whom he named executrix.[25]
3. Childers. He married Frances Field before 1757 when his son Joseph was menti his brother Joseph's will. In 1783 he was listed in Powhatan County with 8 w and 2 blacks in his household[26] and in 1800 he was taxed in Amherst County f one white male, two horses and one black.[27] Their daughter Elizabeth was bor 25 Dec 1763[28] and Childers and Fanny Smith consented for the marriage of the daughter Leddey to John Langham in Amherst County in Feb 1793.[30] Another pos child was Phield (Field?) Smith who married Patsey Lamham in April 1797.[30]
4. Alexander. He probably moved to Amherst County where an Alexander Smith had whites in his household in 1783.[31]
5. Joseph. He lived only a short time after his father and died unmarried. On 23 Feb 1757 Sampson Maxey swore that "Joseph Smith" the day before his death b in his perfect sense did dispose of his Estate in the following manner," givi to Humphrey Smith, Jr., his schooling, "to Joseph Smith son of Childers Smith" L5 for his schooling, to Childers Smith his gun, and the rest of his estate to "disposed by his brother Alexander Smith." James McGlason swore to the same a both proved the nuncupative will on 12 May 1757.[32]
6. Mary. She married _______Blankinship.
7. John. He married Mary______.
8. James. His wife was named Mary and it was probably he who married, Oct 1760, Mary Worley, both from Manakin Town.[33] On 24 Nov 1766 John and James Smith of Cumberland County sold for L55 to Samuel Maxey 100 acres on Matthews Creek, bo by Esther Landsdon, William and Nathaniel Maxey and Samuel Flournoy. The deed states they were "seized of an undefeazable Estate of Inheritance in Fee Simple which indicates their mother was then deceased. Their wives, both named Mary, relaeased their dower.[34] Janes in 1783 was head of a household in Powhatan County with 4 whites and 3 blacks.[35] On 16 June 1779 his daughter Elizabeth married Ransome Day.[36]

FROM GARLAND CHILDRESS 4105 Riveroak Lane, Louisville, KY 40241
This part Too Late

The following article was taken from Cherokee Tragedy The Ridge Family and the Decimation of a People by Thurman Wilkins. Garland writes, Major John Ridge, called Kah-nung-da-tla-geh in Cherokee, owned lands in Alabama prior to the Cherokee move to Oklahoma. The Oklahoma land of John Ridge was situated on Honey Creek near the intersection of the boundries of Missouri, Arkansas and Oklahoma, where William Childers may have been married to a woman of the Creek Nation, and was a trusted friend of John Ridge. Prior to removal to Oklahoma, Major Ridge had at one time been a trusted councellor of the Creeks.

From the book: Summer of 1836, pg 295.
While Major Ridge had been in Washington, a Georgian named Cox had upsurped a long piece of cleared field across the Oostanaula from the Ridge house and Lavender's Store. There was nothing Ridge could do about it - he had neither recourse or justice in the courts nor protection from law. Most of these dispossessions took place in Georgia, but sometimes in other states. For example he had trouble about his farm and ferry in Alabama.

The trouble had begun the year before while Ridge was in Washington. A swaggering white man named John H Garrett, who had been elected a major general in the Alabama militia and who liked to talk of dueling and "the code," forcibly ejected WILLIAM CHILDERS, Ridge's tenant and ferryman and seized posession of the farm and ferry. Garrett was still in charge of the property in the summer of 1836, having put structures on the opposite side of the Coosa from Ridge's buildings. General John E. Wool, who had been sent to the Cherokee Nation and to disarm the Indians while they prepared to remove under the NEW ECHOTA TREATY. The General sent troops to oust Garrett, and CHILDERS was reinstated as tenant and ferryman. Garrett returned and secured a writ of posession and injunction from the chancery court of Cherokee County Alabama forbidding Ridge and CHILDERS further use of the ferry and farm.

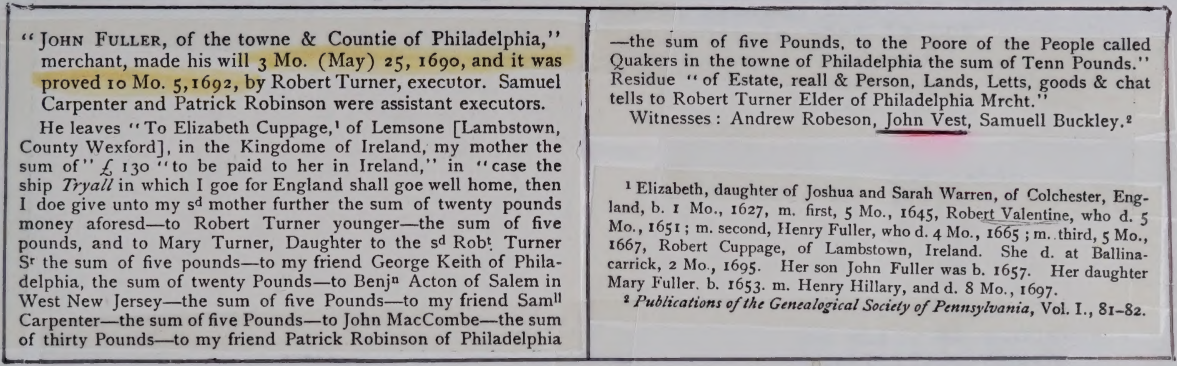
VEST FAMILY

So far, the earliest-found mention of any Vest on these shores, is of one John Vest who, on 25 May 1690 in Philadelphia, witnessed the will of John Fuller, a Quaker merchant 33-years of age. The article is short, so it is photocopied below: *



"JOHN FULLER, of the towne & Countie of Philadelphia," merchant, made his will 3 Mo. (May) 25, 1690, and it was proved 10 Mo. 5,1692, by Robert Turner, executor. Samuel Carpenter and Patrick Robinson were assistant executors.

He leaves "To Elizabeth Cuppage,[1] of Lemsone [Lambstown, County Wexford], in the Kingdome of Ireland, my mother the sum of" £ 130 "to be paid to her in Ireland," in "case the ship Tryall in which I goe for England shall goe well home, then I doe give unto my s^{d} mother further the sum of twenty pounds money aforesd—to Robert Turner younger—the sum of five pounds, and to Mary Turner, Daughter to the s^{d} Rob^{t} Turner S^{r} the sum of five pounds—to my friend George Keith of Philadelphia, the sum of twenty Pounds—to Benj^{n} Acton of Salem in West New Jersey—the sum of five Pounds—to my friend Sam^{ll} Carpenter—the sum of five Pounds—to John MacCombe—the sum of thirty Pounds—to my friend Patrick Robinson of Philadelphia—the sum of five Pounds, to the Poore of the People called Quakers in the towne of Philadelphia the sum of Tenn Pounds." Residue "of Estate, reall & Person, Lands, Letts, goods & chattells to Robert Turner Elder of Philadelphia Mrcht."

Witnesses: Andrew Robeson, John Vest, Samuell Buckley.[2]

County Wexford is on Ireland's southeast coast. Colchester is about 45 miles NE of London. There is absolutely nothing in Fuller's will to suggest his witnesses were anything more than trusted acquaintences; probably they weren't, though the name of his mother's first husband catches the eye. What if Vest's mother were a Valentine? That was a common name in our Vest family. Even Patsey, herself, had a son Valentine. On the other hand, that was a more common given name then than it is now.

Putting all this in historical perspective, Penn's Colony was less than a decade old in 1690. Until 1720 most of the population was confined to the drains of the Delaware, the reason being that westward expansion was precluded by the extreme ferocity of Indian tribes on the Susquehanna, warring among themselves No other Vests have been sighted there in Colonial days. In such a watery world, people often moved somewhere else along the coast. Assuming for the time being that this John Vest was indeed our ancestor, we need to set a reference point. He would have to have been at least 21 when he signed a legal document. That means he was born by 1669, perhaps long before that. Did he have children already? If so, they may have included the men we meet next, though conceivably he could have been the oldest John. If the Vests were Anglican rather than Quaker, Virginia might have been more congenial for them.

By 1709 Virginia Colony had been in existence for over a century, though precariously at first, but people were still clinging to the tidewater despite the fact that tobacco, the standard crop, depleted the soil very rapidly. Those very few above the fall line were

We must keep up our search, putting things in chronological order, but at this present writing we are missing a big chunk of vital information that must be found, and will be inserted here when it is. Excerpts from Revolutionary War pension records indicate that many of our kin were born in the 1740's and 50's in what is now Powhatan Co. VA, created 1777 from Cumberland and Chesterfield. Some of them joined the westward migration while others returned to present Chesterfield. Perhaps they will be found in Goochland Records, but so far they haven't been.

Perhaps, before telling about those who gradually moved west, this is the place to mention a nice lady back in York Co., just across the river from Abingdon Parish of Gloucester. On 15 July 1757, Rebecca Vest signed as witness to a codicil to the will of Ellyson Armistad, L.S., of York Co. VA. "in the thirtieth year of the Reign of my Sovereign Lord King George the second." This literate lady was also present in court that December to help prove the will. We wonder whether this is the same lady, Rebekah baptized 29 April 1724, daughter of Mary and George Vest. If so, she would have been 33 years old. Or she could have been wife of a Vest who stayed in the area and was not mentioned in that particular parish.*

Whatever the case, we can be pretty sure she was kin of some sort. And she was upper class, an educated lady in an era when most women were illiterate. Merely being loosely associated with the Armisteads meant something, for that family was among the upper gentility "first families of Virginia," very rich and cultured. Armistead's will mentioning King George II reminds us that in 1757 the French & Indian was was in a critical stage on the transmontane frontier, where a huge percentage of the populace was fleeing from their homes or being butchered by French-inspired savages. The situation was less perilous in the tidewater, though men were being drafted. VA Governor Dinwiddie was imploring the crown for more help and even went so far as to arrange with a certain Capt, Richard Pearis to enlist friendly Cherokees. Now let us get back to Amelia County in 1749.

An early ~~inexplici~~t tithe~~abl~~e list shows Jams (sic) Vest living below Flat and Nibbs Creeks in Amelia in 1749.  ~~We do not have a detaile~~d Amelia Co. map to show here, but the locali~~ties of Flat and Nibbs~~ have been inked in on a wider Virginia map of the frontier in 1756. Tax lists for 1754 and 1755 show him between Flat Creek and the Appomattox River, probably the same place. On those lists James is spelt correctly.

James himself was literate. When Stephen Watkins of Amelia County made his will on 24 April 1755, James Vest and Richard Puckett signed as witnesses and helped prove the will in court.  These last two paragraphs are important in that they prove James was over 21 in 1749, thus born by 1728 and probably long before that. He was clearly related to the late Valentine Vest, though we do not have sufficient evidence that he was his son. He could have been grandson of John of Philadelphia.

INTRODUCTION

Dates: Changes in Calendar
During the entire period of this Order Book the year began on March 25th, making all dates between January 1st and March 24th, incl. have the date of the preceding year. This is because the old style calendar was in use at the time. In 1751 eleven days were added to the year to compensate for earlier miscalculations, so it was not until 1752 that the new year began on January 1st for the first time. Court dates for the first three months of the year are given here with both the old style and new style year, such as 1749/50.

Counties included in Order Book 2. Prince Edward County, Va., was not cut off from Amelia County until 1754, and Nottoway County Va. was not cut off until 1789, so this book contains Court orders for both of these present-day counties.

Binding out minors. Church Wardens were empowered to bind out to the age of maturity the children of persons who were deemed incapable of supporting them, or bringing them up in "honest courses."

Processioning. By statute, every fourth year between the last day of September and the last day of the following March, the bounds of each person's land were required to be processioned and the landmarks renewed. Parishes were divided into precincts, and at least two freeholders [property owners)] in each precinct were appointed to perform this duty. They were required to make a return in writing.

Dower Right. A wife had a dower right in one-third of her husband's land. When any of his land was sold, she had to be examined privately to ascertain whether or not she relinquished her right of dower in it willingly.

Legal tender. Tobacco was used as one form of legal tender. When English money was used, it was in pounds/shillings/pence, and occasionally farthings. [Note: At this time 4 farthings = 1 penny; 12 pence = 1 shilling; 20 shillings = 1 pound; 1 pound sterling = 1 pound avd. of silver] Also, Spanish pistoles were used on occasion.

Growing Tobacco. Constables were ordered to go to all places within their precincts where tobacco was planted and view them to determine if any seconds [also called slips or suckers] were tended "from the stalks from which any tobacco plant hath been before cut, or taken above the height of nine inches from the ground."

INTRODUCTION

This volume is an alphabetical list of all 24,000 non-slave names appearing in the Amelia County tax lists between the years 1736 and 1764. Entries are keyed to the year of the tax list, and to a specific tax collector's precinct. Precincts often cover an area smaller than a parish. Thus, people are listed by where they lived and the years they were taxed. The Amelia tax lists, although very helpful for finding earlier generations, and for finding previously unknown collateral lines (including those found in no other Amelia County records), are so difficult to read (due to faint writing, bleeding, poor handwriting, mutilated pages), that, up to now, it has been virtually impossible to make full use of them.

Each entry in this volume gives name, year, and where taxed within the county. The year is encoded using the last 2 digits. For example, 1737 is encoded as 37. Where taxed is given by the tax precincts, which are listed below. If a name appears more than once on a page, the number of times is given in parentheses.

KEY TO TAX PRECINCTS

a - above Flatt Creek
b - below Deep Creek in Raleigh Parish bc - Deep Creek to the extent of the county downward
c - below Deep Creek in Nottoway Parish
d - between Flatt and Nibbs Creeks
e - below Flatt and Nibbs Creeks
f - between Flatt Creek and Appomattox River
g - above Saylor's Creek
h - between Deep and Cellar Creeks
i - below Cellar Creek
j - Nottoway Parish, upper end
k - the upper side of Flatt Creek
l - the lower side of Deep Creek m - Nottoway Parish, middle of mc - Nottoway Parish, the middle and lower end n - from Namozine Creek to Cellar Creek
o - the upper part of the county
p - insolvents list
w - between Flatt and Deep Creeks

The above tax precincts were, as can be surmised from the above list, not precisely defined. Moreover, the location of a tax precinct was often different when the order book entry was compared with the header (the label at the top of the tax list, written in the same handwriting as the rest of the tax list); in that case, the header on the tax list was used. Likewise, sometimes the header on the tax list disagreed with the label for that list which was typed (by perhaps a county clerk about 50 years ago); in that case, the tax list header was used. In cases where neither the tax

BOOK REVIEWS

Federal Land Series. A Calendar of Archival Materials on the Land Patents Issued by the United States Government, with Subject, Tract and Name Indexes. Volume 1, 1788-1810. By Clifford Neal Smith. Chicago, 1972. 338 p. $20.00.

Records relating to land patents issued by the United States government are scattered through many series of public and private papers. Eight of these sources are covered in the present volume, including Miscellaneous Letters Sent by the General Land Office, Letters Sent by the Secretary of the Treasury, Papers of the Continental Congress and private papers of Gen. John Neville and Richard Clough Anderson.

Much of the land to which reference is made is in Ohio. A detailed map of the state, in three sections, is reproduced and the tract index permits a determination of every mention of a particular tract of land. The extensive name index covers several thousand persons.

A great many Virginians are among those mentioned. For example, William Bridges of Mason County made an affidavit in 1810; Thomas W. Maury, receiver of public monies of the East Pearl River land office district in Mississippi, was at Lindsay's Store, Albemarle Co., Va., in 1806; Jesse Hirt of Waterford, Loudoun Co., Va., and John Self of Front Royal, Va., received patents for Ohio land in 1810.

This is a most important source of information. Dr. Smith's work is exceptionally thorough.

Copies can be ordered from the Order Department, American Library Association, 50 East Huron St., Chicago, Ill. 60611.

Montgomery County, Virginia--Circa 1790. A Comprehensive Study-including the 1789 Tax Lists, Abstracts of Over 800 Land Surveys & Data Concerning Migration. Transcribed and edited by Netti Schreiner-Yantis. Springfield, Va., 1972. 124 p. $7.50 (soft bound $5).

Montgomery County was on the path of migration up the Valley of Virginia. Those families which moved through the county, perhaps stopping for a year or two on their way west, left few records. Mrs. Yantis has gathered in this book information relating to residents of the area about 1790 when Montgomery County covered a large part of southwestern Virginia and southern West Virginia.

The tax books of 1789 have been transcribed and since the date when each person gave in his list to the tax collector is shown it has been possible for her to locate the places of residence of those who paid taxes. In

END OF 1728-1734 Book

One unfortunate loss in Goochland's records is a surveyor's plat book for the period of these abstracts. A related early land record has recently been reconstructed from documents in the Cabell Family Papers in the Special Collections Department at Swem Library of The College of William and Mary. See:

> Robert Vernon, transcriber, 'Goochland County Land Entry Book, 1736-1743, " Central Virginia Heritage, 12:1 (Winter 1994), 13-17; 12:2 (Spring 1994), 36-41; 12:3 (Summer 1994), 57-63 (includes the index).

Goochland County, because of its age, has many other interesting records which relate to land. Many original records have been transferred by the county clerk to the Virginia State Archives of the Library of Virginia. Their condition varies. Preservation efforts will one day make more of these documents readily accessible to researchers.

ALBEMARLE COUNTY SURVEYOR'S PLAT BOOK 1

Note: Old Albemarle County before 1761 included the present day counties of Amherst, Buckingham, Fluvanna, Nelson and a part of Appomattox. It did not include the northern part of present day Albemarle Co. Until 1761, that was Fredericksville Parish, a part of Louisa Co. In the 1740s and 1750's, the part of the James River above the Rivanna River was generally called the Fluvanna River, although occasionally you will find the use of James.

AMHERST COUNTY

With the division of Albemarle County effective May 1, 1761, the southwestern third became Amherst County. The new county included all of the territory of modern Nelson County as well.

Amherst County records have suffered few significant losses over the centuries. They include complete deed books which enabled Bailey Fulton Davis to publish The Deeds of Amherst County, Virginia 1761-1807 (Books A-K) and Albemarle County, Virginia 1748-1763 (Books 1-3) (Easley, S.C.: Southern Historical Press, 1984) along with other useful abstracts of the county's sources.

Not a great deal has been published on Amherst County in comparison to other old counties in Virginia. One very helpful study is a welcome addition to the literature. Catherine Hawes Coleman Seaman. Tuckahoes and Cohees: The Settlers and Cultures of Amherst and Nelson Counties 1607-1807. Sweet Briar, Va.: Sweet Briar College Printing Press, 1992. Mrs. Seaman also edited another volume, The Lee Marmon Manuscript, which offers additional information on Amherst County history. It is not readily available in most libraries, although the library at Sweet Briar College and the Jones Memorial Library in Lynchburg do own copies.

Like some of its neighbors, Amherst County has a surveyor's plat book. A microfilm copy with an index is available at the Library of Virginia or on interlibrary loan. It can be very helpful in plotting the location and boundaries of specific parcels of land. Abstracts of these records are underway in 1999 by Eric G. Grundset for publication by Blue Ridge Bay Books of Fairfax, Virginia.

was found in 1919 by John L. Douglass on the Gordon farm, near Leesville, by the Staunton river: and there have been found many flint arrows and tomahawks in the vicinity.

An early settler around the Leesville community was John Brown, of whose purchase in 1784 from James and Ann Martin and Jos. Eads of 196 acres, the first county deed book makes record; this land lay along Catamount branch of Staunton river beginning at Eads' corner: it is also recorded that he then freed a slave. In 1785 Brown purchased from Wm. and Martha Alford 200 acres, known as Alford's Mountain near the river, witnesses to the transaction being Micajah Davis, Jos. Childress and John Vest.

Vest-related Alfords to N.C.?

In 1798 Brown petitioned for a ferry on his land to cross the Staunton. He lived in a brick dwelling at the top of a hill leading to Leesville. One of this name was conspicuous for his habit of wearing a spike-tail coat ornamented with brass buttons and his long hair tied in a cue; thus he would appear riding to mill, or around among his neighbors, with a negro servant behind him: he was a successful farmer and a man of means.

Arthur, state senator and treasurer of Bedford county,—Virginia m. 1st Fletcher Arnold, m. 2nd Fletcher Lukin,—Bettie m. 1st Col. Frank Board of Bedford, who was killed in Confederate service; Dr. J. J. Board of Lynch's was a son; m. 2nd Alex. A. Arnold,—Thomas married a Miss Brown: Jas L. Arthur m. (2d) Clara Anderson.

Littleberry Moon lived at the top of Moon's Mtn., which took its name from this family. The ancestor of the Moon family went with the Conqueror to England at which time the name was Du Mohon, Mhoon, then Moon. Littleberry moved in 1838 from his father's home in Buckingham county; his mother was Jean Breckenridge, dau. of Wm. Hopkins, who was the son of Dr. Arthur Hopkins of Revolutionary fame. He bought 600 acres from Wm. Anderson upon which he built Viewmont, his home, facing the distant Peaks of Otter, and standing not far from Leesville: m. Martha Perkins, dau. of Littleberry Moon, Sr., a wealthy merchant of Scottsville, who had died young, and his wife also, leaving 4 orphan daughters who were then raised by their uncle Benjamin Perkins of Scottsville. Viewmont replaced a smaller, quaint old house which was moved to the negro quarters: the land upon which it stood had been the part of Col. Early's large estate devised to his daughter, Mrs. Sarah Anderson. Littleberry's brothers, Overton of Albemarle, and Arthur of Buckingham, were amongst the wealthiest citizens of those counties: the family seem to have confined themselves to the marts of trade, rather than official or military activities. Children of Littleberry Moon, were—Maria m. . . . Gilbert, d. soon afterwards,—Sallie P. m. Col. Goodman,—Jennie B. m. Leverette S. Early, son of Col. Edmund Early,—Elizabeth m. Sam'l C. Goggin clerk of Campbell county,—Littlebery, Jr. d. at Lexington 1858,—Edward was killed in the Confederate army,—John B. moved to a western state.

Robert F. Gaines moved to Campbell from Charlotte; m. Elizabeth Noel; d. 1865; had 6 sons, 1 dau. (m. W. S. Smith)—Charles E. and Richard T. died in Confederate service; William, also a Confederate soldier died in July, 1865; Robert H. (C. S. veteran) m. Margaret Scott; James C. enlisted in C. S. army in the autumn of 1864, was captured April 1, 1865, at Five Forks battle near Dinwiddie C. H., and sent to Pt. Lookout where he was imprisoned until June 13, 1865; m. Rosa. dau. of Robert P. Mattox of Leesville, moved to Rock Wall, Texas, where he now resides.

Other Leesville residents, Col. Abner Anthony; John Anthony m. dau. of Col. Reid Arnold, lived in the old brick dwelling on the hill above Anthony's creek: Dr. Haden, whose home was at top of Haden's hill; Morton Pannill, merchant at Leesville m. 1st Kitty Leftwich; m. 2d Mrs. Brown, neé Moorman; Green Terry, later moved to a farm Solitude two miles

Two railroads pass through Brookneal—the Lynchburg and Durham, a branch of the Norfolk and Western, on the north, and the Virginian on the south side with freight and passenger stations. The town is also entered by good soil roads, and the State Highway passes through it, thus giving transportation facilities. At this time it is undergoing street improvements and extension of its limits.

Liberty Farm with its notable vineyards is between Brookneal and Naruna and has the largest commercial orchard in the county. The bulk of its grape crop is packed in baskets and shipped to the coal field section of West Virginia: careful attention is given to the cultivation of the vineyard, which is probably the largest in the state.

As an economical measure, Brookneal's two banks have become consolidated into one, the Peoples National Bank of Brookneal. R. C. Blackford, a prominent and well-known Lynchburg attorney, was recently elected to the presidency to succeed C. C. Scott. It has served the community well from the time it was founded several years ago by J. E. Webb and has an unbroken record of growth and progress.

Leesville at the junction of Goose creek and Staunton river in the southwestern part of Campbell is now a station on the Virginian railway just west of the thriving town of Alta Vista: grouped in the vicinity are many old homes, as the town was started over a hundred years ago. The first known settler there was Captain Jacobus Early, eldest son of Colonel Jeremiah Early who was a captain of Bedford militia in 1781; a captain of Campbell militia in 1782; he married Sarah, daughter of Colonel Charles F. Wall. His plantation lay on both sides of Goose creek to the mouth of William's branch the north side of Staunton river, by Callaway's corner and adjoining Leftwich property; it embraced lands inherited from his father and 115 acres purchased of Mark and Elizabeth Snow (Henry Snow's patent) along Watery branch. In 1793 Early sold this land to John Lee and in 1794 sold

Edward Bybee 500 acres in Pittsylvania county and then moved to southwest Virginia, his descendants settling in Kentucky and West Virginia.

There was a boom in 1818 for town building along water courses supposed to be navigable for batteaux and John Lee conceived the idea of locating a town on his land, giving it his name. He laid off 100 acres in half acre lots and of these sold sufficient to yield him $20,000, reserving the home and its grounds: then closed the sale. At his death, four years later, his son, Richard, came into possession of the old home and occupied it several years. None of the lots purchased were ever improved and there was no attempt made to transact business there until 1826. At that time Stephen Terry rented the old Early mansion and converted it into a store house, and afterwards, opened a tobacco manufactory, continuing to operate as a merchant and manufacturer till 1830. He became dissipated, neglecting his business, and the buildings were closed in 1831. Afterwards business revived and at one time there were 4 stores of general merchandise, 2 tanneries, 3 blacksmiths, 3 physicians, 2 tailors, 2 cabinet makers, 2 carpenters, a wheelwright, a male academy, 2 churches, post office, and near the village, a saw and grist mill, hemp and carding machinery and cotton gin: in 1902 there remained 2 stores, a shoe maker, blacksmith, public school house, 2 churches, post office, grist and flour mill.

When John M. Speed was the Campbell delegate to the Legislature three efforts were made to form a new county of parts of Campbell, Pittsylvania and Bedford in 1845, '48 and '57: it was to be called Staunton with Leesville as the Court House: but the petition was not favored and was finally withdrawn. Near to Leesville there is a stone quarry, with layers of a thickness to be serviceable for building purposes, which has long been used for paving slabs and from which many of the neighboring houses have been provided with steps and platforms. Lumber trade is carried on around Leesville to some extent.

648 Land entries in present Co's of Halifax Pittsylvania
1984 Henry Franklin Patrick

INTRODUCTION

This book contains land entries in the western portion of the origin
Brunswick County, namely, Halifax, Pittsylvania, Henry, Franklin, and P
The area concerned was south of the Roanoke-Staunton River, west of Tew Creek (now Aaron's Creek which divides Mecklenburg and Halifax counties extending to the Blue Ridge Mountains. These counties were formed from burg, which was separated from Brunswick in 1746.

In 1723, the Lords of Trade of London, upon the petition of the Virg Council, exempted the inhabitants of Brunswick from the payment of quit and the purchase of land rights for seven years. In the same Order, the limited these land grants to 1000 acres per person. This was to encour actual settlers along the frontier. This policy was later changed and grants were permitted, but the principle was maintained in requiring th out of every fifty acres to be cultivated, or three head of cattle to be tained, or a house of certain dimensions to be built.

Brunswick County's western lands developed slowly. In order to enco settlement along the Roanoke River, in November 1730, taxfree status for period of ten years was offered to settlers who would brave the dangers wilderness and make their homes there. These inducements attracted Swi migrants and the Germans, Quakers, and Scotch-Irish who were then moving great numbers from Pennsylvania. The men who sat in executive council i Williamsburg issued Orders of Council for thousands of acres for themse
Also, the men of eastern Brunswick and adjacent counties secured many Or of Council for various size holdings.

It must be pointed out that an entry for land was but a statement of tention. Ownership of land resulted from satisfying the requirements f settlement on the land and improving it. For this reason many entries w voided. Nevertheless, it is surprising how many of the families found i the area today are those who first settled here. Interwoven in this boo is a story of courage and high adventure. It is of both genealogical an historical importance. Many evidences of the Indians who once lived her can still be found along the streams and river banks after heavy rains a flooding.

This Entry Book has been transcribed verbatim from a photographic cop the original book which is in the Clerk's Office at the Pittsylvania Cou Courthouse, Chatham, Virginia. Marginal notes are shown in parentheses fore the entry. Words added in a different handwriting are enclosed in /slashes/. One name in particular, added over an illegible blot on page could have been more accurately interpreted as Drury Stith, Buckner Stit and Thos. Duggins, not Drury, John, Buckner Stith & Thos. Duggins. I hav underlined a letter or word when in doubt. In general, the entries are legible. However, the usual problem of S & L and I & J existed, t was n crossed, a left open, and u interchangeable with double e, initial lette of proper names were not always capitalized. Spellings of names were com pared with other contemporary records. Yet, some errors in judgment may been made.

Charles City County records – the Mosbys & some others' first lives, have perished as have most of Buckingham (their fire).
Mosbys, Childress (Childers) Cox, Scruggs etc came to Henrico (families?) as Quakers and intermarried. They later lived close to the Webbs, Alfords & Reynolds (Spotsylvania Elizabeth Alford & Reynolds). later Vests.
Vests MAY have m. Childress. Scruggs, early friends of Davison and Childress were early settlers of Bedford/Campbell Co.

Because I am so sure Agness Davison was descended from Mosbys, they have been scrutinized without avail. This section uses a lot of space, but the puzzles need to be solved!

Low shall in all things well and truly behave himself towards his majesty's Leige Subjects during the whole time for which he was imported to serve. Mch. Court 1722. Ibid, p. 242.

Persuant to an order of New Kent Court and an order of this Court appointing persons therein named to agree with Edward Moseby for a bridge built by him over Chickahomony Swamp, and for keeping it in repair, the gentlemen who met at the sd. bridge were of opinion that the building thereof and keeping it in repair 7 years were worth 8000 lbs. tobo. & casq. which they were also of opinion ought to be pd. equally by the sd. Committee; whereupon it was ordered that there should be levyed for sd. Moseby 4000 lbs. tobo. & cask. in this County; the sd. Moseby now presents a copy of an order of New Kent Court for levying 2000 lbs. tobo. & cask convenient for sd. Moseby; the said order also mentions that they think the tobacco leveyed by them (upon consideration had of the number of tithables in such County and the differance of Oronoke and Sweet Scented tobacco) to be equivalent to the 4000 lbs. tobo. leveyed by this County. Upon consideration whereof this Court are of opinion that the Court of New Kent County (who made the first proporsition in this affair have not complied with the agreement made by the gentlemen aforesaid with Edward Moseby, that the Act of Assembly makes no distinction as to the quality of tobacco, and the sd. bridge not being built according to the directions of that Act, therefore unless the County Court of New Kent will levy 4000 lbs. tobo. according to sd. agreement, this Court are opinion that they will not pay the sd. Moseby any of the tobacco leveyed for him, and it is thereupon ordered that the sheriff of this County do not pay unto said Moseby the sd. quantity of 4000 lbs. tobo. & cask or any part thereof leveyed for him in this County until the Court of New Kent County shall order 4000 lbs. tobo. & cask to be leveyed for the sd. Moseby. Mch. Court 1722. Ibid, p. 244.

Robert Moseby, Petit Juror. Apr. Court 1723. Ibid, p. 247.

The Court having taken into consideration the order of last New Kent Court relating to the bridge built by Edward Moseby over Chicahomany Swamp (which sd. order directed that such a further sum of Tobacco be leveyed for the said Moseby in that Court as will make the tobacco already leveyed equivalent to the 4000 lbs. of tobbacco leveyed for him in this County according to the number of tithables in each County) are of opinion, that they will not recede from the several orders formerly made relating thereto, but that when it does appear what sum of tobbacco the Court of New Kent will order to be paid unto the sd. Moseby, this Court will order the like sum of tobacco to be paid unto him not exceeding 4000 lbs. of tobacco. Apr. Court 1723. Ibid, p. 248.

The Court considering that Edward Moseby who built the bridge over the Chickohomony Swamp is a poor man & that he will not probably get anything for the said bridge unless they depart from the strictness of the orders heretofore made relating thereto and the said Moseby agreeing to take the tobacco already leveyed for him in this County, in full satisfaction for the County's proportion of the charges of the said bridge and he with Robert Moseby as his security entering into bond to keep the same in repair for seven years, it is ordered that Henry Anderson, Gent., Sheriff of this County do pay unto him the said Moseby the tobacco leveyed for him for building the said bridge. *There were Mosby in Charles City County as early as 1656. On Oct. 27, 1656, Edward Mosby was ordered to pay an account of Thos. Drewe due for necessaries for the funeral of Joseph Parsons (Charles City County Records, Vol. 1655-1665, p. 79), Edward Mosby was guardian of Judith Parsons, one of the orphans of Joseph Parsons, decd. (Ibid., p. 278), on 20th 9 ber., 1663, probate of the will of Edward Mosby, decd., was granted to Richard Mosby, executor of said will (Ibid., p. 432), 3d. of 8 ber., 1665. Richard Mosby, aged 39 years, or thereabouts, made deposition about a bargain for a horse (Ibid., p. 591). The destruction of the Charles City County Records prevents further discoveries in that source relative to these Mosbys. It seems safe, however, to say that Edward Mosby, of Henrico (circa 1660-1742), was of this family as Charles City and Henrico Counties join.

8. Benjamin Mosby, of Goochland and Cumberland Cos., married Mary Poindexter; died 1774. (For traces of his descendants, see this work, Vol. II, p. 829, et seq., section of Mosby data given under Cumberland Co.)

John Mosby (son of Edward and Sarah [Woodson] Mosby), born prior to June, 1689; died 1718; lived in Henrico Co.; married Nov., 1708, Martha, daughter of Abraham Womack, of Henrico Co.* Mrs. Martha (Womack) Mosby married, second, James Hambleton.
John and Martha (Womack) Mosby had issue:

1. John Mosby, of whom hereafter.
2. Judith Mosby.
3. Martha Mosby.
4. Sarah Mosby.
5. Luciana Mosby.
6. .... Mosby. John Mosby in his will, 1718, refers to an unborn child. Querry: Could this child born after the making of the will, or after its father's death, have been a certain Edward Mosby, of Cumberland Co. (who married Patty, daughter of Thomas Walton), and is, as yet, unidentified. (See will of Thomas Walton, of Cumberland Co., 1772, and deed of Thomas Walton to his daughter, Patty, wife of Edward Mosby, 1758, this work, Vol. II. pp. 831, 355.)

*The Womack family appears in Henrico as early as 1674 in the persons of Abraham and William Womack, two brothers (see Vol. III, p. 1805.) William Womack was dead in April, 1674, leaving a widow and two children, Mary and Thomas (Ibid., p. 1780). Richard Womack (born circa 1655; died 1684) and Thomas Womack, of Henrico (died 1697), were other brothers of Abraham and William Womack (see Ibid., pp. 1770, 1794). It is not improbable that another brother was John Womack (born circa 1654), who appears in Henrico in 1688-92 (see Ibid., p. 1777, et seq., and p. 1786, et seq.), later moving to Prince George, where he died in 1725 (see Ibid., p. 1803).

Abraham Womack (born circa 1644-7; died 1733) lived in Henrico County through the whole course of his life. The name of his wife is unknown. His will dated Nov., 1732, was probated Oct., 1733 (See Ibid., p. 1798). Abraham Womack had (among other children) a daughter, Martha Womack: married, first, Nov. 22, 1708, John Mosby (Ibid., p. 856); second, James Hambleton (see Ibid., p. 866 [will of John Mosby] and p. 861, Mosby, Pltf., vs. James Hambleton and Martha, his wife, executrix of John Mosby, decd.).

John Mosby (son of John and Martha [Womack] Mosby), Henrico Co.; died 1801;* married Lucy [Allen?] and had issue:

1. William Mosby, of Henrico Co., died 1809;† captain Continental Army three years (Land Office, Revolutionary Records, Book 2, p. 696, Warrant No. 5885); colonel Henrico Militia at time of Gabriel's Insurrection; married 1784, Rebecca, daughter of Thomas Williamson, of Henrico Co., and had issue: Nancy W. Mosby, married William B. Chamberlayne.
2. Mary Mosby, married Nathaniel Sheppard.
3. Elizabeth Mosby, married Benjamin Sheppard.
4. Lucy Mosby, married Edmund James.
5. Susanna Mosby.
6. Hezekiah Mosby, of Henrico Co., married, first, June, 1794, Elizabeth, daughter of Peter Winston; second, Mary Massie.
7. Ann (Nancy) Mosby, married Sept., 1786, Woodson Parsons, of Henrico Co.
8. Martha Mosby, married .... Allen.
9. Robert Mosby.‡
10. Joseph Mosby.

*There were Mosby in Charles City County as early as 1656. On Oct. 27, 1656, Edward Mosby was ordered to pay an account of Thos. Drewe due for necessaries for the funeral of Joseph Parsons (Charles City County Records, Vol. 1655-1665, p. 79), Edward Mosby was guardian of Judith Parsons, one of the orphans of Joseph Parsons, decd. (Ibid., p. 278), on 20th 9 ber., 1663, probate of the will of Edward Mosby, decd., was granted to Richard Mosby, executor of said will (Ibid., p. 432), 3d. of 8 ber., 1665. Richard Mosby, aged 39 years, or thereabouts, made deposition about a bargain for a horse (Ibid., p. 591). The destruction of the Charles City County Records prevents further discoveries in that source relative to these Mosbys. It seems safe, however, to say that Edward Mosby, of Henrico (circa 1660-1742), was of this family as Charles City and Henrico Counties join.

The given names Mosby and Cox were used by Davison-Vests, though the significance is unknown.

INTRODUCTION

The Vestry Book of Southam Parish contains the proceedings of parish business from 1745 to 1792. Through these detailed entries, we witness the building of a community, the establishing of authority, and the handling of diversity in a new land. Though similar to other vestry books, this particular one is especially valuable because of its historical and genealogical records.

History of the Parish

When the first English settlers arrived in Virginia, they established various governing bodies. County government was the civil arm of colonial management while parishes served religious needs. These two institutions did not always coincide in geography. In 1720, Henrico Parish was divided into two parts with the upper part taking the name of St. James Parish. Goochland County was formed in 1728 from Henrico County and was intended to coincide with St. James Parish.[1] Both the county and the parish extended westward with no definite boundary.

Goochland County and St. James Parish continued together until 1745 when both were confined on their western edge by the formation of Albemarle County and St. Anne's Parish. In one act by the Virginia Assembly, St. James Parish was separated into St. James-Northam, St. James-Southam, and St. Anne's.[2] St. James-Northam was the part of the parish north of the James River while St. James-Southam was the part of the parish on the south side of the James River.

Southam Parish came into being on the first day of January 1745. The vestrymen had to create a functioning parish with officials and properties, services and taxes. Southam Parish served its community with the building of churches, the provision of a regular minister, the dependability of the vestry committee, and the annual payments of parish debts.

Within a few years, in 1749, the residents south of the James River requested a separate county, so Cumberland County was formed.[3] Cumberland County included all of Southam Parish and part of King William Parish. The arrangement stood until 1772 when Littleton Parish was taken from the western part of Southam Parish. The intent was to divide Southam so that there would be an equal number of tithes in Littleton and in Southam.[4] From 1777 until its demise, Southam Parish remained in this form.

The following chart summarizes the changes:

Year	Parish	County
1634	Henrico Parish	Henrico County
1720	St. James Parish	Henrico County
1728	St. James Parish	Goochland County
1745	Southam Parish	Goochland County
1749	Southam Parish	Cumberland County
1772	Southam Parish (Littleton removed)	Cumberland County
1777	Southam Parish	Powhatan County

For the period of 1745 through 1772, Southam Parish had the general shape of present day Cumberland and Powhatan counties combined. For 1772 through 1792, Southam Parish looked like present day Powhatan County. There are some minor exceptions to these two descriptions.

Throughout the Southam Parish Vestry Book, references to King William Parish and the "French line" appear. Even before St. James Parish or Southam Parish were formed, a different parish existed in the area. Protestant Huguenot refugees from Catholic France fled Europe and, in July 1700, some of them settled in Virginia at Manakintown in Henrico County. In December 1700, King William Parish was officially created to provide a separate parish for the French Protestant refugees.[5] The act which exempted the refugees from paying any county or parish levies for seven years also allowed the Huguenots to have their own minister and church and to collect their own tithes. In October 1705, the exemption was extended through December 25, 1708.[6]

Though the King William Parish boundaries were not clearly stated in the legislation, the Huguenots and other local residents understood the location of the lines. A portion of the land given to them was south of the James River, straddling what is now the county line between Powhatan and Chesterfield counties. A survey of the 10,000 acres was completed in 1704.[7] Even fifty years later at mid-century, county records mention the area as being part of the land surveyed for the French refugees.[8]

The other differences between the modern county lines and historic Southam Parish are two small pieces of land that belonged to other counties during this time period. Originally the line between Goochland and Albemarle counties was completely straight from the Appomattox River to the James River. In 1778, this small piece of Buckingham County was added to Cumberland County which now forms the short segment of the county line from Randolph's Creek to the James River.[9]

In a similar manner, the original county line between Goochland and Henrico (later Cumberland and Chesterfield) was a straight line from the James River to the Appomattox River.[10] In 1850, Skinquarter Creek became the boundary between the counties, shifting a small area into Powhatan County.[11]

During the colonial era in Virginia, the Church of England was the official church which all residents were required to support with yearly taxes called tithes. However, at least one dissident congregation was tolerated in the parish. By July 1755, a group of Presbyterians had an official minister, Rev. John Wright, and by 1759, had purchased a site for their own church.[12] Charles Anderson, who had been a Southam Parish vestryman, sold the land to the Presbyterians. The deed indicates that a church building was already on the site.[13] Anderson had resigned his vestry seat in December 1749, perhaps because he had converted to Presbyterianism.

For over thirty years, Southam Parish contributed to the lives of its residents. But revolution brought changes. The parish attempted to continue with business as usual through the chaos of the American Revolution and until 1785. However, the records become less complete and briefer. After 1785, freedom of worship was demanded by Virginians, resulting in the disestablishment of the Episcopal Church and the end of mandatory public financial support. In Southam Parish, an inventory was made of the few possessions of the parish and recorded in the vestry book. Included were the glebe land valued at £300, a worn surplice worth 20 shillings, a worn altar cloth, a prayer book, a table and chest, and a damaged Bible. After 1792, Southam Parish officially ceased to exist.

For the years covered by this vestry book, Southam Parish was bounded as follows: on the north by the James River, on the east by the county line with Henrico County (until 1749 when the line became the Chesterfield County line) and King William Parish, on the south by the Appomattox River, and on the west by Albemarle County. The parish encompassed about 560 square miles until it was divided. When Littleton Parish was removed from Southam Parish, their mutual boundary became the western boundary for Southam and the parish was reduced to about 260 square miles.

The Parish Officials

The parish officials were the vestrymen, the minister, the churchwardens, the clerk of the vestry, the clerks (also called readers), the sextons, and the tax collector. The law directed that twelve responsible men be selected as vestrymen for the parish and that they subscribe to the beliefs and discipline of the Church of England. Their duties included care of the parish property, promoting religious life, keeping the parish accounts, having the parish processioned, ordering the care of the poor and needy, employing the minister, keeping records, and tending to all other parish business. The churchwardens were the chief executive officers of the vestry. There were usually two churchwardens, though for a few years only one is identified clearly in the vestry book.

The clerk of the vestry was responsible for recording the parish business in the vestry book. The handwriting in this book clearly changes each time the clerk changed. After the death of clerk Robert Walton in 1749, the vestry had some difficulty obtaining the record book from his family. Churchwarden Stephen Bedford reported to the vestry that "he hath demanded the parish book of the executors of Robert Walton deceased who refused to deliver the same." The vestry then ordered the churchwardens to "again demand the said books of the said executors & on their refusal to deliver them that they bring sute [suit] for the same."

The clerks were employed to conduct services when the minister was not able to attend the chapels or churches. The sextons were employees who were responsible for taking regular care of the church property as well as sometimes ringing the church bell for services or digging graves. Frequently, the parish provided employment to poor people by paying them to serve as sextons.

The parish tax collector was charged with collecting the tithe levied on the parish and paying creditors from the proceeds. The minutes usually direct the collector to post a bond with churchwardens. In the early years, the name of the collector was not recorded. The tithe collector was usually allowed a fee of six percent of the total levy.

At the beginning of the minutes of the vestry meetings, the list of attendees was usually written in the order of the minister, the two churchwardens, the vestrymen. The tax collector was usually listed at the end of the levy account.

See Appendix A for a list of the parish officials.

The Parish Properties

The primary church for the parish was Peterville Church. It had been built about 1730-1735 at a location which had been used as a meeting place as early as 1723.[14] By tradition, the church was named Peterville for Pierre LeGrand who selected the first site.[15] The church was located on the northeast corner of the intersection of Chapel Road (now U.S. Highway 60) and Askew's Path (now Bell Road).

Throughout the vestry book are records of periodic repairs and improvements to the church building. In June 1747, the vestry directed the churchwardens to "employ some person to tare [tar] Peterville Church all over." The following month, Thomas Harvey was chosen to install shutters on the five windows of the church. In November 1756, Wade Netherland was paid £5 for 150 panes of glass for the church and Joseph Epperson was paid £6.10.0 for installing and glazing the windows. In December 1759, Roger Hill was paid to remove old glass from Peterville.

Some changes were made to the structure when John Mayo and Benjamin Mosby were given permission in 1761 to install galleries in the southeast and northwest corners. The vestry advised that the galleries could not "prejudice" the building and further stipulated that the galleries could actually be removed at the discretion of the vestry. Just a year later, the vestry expanded Peterville by adding a section thirty feet by twenty-four feet to the center of the north side. During this addition, the entire roof was reshingled. In September 1763, the vestry budgeted £78 to pay Walter Keeble for this construction, however, nearly a year and a half passed before the payment was imminent in February 1765. Three porches were approved in 1766 for which Benjamin Mosby was paid £20.9.9 in March 1767. That sum also included payment for other work as well as supplying bread and wine for church services. Some leaks had developed by 1769, so necessary repairs were approved.

Nearly a decade passed before additional work was done to the building. In August 1778, John Netherland was chosen to "make new shutters to Peterville Church windows, put in glass where it is missing and make new steps to the doors and other necessary repairs that are wanting to the said Church." For a church that was nearing 50 years old, it is remarkable that so little was needed to keep it in repair.

After the Revolutionary War when the Episcopal Church was disestablished, several congregations shared the church. Later, it served a Baptist congregation until it was abandoned. The building burned in 1850.[16] Traces of the foundation and some gravestones in the cemetery are all that remain today. The site can be reached by walking over a pond dam north into the woods about .1 mile east of the intersection and about .1 mile north of the highway.

Peterville was Southam's only church when the parish was formed. Not surprisingly, the vestry's first items of business were the building of two chapels. For this, the vestry set a levy of £65 and 26000 pounds of tobacco and selected two sites.

The land of Daniel Coleman was chosen as the most convenient location for a chapel to serve the residents of the southwestern area of the parish.[17] The rather distinctive name of Tar Wallet for the new chapel derived from an incident involving a hog drover who stopped to rest under a tree. While he napped, a hog tore into the drover's wallet, a bag for holding food or clothing. Upon awakening, the drover chased away the hog, vowing he would teach that hog to "tear his wallet."[18] Other versions of the story include a dog tearing into the lunch wallets of men building an arbor and hogs getting into the feed wallets of horses.[19] In any case, the area took the name of Tear Wallet, with a creek and several churches bearing that name. Tear Wallet evolved into Tar Wallet, with the community making a distinction between the two names.[20]

Tar Wallet Chapel was ordered to be 40 feet by 20 feet with detailed specifications for the roof, windows, shutters, benches, and floor. These directions also provide an accurate description of Peterville Church because the chapel was directed to be built to the "same Dimentions of Peterville." Thomas Harvey was contracted to build Tar Wallet Chapel which was located near the current location of the Tar Wallet Baptist Church on Tar Wallet Road southwest of the village of Cumberland Courthouse.

Expenses were incurred for the construction and maintenance of Tar Wallet Chapel. Final payment of £16.16.9 was made to Thomas Harvey in September 1748. In January 1750, Daniel Coleman Jr. was paid for some repairs to Tar Wallet. In December 1754, the recent work at Tar Wallet was accepted. In November 1756, Humphrey Keeble was paid for 4 sets of horse blocks and two steps at the church. A gallery was added in 1757 and a variety of repairs were made through the years. Windows were fixed, horse blocks were installed, and a communion table was built.

When Littleton Parish was formed in 1772, this chapel left the jurisdiction of Southam Parish. After the Revolutionary War, the church was a "free" building which all denominations could use it. Presbyterians, Methodists, and Baptists all shared expenses. The building underwent a variety of changes and was eventually demolished.[21]

The first vestry also hired Abraham Martin to construct a chapel in the northwestern area of the parish along Pruett's Path and Widow Dillon's Path of 1747. In the Vestry Book, this chapel name appeared as Willis' twice, but thereafter the name was always Ham Chapel. The current location would be approximately at Ashby, north of U.S. Highway 60 along Road 45 at the intersection with Deep Run Road.

It took some time to complete the two chapels. In February 1746, the vestrymen were directed to inspect the chapels when they were finished and to report to the next vestry. It was not until June 1747 that Abraham Martin was paid £33.18.6 as a partial payment for Ham Chapel and Thomas Harvey was paid £34.19.6½. Harvey also built the rails and banisters for the pulpit areas in both chapels, installed horse blocks, and cleared an acre around Tar Wallet Chapel. In July 1747, the vestry directed the churchwardens to pay John Blevings £2 for three acres of land which included Ham Chapel.

Additional modifications and repairs continued. In November 1747, "pieces" were put under the Chapel and an acre of land was cleared around the building. In January 1748, horse blocks were installed at the Chapel by Michael Johnson. In December 1754, recent work done at Ham Chapel was accepted. In February 1755, a gallery was to be added to the building. £13.6 was paid for the gallery in November 1756. In December 1757, Joseph Epperson was paid for work.. Other changes were made to the Chapel as needed. The pulpit was moved, benches added, shutters changed. In order to obtain a clear title to the property, the vestry paid for a survey of the tract.

Like Tar Wallet Chapel, Ham Chapel fell into Littleton Parish in 1772. There is no church building of any kind at the original location of Ham Chapel and even its name has passed out of the memory of local residents.

While the two new chapels were under construction, the vestry eagerly decided in 1746 to build yet another one. South Chapel, also called Lower Chapel and Worley's, was located in the southeast area of the parish, off Buckingham Road near present day Flat Rock. This location had been a "reading place" for many years prior to the construction of this chapel, so the location was a natural choice.

James Anderson won the bid in June 1747 and, in September 1748, with the chapel nearing completion, the building was inspected. However, finishing touches were not made until December 1749.

Fortunately, South Chapel still survives today. The church was Protestant Episcopal from 1784-1791, then reopened in 1794 as a Methodist Episcopal church. It was formally deeded as Rocky Oak Methodist Church in 1814 by Elisha Maxey. It survives today as a house of worship for a Holiness congregation.[22]

It was the responsibility of the vestry to provide a residence for the minister called the glebe. At the formation of Southam Parish in 1745, the current glebe land was determined "to be very inconvenient by Reason of its Remoteness from the Centre of the Parish," so the vestry petitioned the Virginia General Assembly to purchase a different piece of property.[23] William Randolph and George Carrington, as churchwardens, patented 340 acres for a glebe on June 3, 1745.[24] However, for some reason, the patent did not take effect. Meanwhile, the petition to the Assembly was granted and the old glebe land of 340 acres which was located southwest of Peterville Church was sold to William Smith by January 1747 for £53.10.0.[25]

Since there was not a suitable glebe for the minister, Rev. Robertson was allowed 2000 pounds of tobacco for his housing in 1747. Meanwhile the vestry decided to tax the parish 12000 pounds of tobacco to pay for land for a new glebe. They selected the land of John Lightfoot, paying him £90 for 270 acres in November 1747. He was allowed to continue his crop that year as long as he did not interfere with the construction of the new glebe buildings. The glebe land was bounded by Chapel Road and Askew's Path.

In July 1748, the original patent for 340 acres was granted again to the current churchwardens, Nicholas Davies and Thomas Turpin.[26] Public notice was given for bidders to build a house 42 feet by 20 feet with 2 brick chimneys. To pay for the new glebe and its outbuildings, 15000 pounds of tobacco were levied in the parish in January 1748. In May 1748, vestryman Nicholas Davies was awarded the contract to build the glebe house. The specifications are very detailed, down to the nails to be used and a "good spring lock" on the front door.

Davies did not comply with the contract. In both 1749 and 1750, Rev. Robertson was again allowed 2000 pounds of tobacco for lack of a glebe house. Finally, the vestrymen decided to bring a suit against Davies for damages for having to provide the minister with payment for lack of a glebe. Perhaps the threat of the suit spurred Davies to complete the glebe house because the vestry ordered that the house be accepted and payment made. Nicholas Davies was paid £190.6.4 for the glebe house by the May 1752 vestry.

In April 1750, several buildings were ordered for the glebe land. An old building that already existed on the property was ordered to be moved and renovated for a kitchen. Other buildings to be constructed on the glebe land included a smoke house, dairy, stable, henhouse, and an office, along with a fenced garden. In September 1751, a corn house was ordered for which Abraham Salley was paid £4.17.6 in May 1752. Rev. Robertson left Southam Parish before the glebe was completed, so the first minister to live there was Rev. McLaurine beginning in 1752.

In January 1754, a building 16 feet square with an exterior chimney was ordered, probably intended for slave quarters, to be built by John Baskerville. Then work was done to repair the cellar of the glebe in December 1754. In August 1755, the glebe buildings were to be tarred, and the main house was to be whitewashed and painted. The garden was repaired in April 1756. An additional garden the same size was ordered in November 1756. Work done on the glebe is mentioned again in December 1757. In 1759, a new kitchen was built. Repairs and minor improvements continued periodically. The record shows that the vestry invested in keeping the glebe property in good condition.

In 1807, John Hyde Saunders bought the glebe and 200 acres for $1000 to adjoin his 512-acre tract. Over the next century, the tract was sold numerous times and fell into disrepair. In 1954, the property was renovated by the Mason family.[27] Today, the glebe is a beautifully maintained private residence at the end of a drive, north of U. S. Highway 60 opposite County Road 627. It is one of the very few colonial glebes to survive and is much cherished by the community.[28] Considering that all of these early parish buildings were constructed of wood in the damp climate of Virginia's woodlands, it remarkable that two of these colonial structures are still in use today.

The Ministers

The ministers who served Southam Parish during the period of this vestry book were Rev. John Robertson, Rev. Robert McLaurine, and Rev. John Hyde Saunders. Rev. William Stith preached on a temporary basis in 1745.

The first minister of the new parish was John Robertson. He was licensed to preach in January 1746, and received a bounty of £20 for migrating to the colony in February 1746.[29] At the vestry meeting on 30 June 1746, Robertson was recommended to the parish Governor William Gooch and the Reverend William Dawson, Commissary of Virginia. He had been ordained by the Bishop of London one year earlier.[30] Robertson served Southam Parish from 1746 through 11 November 1751. He then moved to King William County were he served as the minister for St. John's Parish from 1752 until 1758.[31]

At the December 1751 vestry, Rev. Robert McLaurine (recorded as Mcklearing) was received on a probationary basis. Licensed by the Bishop of London in August 1750, he had received a bounty the following month.[32] In May 1752, the vestry accepted Robertson, beginning a tenure which lasted over twenty years. Born in Scotland about 1717, McLaurine married Elizabeth Blaikley (Blakeley), a daughter of William Blaikley and Catherine Weldon about 1753 in Cumberland County. At his death in July 1773, McLaurine was buried beneath the chancel floor of Peterville Church. Pioneer historian Bishop William Mead noted McLaurine for his piety and benevolence.[33]

After Rev. McLaurine's death, several ministers applied for the position. Jesse Carter, James Oglesby, and John Hyde Saunders all preached on a trial basis during 1773. Saunders became the parish minister and was paid for 1773 through 1776. No minister was paid after 1776. A son of John Hyde Saunders, he was born about 1746 in Cumberland County, and attended the College of William and Mary but was asked to leave the college in 1762.[34] He journeyed to England but returned to Virginia. Saunders married Rachel Bentley in May 1775 in Amelia County, Virginia. He served Southam Parish intermittently from 1773 through at least 1791. During the American Revolution, he took the side of the patriots and served on the county Committee of Safety. He died in Powhatan County in 1817.[35]

The Vestry Records

Upon the formation of Southam Parish, the vestry met every year for 40 years from 1745 through 1785 except the four years of 1753, 1764, 1768, and 1784. However, payments to the creditors were made for every year through 1784, except 1774, though occasionally a little late. Exactly seventy meetings are recorded here. After 1785, the vestry did not meet again until 1791. After 1792, the Episcopal Church was disestablished, so no further vestry records were kept. More than half of the vestry meetings took place at the county courthouse, but some were held at Peterville Church. The other meeting places were the glebe and the homes of Benjamin Childrey, Robert Murray, and William Prosser, while nine meeting places were not stated.

— not on map; 1792

Parish business was conducted at the vestry meetings in four general categories. The vestry paid creditors by laying a levy on the parish tithables, they issued a variety of orders, they divided the parish into precincts for processioning, and they recorded the processioning returns. The records of the meetings were made by the clerk of the vestry. For each vestry meeting, several dates are applicable: the current date of the meeting, the past accounts which are being settled, and the future appointments for positions. See Appendix B for a list of meeting dates and the business of the meetings.

Most parish positions were salaried. Though vestrymen and churchwardens were not paid, the minister, clerk of the vestry, church clerks, sextons, and tax collector were paid in tobacco. The minister's salary of 16,000 pounds of tobacco (plus 640 pounds for the casks) was the largest expense of the parish other than the church buildings. The minister's salary was mandated by law in 1696 and remained fixed during most of the time period of this record.[36] It increased to 17,280 pounds of tobacco about 1773. At one of the highest levies of 52,836 pounds of tobacco in 1749, the minister's salary comprised over 31% of the parish budget; and at one of the lowest levies of 31,152 pounds in 1755, the minister received over 50% of the parish levy.

The parish was responsible for taking care of the poor and disabled, so payments were made to the poor or to local residents who cared for the needy. Construction and repairs of the chapels and glebe buildings all cost the parish.

In order to pay the vestry bills, the vestrymen "laid a levy" on every taxable person in the parish. The levy was collected in tobacco which was then sold for cash. An analysis of the Southam Parish levy for the years 1745 through 1784 is enlightening. Beginning in 1745, the number of tithables in the parish was 1207. Through the next twenty-five years, the number of tithables steadily increased to 3288 in 1771. In 1772, Littleton Parish was removed from Southam with the goal of equally dividing the tax base. They were successful. In 1772, the Southam levy was laid on only 1638 tithables. Through 1784, the number increased very little to 1800 tithables.

As the tax base more than doubled, levies decreased accordingly; the 1745 levy was set at 33 of tobacco, but by 1771 had dropped to 15 pounds. At the same time, the levy for the county government was between 6 and 10 pounds.[37] So, it is obvious that this religious tax was burdensome to the taxpayers.

After the division with Littleton Parish, the levy remained between 20 and 33 pounds of tobacco. However, significant changes occurred with revolutionary times. After the war started, the levy plummeted to 3 pounds of tobacco per levy because no minister was being paid. The next few levies of 2 through 6 pounds of tobacco were quite reduced from pre-Revolutionary years. See Appendix C for the yearly number of tithes, the levy per tithe, and the total levy.

Cash money during colonial times was in British pounds sterling (£). One pound was worth 20 shillings, and one shilling was worth 12 pence. For example, £6.15.4 meant 6 pounds sterling, 15 shillings, and 4 pence. The notation 15/4 means 15 shillings and 4 pence. Throughout this volume, the price of tobacco varied, probably depending on the quality. One hundred pounds of tobacco was priced between 11 and 15 shillings. £100 was worth 15000 pounds of tobacco. The tobacco levied on the parish was collected, shipped to a warehouse, and sold for cash.

Accounts were generally settled by the vestry at the end of each calendar year in November or December or in the first two months of the next year in January or February (33 times). A few times, the accounts were settled in other months: September (1 time), March (4 times), and May (1 time).

A second type of parish business recorded in the vestry meetings was the issuing of orders. Orders included positions of authority or responsibility, construction and repair orders, care of the poor or needy, and so forth.

However, the two remaining types of parish records, processioning orders and processioning returns, make up more than 60% of this book.

Processioning was a procedure to formally determine and agree on the boundaries between property owners. The vestry assigned leaders in each precinct to walk the property lines with all the landowners and to report back to the vestry with agreements and disagreements duly included. Following the law, the vestry ordered processioning of the property lines every four years beginning in 1747, except 1767. The processioning years were 1747, 1751, 1755, 1759, 1763, 1771, 1775, 1779, and 1783. The returns from the precincts were recorded in 1748, 1756, 1760, 1765, 1772, and 1780. No returns were recorded for 1752, 1776, or 1784.

The development of the parish is evident in the processioning orders. In 1747, the vestrymen divided the parish into 34 precincts of various sizes, from small to rather large. The number of precincts slightly increased during the next five processionings: 35 in 1751, 40 in 1755, 41 in 1759, 41 in 1763, and 43 in 1771. When the parish was divided to form Littleton Parish, the number of precincts dropped to 19 for all the remaining processionings.

The value of the processioning returns lies in the detailed naming of the property owners. Since each person's property could be bounded by several other people, the names of adjoining landowners and neighbors should appear in accurate processioning returns. Unfortunately, the processioners did not fully comply with their orders. While some returns do indeed contain complete lists of names, others report none, simply stating that all was performed "in peace and quietness." The process of processioning appears to have been quite successful; only twice were disputes mentioned in the vestry book, and those were quickly resolved.

Additionally, the rate of returns varied widely through the years. For example, in 1747, 62% of the precincts are properly reported, falling to 54% in 1775, and dropping further in 1759 to a mere 34%. The rate reached its highest at 80% in 1763 and then fell to its lowest at 14% in 1771. After the separation with Littleton, two of the three processionings had no returns while the one set of returns only reported back 47% of the precincts.

On the whole, the vestry proceedings are ordinary and repetitive. However, some unusual entries are found. At the January 27, 1766, vestry, Thomas Fretwell Freeman, longtime clerk for Ham Chapel, was ordered to appear at the next vestry as a "person of disorder" and to answer to the vestry. No disposition to this charge was recorded and Freeman continued to be paid until his death in 1769. Thomas Hall, the clerk of South Chapel, was also charged in August 1775 with neglecting his duty, so he was summoned to appear before the vestry. There is no further mention made of this charge.

The December 22nd 1762 vestry authorized the payment of 112 pounds of tobacco to purchase copies of the acts of the Virginia Assembly to be read in the churches. In January 1776, John Watts was paid £4.0.6 for "removing Judith May, a poor person, to Antrim Parish, Halifax County." Some other interesting entries are sums paid to Francis Amoss for sundries "supplied his father's family in the time they had the smallpox." Thomas Strange was paid for several years for the support of his two "unfortunate" children. Dr. William Cable was paid the extraordinary sum of £36.9.4 for "keeping and trying to cure Stephen Holland for a cancer in his mouth." The vestry also collected a few fines for swearing. In 1765 and 1766, the Tax Collector collected 15 shillings for "several oaths," 10 shillings for 2 oaths, and £1 for 4 oaths.

In 1770, in order to address the continuing issue of care of the poor, the vestry decided to purchase some land to build a poorhouse. Littleberry Mosby, William Fleming, and George Carrington Jr. were directed to buy no more than 100 acres for this purpose. However, no further mention was made of a poorhouse.

When Littleton Parish was created in 1772, Southam was required to pay the new parish their portion of the tithes.

Editorial Notes and Method

For this transcription of the Southam Parish Vestry Book, I used a microfilm copy of the photostat copy of the original book prepared by the Library of Virginia. The location of the original vestry book is not currently known though it has been thought to be in the Powhatan County Courthouse. After 1792, the book was used for nonparish processioning records for 1803 through 1838. The Powhatan County Courthouse has a different photocopy of the vestry book. The Library's copy is probably close to the size of the original, a large bound volume about 9.5 inches by 14.625 inches. For unknown reasons, the first 20 pages are slightly smaller at 8.75 by 13.875 inches. The first leaf of the vestry book is missing from both copies, so this transcription begins with page three.

For the researcher who wishes to refer to the original book, the page numbers have been denoted in brackets [ ]. Unfortunately, the pages were renumbered at some later time and there are now two different page numbers on most of the pages. The number on the outside edge of the page has been used here. The microfilm is available for patrons as Miscellaneous Record 2288.

Throughout this book, the handwriting of the vestry clerks is wonderfully legible. Style decisions, however, were needed for the printed transcription. My overall philosophy has been to change as little of the original record as possible. Attempting to preserve the flavor of colonial writing, I have retained superscripts, capital letters, and spelling. To aid in reading the names of individuals, commas and capitalization have been added. Punctuation has been modernized. Flourishes, long dashes, and decorative marks have been omitted. Spelling in the original book is, not surprisingly, haphazard. Vestry clerk Robert Walton is notably the worst speller in recording the 1747 processioning returns.

This vestry book covers the time period when the method of recording dates was changed. Through 1751, the first day of the year was considered to be March 25 with January and February as the last months of the year. So, January and February were written in a different style, for example, January 13, 1750/1 would mean January 13, 1751 to modern readers. Calendar reform finally reached the colonies in September 1752 when 11 days were removed from the calendar and the first day of the year was set at January 1. Prior to September 1752, the vestry meetings dated for the months of January and February may appear to be out of order, but the reader should realize that those meetings actually should be numbered with the next year. Dates after September 1752 are in the modern form.

This vestry book holds a special interest for me because three of my Virginia ancestors are included in its pages. What a marvel to find familiar names and allied families going about their lives not knowing that a granddaughter many generations removed would put their names into print two and a half centuries later.

This project would only be possible with the help of many people. The editor wishes to make grateful acknowledgment to the Library of Virginia for their contributions to this book; to John Blomquist for his computer wizardry; and to Tate Blomquist for her patient proofreading.

The 1777 Map

In 1777, the residents of the eastern half of Cumberland County petitioned the Virginia General Assembly for a new county to be called Powhatan. Since the dividing line between Southam Parish and Littleton Parish had been a successful separation in 1772, the same line was used to divide the counties.

Probably as part of the petition to the Assembly, a map of Cumberland County was drawn in 1777, showing the proposed dividing line and some landmarks.[38] This map is a very early county map in the collection of the Library of Virginia. Interestingly, the map is drawn "upside down" with north at the bottom of the page and south at the top. This map clearly shows the original shape of Cumberland County with completely straight eastern and western county boundaries. The following is written on the map:

The computed diffrance from the court house to the upper point is thirty five miles, and to the lesser point is now more than Twenty two, in the upper Point are chiefly Negro Quarters there very few white People there more than twenty five Miles from the Court house.

230 acres, a new listing, on the south side of the James River, adjacent to Captain Abraham Salle on the north side of Lower Manakin Town Creek. His land was on the line of Bartholowmew Dupee and was listed as being part of the lower part of the last 5,000 acres for the French refugees. The date was March 23, 1715.

In the last division of the 10,000 acres granted to the Huguenots, a tract of 133 acres was the average given to each settler. There exist in the records many of the 133-acre grants: Abraham Salle (March 23, 1715); Stephen Renno (same date); John Jones, who must have married a French refugee to get the acreage; Jacob Florenoy (Flournoy), etc. Listings for the French indicate the 10,000 acres given them were all within the original grant.[13] A complete listing of those that may pertain to the eventual formation of Powhatan County follows this book and is of value to those who wish to discover the early grants relating to this county.

In the appendix that covers land grants or purchases, several things come to light about early settlements. The position of the land was often somewhere between someone's land line or adjacent to someone else's land or line. There are antiquarians who spend much time researching this necessary work. Lack of analysis gives no demographic picture of the land holdings or the pattern of development.

Except for unusual cases, most land grants fall into two catagories for Powhatan. First, the 133-acre grants portioned to the French from the 10,000 grant. Second were the 400-acre grants that prevail in the records. There are many instances of other size grants, but 400 acres seemed to be the usual size. Large grants were specially mentioned and involved planters who wanted to use the grant for future exploitation or settlement.

The price of land was about one shilling for every ten acres of land granted or patented in Henrico or Goochland County, for the period from 1700 to 1732. Any attempt to fix a comparative value of the eighteenth-century shilling to modern purchase price would be subject to individual interpretation. Subject to revision, however, the value of the shilling was about $7 in modern purchasing power. This would make the purchase of 400 acres about $300—a large sum for the time, especially since there was little currency in circulation in the eighteenth century. This lack of cash was one of the great criticisms that the provincials in America had in the 1750's and 1760's. At that time, the British government began to demand specie payment on debts owed the English and Scot merchants. Therefore, early large grants that were purchased for £2, or £5 were expensive indeed. Not every settler could afford $300 for 400 acres of land, and the purchase of such a sizeable patent was one of the largest single investments made by a family.

The large grants of future Powhatan County show the names that would be important in subsequent politics. The settlers lived elsewhere, and the grant was an "up country" hedge against a time when they wished to move, as older lands were exhausted by excessive tobacco planting. The large grants meant that people based their activities in the area, but lived elsewhere. Many wealthy people, like William Byrd, who took grants in this area, never lived in what is now Powhatan. Some of the large grants do indicate future settlement. John Woodson took 1,596 acres in the Genito area in 1715; James Pleasants got 258 and 1,309 acres in the area around the mouth of Fine Creek; and the company composed of Thomas Jefferson, Thomas Turpin, John Archer, and Robert Easeley, got a grant of 1,500 acres in the same area in 1718. The listing of a company of investors indicated speculation and resale. John Bolling got a grant of 800 acres adjacent to the land of Abraham Michaux in the Michaux-Maidens area in 1718 and then another grant of 2,407 acres, including his original 800, in July of 1718.[14] On June 3, 1722, Thomas Randolph of Tuckahoe got a grant for 620 acres on the Willis River and another 1,000-acre grant on Fine Creek, near the company that was formed by Turpin, Jefferson, Archer, and Easley.[15] On October 23, 1725, he got another 2,600 acres on Fine Creek and 400 additional acres on February 9, 1727. The last 400 acres were listed as being further upriver in the valley of Muddy Creek opposite to Major Bolling's island.[16] But "Major" Thomas Randolph of Tuckahoe did not keep all his southside land and on June 8, 1727, sold the 2,600 acres on Fine Creek to Daniel Stoner. The 1,000-acre grant and the 400 acres on Muddy Creek went to William Maye. The builder of Tuckahoe died in 1730.[17]

Justices

Captain Bowler Cocke, listed as a gentleman, began his ownership of Powhatan land in 1727 with an 800-acre grant on the west side of Deep Creek. Later, in June of 1731, Cocke got another 2,400 acres on Muddy Creek adjacent to the land he already had there. The cost was £12. It may be that most of this land fell into Cumberland.

~~(Note: It is difficult to identify the chosen locality on the DeLorme VA atlas. I looked for David, Wolf & Bridle Creeks of the Appomattox. Many do, most not named on the map (no David or Bridle.) The ones that do are usually called "branch" not Creek. "Wolf's Branch" parallels US Hwy 460 a few miles somewhat NE of Amelia Co. Courthouse, then empties into the Appomattox at Chesterfield western Co. line.)~~ (Area seems sparsely populated.)

Nov 1993 - Note: The Campbell Co. branch probably not related to Raney Chastain, but he was an interesting Person.

JOSEPH CABELL (4), son of Col. Joseph Cabell (2), was born 6 January 1762, went with his father to Kentucky in 1811, settled in Henderson County, and died there on 31 August 1831. He married Pocahontas Rebecca Bolling, daughter of Robert Bolling of "Chellowe," Buckingham County.

At first he was taught by tutors, and was at Hampton-Sydney in 1778 and 1779, and at William and Mary College from 4 May 1779 to 1781. He belonged to the company of students attached to the regiment of Col. Joseph Cabell, the elder. By 1787 he was captain of a militia company. He was the subject of a deed in Hanover County, Virginia, dated 12 June 1789. (See "Records of Hanover County," William and Mary Quarterly, 1st series, XXI, 145).

The will of Joseph Cabell of Madison County, Kentucky, signed 16 June 1827, was proved in Henderson County, Kentucky at the October 1831 Court. A copy was furnished to the author by Mrs. Mary Lillian Eubank Sullivan of Nashville, Tennessee. Joseph Cabell named the following heirs: wife Ann E. Cabell; daughter Jane R. Allen; sons John B., Robert B., George W., and Richard R. Cabell; son Benjamin W. S. Cabell of Virginia and his wife Sarah E. Cabell; daughter Sophonisba E. Grayson; son Edward B. Cabell; grandson Joseph Cabell Meredith; daughters Mary Ann H. Cabell, Jane R. Allen, and Elizabeth R. Pollett; children by former marriages have already been provided for but are remembered with paternal affection. Executors were to be his wife Ann E. Cabell and son John B. Cabell. The witnesses were: F. E. Walker, Tandy K. Perry, and Gabriel Lilly, Jr.

See: Alexander Brown, The Cabells and Their Kin (Boston: Houghton Mifflin and Co., 1895).
Will of Joseph Cabell (2) is in the Archives Division, Virginia State Library, Richmond.

THE CANNON FAMILY

WILLIAM CANNON of Buckingham County married first Sarah Mosby, daughter of Col. Littleberry Mosby by his Netherland marriage. Cannon married second to Martha Cocke, fourth child of James Cocke. Her marriage was recorded in Amelia County on 24 June 1790.

William Cannon of Buckingham is mentioned several times in Hening's Statutes at Large, and seems to have been a man of influence. Towards the close of his life he lost his home, "Mount Ida," in Buckingham County, probably around 1804 or 1805, and in 1807 migrated to Nashville, Davidson County, Tennessee with his sons John, James, and William (by his econd marriage). In 1820 or about that time he moved to Caldwell County, Kentucky, and settled near the "Big Spring on Indian Camp Creek." He died that year and is buried in the Catlett or Bennett graveyard on a farm near Princeton, Kentucky, in an unmarked grave.

William's daughter by his first wife was Martha, who married Silas Flournoy (See The Flournoy Family, below).

THE CHASTAIN FAMILY

Rev. RENE CHASTAIN, a Baptist minister of French extraction, was born in Powhatan County, Virginia, on 28 June 1741. While he was still young the family moved to Buckingham County, where they lived for the rest of their lives. When Rene was 19 years old he married Ann Ford, daughter of James Ford, Sr., and granddaughter of Pierre Faure who emigrated to Virginia.

Rene Chastain m. Ann Ford, in Buckingham Co.
(age 19)

"Faure" became "Ford" in 2nd generation

Buckingham County

On 28 February 1761 James Ford of Tillotson Parish, Albemarle County (later Buckingham County) conveyed 100 acres of land on the Slate River to Ann Chastain. (Albemarle County Records).

Soon after his marriage Rene Chastain was awakened "to the exercise of a pungent conviction of sin," by the preaching of Elder C. Clark. In August 1770 he rejoiced in Christ, was baptized and immediately began to preach. He was ordained in Buckingham Church in April 1772, was at once chosen pastor and continued for 53 years, as long as he lived. At different times he supplied Cumberland, Providence, and Mulberry Churches.

Reverend JOHN CHASTAIN (known as "Ten Shilling Bill") and Mary O'Bryan (or O'Brien) were married about 1765 in Buckingham County, Virginia, and moved to Pickens County, South Carolina.

THE CHRISTIAN FAMILY

THOMAS CHRISTIAN (1), the progenitor, was in Virginia by 21 October 1687 when as "Mr. Thomas Christian" he patented 1080 acres of land in Charles City County. In 1694 he was called "Thomas Christian, Sr.," when he patented 193 acres in Chickahominy Swamp. The word "Sr." may indicate that he had a son Thomas who was already of age. Thomas Christian, Sr., may have been the father of: THOMAS; CHARLES; JAMES; JOHN.

THOMAS CHRISTIAN (2), probably son of Thomas (1), patented land in 1712 and 1727 in the forks of Beaver Dam Creek in that part of Henrico County that was Goochland. His will was proved in Goochland County in 1736. He married Rebecca (~~perhaps a daughter~~ of Drury Stith). He patented 1320 acres of land on 16 December 1714. His children were: THOMAS; ROBERT; WILLIAM (of Albemarle County); JAMES; CONSTANT; REBECCA; ANN; and MOURNING, who married Mr. Coleman.

CHARLES CHRISTIAN (3), probably son of Thomas (1) of Charles City County also located on land in Goochland County in 1714 and 1727.

JAMES CHRISTIAN (4), probably son of Thomas (1), located on land adjacent to Thomas Christian in 1719.

JOHN CHRISTIAN (5), probably son of Thomas (1), was on land in the same vicinity in 1724.

JAMES CHRISTIAN (6), son of Thomas (2), died in Goochland County leaving a will dated 18 May 1752 and proved 15 June 1759. He named his wife Susannah and James Christian as executors. His heirs were named in a lawsuit (Christian's devisees vs. Christian and others, in Munford's Reports, 6:534); his children were: CHARLES, died 1761 without surviving issue; JAMES, died 1794 without issue; JOHN, of Buckingham County, married Joyce (---) and was living in 1805; GEORGE, died c.1784/5.

Captain Henry Christian, whose will was proved in Amherst County on 17 June 1805, married Martha Patteson. He was captain of a company of Minute Men of Buckingham District (which was made up of Amherst, Buckingham, Albemarle, and East Augusta Counties); he was also captain of a company in the Revolutionary War, and was in active service under Col. Daniel Gaines and Major General Lafayette. (H. H. Hardesty, Geographical Historical Encyclopedia, Special Amherst County, Virginia Edition (1884), pp. 409-411).

George Christian, son of John, grandson of William, lived at "Mountain View," in Appomattox County, formerly a part of Buckingham County. He married Joyce Duiguid, sister of the wife of William Christian, and had Dr. William Duiguid, and a daughter Mildred Collier who died in infancy.

Re: Rev Rene Chastain, Pioneer Baptist Minister

Chapter 3

The Early Church in Buckingham

Virginia, being a royal colony, was organized under the established :hurch of England. The political and religious needs of this area were ıdministered by Albemarle County and St. Anne's Parish.

This arrangement did not please the people of Buckingham at all ecause of the distance most of them had to travel over poor roads to e properly represented either judicially or religiously. They petitioned he House of Burgesses on March 2, 1759, to create both a new county nd a new parish. Their petition was rejected. However, the persistence f the more remote residents of Albemarle paid off when on March 30, 761, "Mr. Charles Carter, from the Committee of Propositions and rievances, presented to the House according to order a bill for dividing ıe county of Albemarle and Parish of St. Anne, and for other purposes ıerein mentioned."[1]

The House approved the bill on April 1, 1761, and again on April 6. he next day the Executive Council of Colonial Virginia agreed to the ill and on April 10, 1761, the Governor signed this bill creating both uckingham County and Tillotson Parish.[2]

Most of the early records of the parish, like the county, have been st. Something is known, however, about the first minister, William :asley. He received a 20-pound King's bounty to come to the New orld in 1742-43. His first two assignments were with the Society for e Propagation of the Gospel in Newland, Canada, and in 1751, St. elen's in South Carolina. Ill health forced him to resign from this tter post in 1756. The next reference to Reverend Peasley has him at llotson Parish in 1771 at an annual salary of 17,280 pounds of bacco. Reverend Peasley appears to have remained in Buckingham ıtil at least 1778.[3]

The close relationship between the British government and the :ablished religion caused great suspicion among Virginians who posed the Church of England. Ministers were appointed by London t were supported by the local citizens. A tax, in tobacco, was levied en on non-members of the church.

The lack of local control and a government guaranteed salary made ıny of the clergymen less than responsive to the needs of their con- :gations. The political friction between Britain and Virginia was lected in the relationship between these clergymen and the colonists. the revolutionary spirit began to grow in Virginians, there were calls throw these loyalist preachers from the pulpit. The success of these empts can be seen in a lament of an Episcopal bishop who wrote:

"In 1776 there were 91 clergymen, officiating in 164 churches and chapels; at the close of the Revolution only 28 ministers were found . . ."[4]

The overthrow of British political rule did not bring with it the overthrow of the English religious system. Even after American independence the Episcopal Church was viewed as the official state church of Virginia. A struggle ensued between the wealthy, eastern politicians who favored maintaining the favored position of the established church, and the pioneering, western Virginians who belonged to churches such as the Baptist and the Methodist.

On October 11, 1776, Prince Edward County petitioned the House of Burgesses for disestablishment asking that they ". . . raise religious as well as civil liberty to the zenith of glory, and make Virginia an asylum for free inquiry, knowledge, and the virtuous of every denomination."[5]

Eleven days later, on October 22, 1776, the dissenters from Amherst and Albemarle joined with those of Buckingham to request disestablishment. In this petition the dissenters claimed that they ". . . have never been on an equal footing with the other good people of this colony in respect to religious privileges . . ."; that they had been forced to support the established church while ". . . at the same time they were moved, from a principle of conscience, to support the church of which they call themselves members."[6] The petition further states that the dissenters submitted to this injustice because it was the duty of ". . . peaceable and loyal subjects." However, since Virginia was no longer dependent on the crown, a ". . . form of government should be new modelled . . ." under which ". . . our liberty, our all, must be defended against unjust violators thereof, and that therefore all should enjoy equal privilege."[7]

They concluded by impressing the House with their ". . . sense of the great injustice contained in the establishing of any one religious denomination of people"; and their request to ". . . put every religious denomination on an equal footing to be supported by themselves, independent of one another."[8]

After a month of debate, the House adopted, on November 19, 1776, a resolution stating that ". . . the petitions of the several dissenters as desires an exemption from all taxes and contributions whatever towards supporting the said church . . . is reasonable."[9] This non-binding resolution was replaced by a bill on December 5, 1776, which exempted dissenters from supporting the established church, but all religious assemblies and the conduct of all ministers were still under government scrutiny.[10]

The release of the dissenters from the church tax brought a flood of petitions favoring the established church. A Cumberland County petition, speaking about the Baptists, claims the people of Cumberland were ". . . greatly alarmed at the progress which some of the dissenters from the church are daily making . . . by persuading the ignorant and unwary to embrace their erroneous tenets, which [are] . . . subversive to the morals of the people and destructive of the peace of families." Caroline County added ". . . public worship is the duty we owe the Creator . . . it ought to be enjoined and regulated by the legislature. The xpense of the church . . . ought to be defrayed by an equal contribu- ion of all men."[11]

The Episcopal Church launched a counter attack against the dis- enters by attempting to have the legislature declare that any mar- iages solemnized by the Baptist ministers were invalid.

These two issues, support of the established church and the validity f the dissenters' ceremonies, were fought out in the House for the ext six years.

Finally, in 1785, Thomas Jefferson's "Bill for Religious Freedom" as adopted, securing for all the right of free exercise of religion with- ut government interference. Buckingham and the other counties which elped perpetrate and maintain the dissent movement laid a foundation r Jefferson's great document.

The Baptist history in Buckingham County begins in 1770 when a rilliant preacher, Christopher "Kit" Clarke, came to the county. larke was a gifted orator who drew many converts to his faith. How- er, many of these converts soon turned away from the Baptists; ey were, incidentally, joined by Reverend Clarke who himself became Quaker.[12]

One of Reverend Clarke's more successful converts was Rane Chas- in. Chastain had been born in Powhatan County in 1741. In August 70, Chastain accepted the Baptist faith and was baptized. Through s efforts and those of his assistant, William Johnson, both members the Lower Spotsylvania Association, the first Baptist congregation Buckingham met on May 7, 1771. Establishing a church did not ply a building constructed solely as a place of worship. The first ptist congregation in Buckingham met in a ". . . bower and Seat" lled "Cason-seats."[13]

In April 1772, Chastain was ordained and chosen as the pastor of e Buckingham Church. Reverend Chastain spent the remainder of his e, 53 years, ministering to the souls of Buckingham, Cumberland, ovidence, and Mulberry Grove Churches in Buckingham County. He ed to set an example of the virtues of poverty and hard work to the ople of the county. The citizens of Buckingham were used to seeing nisters of the Established Church living comfortably on the glebe ds supplied from their taxes. Reverend Chastain would always refrain from imploring his congregation for support. Instead, he ". . . spent his days behind a plow team," and often remarked ". . . if the Lord will keep me humble, the churches will keep me poor."[14]

The evangelical spirit of these early ministers could not be suppressed by any means. When Chesterfield County prohibited the Baptists from holding meetings and imprisoned preachers who did, Chastain went to the Chesterfield Court House to baptize the county's converts. He was ordered to leave the county or suffer imprisonment. Chastain's only response was to name the site at which he had chosen to preach that day. Arriving at the designated spot, Chastain was challenged by a man who threatened to whip the preacher if he would not share a drink. The minister simply told the man that he had no intention of drinking and that his sermon was not very long so the man would not have to wait long to carry out his wish. Chastain's calm, confident manner turned the tormentor from his mission, and the preacher left unharmed.

Reverend Chastain was a man loved and respected by both his congregation and his colleagues. The first meeting of the Separate Baptist Association in Virginia took place in his church and Reverend Chastain was chosen moderator of the James River Baptist Association several times during his lifetime; his name consistently appeared on the roll of messengers from Buckingham to the Association until 1823, the year of his death at age 83. The last words he spoke were, "I have made full proof of my ministry."

Although the Buckingham Church was the first Baptist church in the county, it did not remain the only one for long. Illustrating Semple's description of being a "mother church," Buckingham Baptist soon gave birth to a number of sister houses. Because of the inconvenience of travel from distant parts of the county to the Buckingham Church, many requests for new Baptist churches were heard. Among the earliest ɔf these requests was one from Bent Creek, then known as Coopers-ille. A meeting house had been established there in 1775, which was hared by the Baptists, Presbyterians, and Methodists. Over the years he Baptists began to control the building until, in 1830, it was rganized as Harmony Grove and sent a delegation to the Appomattox aptist Association in 1836. In 1840 the church was enlarged and rganized as Liberty Chapel.[16]

In the short time between 1770 and 1840 the Baptists had grown rom an outlawed group of political troublemakers to one of the domi-ant religious sects in the state, and members from Buckingham hurches consistently led in the Baptist movement.

Before 1771, all Baptists in Virginia belonged to the Sandy Creek aptist Association which met in North Carolina. However, with Rane hastain and William Johnson representing her 52 members, Bucking-am Church joined with eleven other Virginia Baptist churches to form he "General Association of the Separate Baptists in Virginia," which ecause of the length of the title was called the "Rapidan" or "Orange" ssociation.[17]

This association served the Baptist cause usefully for the next hirty years. At the beginning of the nineteenth century, however, roblems began to develop. Because of various local jealousies, the ssociation remained weak. The subjects it could discuss were limited nd the scope of its authority restricted. Ministers complained that ey were called great distances to attend meetings where little positive ction could be expected to take place. Finally, in May 1807, the elegates from four Virginia Baptist Associations met to draw up a new onstitution. The new document gave the Association the right and ower to discuss any matter that was placed before it.[18]

Both Buckingham "Old" Church and Buckingham County contin-ed to play an important role in the state Baptist affairs. The great rides made in Baptist church membership in the county were dealt ith in 1832, when Buckingham Church was joined by Angola, Chest-ıt Grove, Cumberland, Mulberry Grove, Mount Tabor, Fork, Jerusa-m, and Willis Churches in forming the James River Baptist Association, ith the first meeting being held at Buckingham "Old" Church.[19]

However, the religious spirit that began to manifest itself at the ginning of the nineteenth century was not shared by all. For exam-e, in 1807 Bishop John Early undertook a speaking tour of Virginia hich included stops in New Canton on the way to and from Lynch-ırg.

The entries Bishop Early recorded in his diary of this trip reveal me of the attitudes and experiences of the nineteenth century church. or example:

Tuesday, 28th: "To New Canton, I spoke. A Powerful time among Christians and an awful time among the wicked. Some cried and some shouted and some ran away. Oh Lord save the people. Several joined in a covenant to seek their soul's salvation. Oh for better times, my God."[20]

September 22, 1807: "A serious time in the evening at New Canton. I preached on the 13th Luke and 3rd verse (turn from sin or die) and I talked very plain to the people that I had warned faithfully twice. I told them the awful curse they had, and some would die before I preached there again, and the glorious consequences if they would turn to God and serve Him. (And in two months one died with a glass in his hand and another died drunk and cried the devils were ready to drag him to Hell). We had an awful time with the wicked and a happy time with the dear righteous."[21]

December 27, 1807: "The drunkards interrupted us some for I gave them a broadside that morning about dancing Christmas day in New Canton."[22]

December 28, 1807: "I have preached in [New] Canton four times but without much alteration. I never expect to preach there again."[23]

Some Vests lived in Bedford Co. Possibly Martha E. "Patsey" Vest's husband also came from there, though that is not proven.

Map F orients the locale of Campbell as regards other places where our branch of Vests resided. A larger map of Campbell, created from Bedford in 1782 follows. John Vest, probably Patsy's uncle, who later left there for Franklin Co., served 3 years in the Revolutionary War, mostly in General Nathanael Greene's army.

Edward Davison came to Campbell Co. from Buckingham

one of his daughters (before 1790) married Merry Webb — probably related to this man.

(I was under the impression that Merry had moved South to Franklin Co VA or farther.)

It seems Merry Webb name was shared by several generations?

Though way too late to be "ours" these folks were obviously related to them.

FOREWORD

Campbell County, Virginia was formed from Bedford County on 7 Feb 1782 only six years after the Declaration of Independence and was part of that vast frontier of Virginia that witnessed the great movement westward that began just after the close of the American Revolution in 1783.

This book covers the span of 65 years from 1782 to the early part of 1847 when families settled for one or more generations and then watched as one after another of the younger members of the families chose to move into the "Western Country" where there were more opportunities. Many of these migrations were for moves of less than 50 miles but others made the big move to land in Kentucky or the Ohio Territory.

All names in these abstracts have been transcribed as read and the index to this book should be carefully used as spelling was not standard at this time and a clerk might spell the same name two or three different ways in the same document as he recorded it.

There are two dates for each will and they follow the name of the devisee. The first date shows when the will was written and the date after the slash mark (/) denotes the date the will was probated at court. In a few cases the date the will was written was not included as part of the will.

Inventories and Accounts can ofter provide additional genealogical information when there was no will or when a number of years have passed since the writing of the will and there are daughters who have grown up and married, deceased legatees and grandchildren who were not named in the original will. The reader will note that many of the abstracts of these accounts have references to persons other than those listed in the original will and these names are all a part of the index.

Although some of the pages on microfilm are very difficult to read, the reader should consult the microfilm copies or the original documents and make a careful search to see if he/she can find overlooked facts or if the reader can develop a "feeling" for the ancestor who is being researched.

James Vest Sr. (father of Fanny Davison's husband James Vest) and wife Lucretia ( ) Vest sold land in Campbell Co next door to William Childress, sold 200 acres near Seneca Creek and moved farther south. He was among those of "Bedford Co" asking for the new Franklin Co. "because the Courthouse" was up to 40 mi distant. He was deceased before Spring 1793 when David Henry Davison died.

I thought I saw John Kitchen on the list asking for new County of Franklin but misplaced it. He had lived near the Jennings in old Cumberland. Could he be the "Kitchen" in Bedford order book of March 1761?

Our Vests ~~&~~ Dawsons and their kin had come to the area when it was still Bedford Co. When that county was created in 1754, (1) it was immense, including ~~[illegible]~~ parts of Franklin, Pittsylvania, Charlotte, Appomattox and all of Campbell.

By ~~the time~~ 1782 when Campbell County was created (5) revert [Some it was [illegible] early that ~~of [illegible] [illegible]~~ ~~Vest~~ the residents were ~~thinking of moving considering~~ ~~already~~ thinking of moving on. Campbell deeds of 20 Nov. 1788 record ~~[illegible]~~ John Kitchen of Henry County selling land on Stonewall Creek.

This may be part of [illegible] that [illegible] Franklin. [illegible]

He ~~may have gone there to join~~ Abraham ~~[illegible]~~ Jones who had ~~[illegible]~~ ~~[illegible] [illegible] property of Pigg River~~ patented ~~[illegible]~~ 192 acres on the No Fork of Pigg River ~~[illegible]~~. (Abraham & his [illegible] ~~and moved to~~ was in Grayson ~~&~~ by 1796.) ~~The~~ John Vest (~~married to Agnes Dawson~~) had ~~traded his land in~~ swapped his Campbell land for ~~land there also. It was that~~ Franklin land. All these farms were in the part of Henry ~~that became Franklin~~.

~~Even earlier.~~ By 06 Dec 1774 ~~&~~ Meacy Webb's estate does, parents, Meacy Sr & Elizabeth Webb ~~wife Elizabeth & son Meacy [illegible]~~, had patented 2 plats — 225 + 56 acres ~~[illegible]~~ on Smith River (~~[illegible] the boundary between Franklin & Henry — It was~~ then in Pittsylvania — now of in the boundary between Franklin & Henry. Since he died in 1779 it may have been Meacy Jr. who married the Dawson daughter as a late one.

Whatever the case, ~~[illegible] one senses the Dawson sisters~~ one ~~can~~ can sense the strong ~~[illegible]~~ insisting of their wives, the Dawson sisters, that they live within visiting distance!

To top it off, Jesse Vest Sr and wife [illegible] went to join them — after two sons did in 200 ac a main fork of [illegible] Creek 04 Sep 1784.

They are among those patenting [illegible] Franklin ca 1785 — as we have seen, he died before 1793.

XX I do not know whether the two & Meacy Webb [illegible]

We have not had much luck so far in tracing our Mother's ancestry other than her parentage. Virginia ~~[illegible]~~ never kept good vital records, except marriages ~~and~~ (of which only a few from Colonial days have survived). The most reliable (if courthouses didn't burn) are county ~~land~~ deed will books. ~~Towns were scarce~~ It was an agricultural colony, based on tobacco ~~towns scarce~~ which served as currency. Towns were rare, waterfront ~~[illegible]~~ access to market produce was the ideal. Consequently most people were illiterate. ~~[illegible]~~ Couples married early and had many children who often married close neighbors. Increasing population plus the fact that soil that produces tobacco quickly becomes depleted, forced ~~good~~ inland migration upriver even faster than in New England. ~~[illegible]~~ Rapid division of county lines adds to the confusion, though we can tell that our Verts started out up the Appomattox.

Trying ~~to find~~ ~~tracing Mother's~~ the Clopton lineage ~~[illegible]~~ of Mother's father has yielded no success so far. Census from 1820 on plus War of 1812 records tell most of what we know. He had a nice signature, which indicates good upbringing. Conceivably he was ~~from~~ a less well-off descendant of a prominent Bedford Co. family, ~~though~~ but if so the links are missing. My theory is that his mother was widowed early, remarried, and that he was brought to Washington Co VA as a youngster. He ~~wasn't yet~~ was not yet 20 when he married her 17-year old mother and promptly marched off to the War of 1812

about WA Co. officer Robert Craig
2 mi So of Abingdon

About Robert Craig
(not about Vests)

Ed Vest said he was inducted into military service "at Robert Craig's, 1½ or 2 miles south of Abingdon."

Summers' History of Southwest Virginia has the following to say about Robert Craig p 137 "The first deed executed to any of the settlers on the Holston was dated 5 Jan 1773 & was made to Edmund Pendleton, It conveyed to Benjamin Logan and John Sharp, 5?? acres of land situated on Beaver Creek, alias Shallow Creek & was the same land surveyed ~~for~~ by John Buchanan for Edmund Pendleton on 2 April 1750.

"On the same day Edmund Pendleton conveyed to William Cocke and Robert Craig 950 acres of land situated on Spring Creek alias Renfro's ~~Creek~~ Creek being the same ...... Several farms are now on that land.

259 In 1776, (2nd day of court), Robert Craig & others recommended to the Gov. as persons to be added to the Commission for Peace in WA Co.

N 269 30 Apr 1777 County court ordered that 7 gentlemen be appt. trustees to dispose of lands given to the county by Thos Walker, Saml Briggs & Jas. Black, formerly laid out by Capt Robert Doack – The proceeds were to pay for cost of public bldgs, etc 274 By time of Co Court in 1777 the sit (re British & Indians) had become so alarming citizens ordered to take oath of allegiance. Geo Blackburn was to tender the oath to all free male inhabitants living within bounds of Capt James Shelby's, Robert Craig's & Andrew Colville's companies.

Others to do likewise to citizens in other Captain's bounds.

285 Listed among 22 other Peace Commissioners July 1777, etc.

290 March Court, 1779 appointed Commissioner of tax, with David Smith & John Campbell as land owners had failed to appear & elect them

625 June 1777 appointed trustee for the town of Abingdon

626 In Oct 1778 Town of Abingdon established by Act of the Assembly. R.C. among the trustees

Since there were other area Captains, etc.) listed in the book, the information in the book points to the conclusion that the Vest/Clayton family did truly live in the Abingdon area, rather than in a different section of Washington Co VA.

8 mi from TN border, on SE side of a mountain, on Great Valley road – about 7 miles from either of the 2 branches of the Holston. A part of the town stands on a "considerable eminence, at ~~the foot of~~ beneath which there is a cavern containing a lake. There were about 200 houses, many of them "handsome brick buildings." (That was the year they left Tenn. & went to Illinois.)

June 1993

Dear Billie & Allan,

Gosh, I didn't even get to the postoffice & this came. This may be about Martha (Vest) Clayton's older brother, at least I'm pretty sure he was a relative. He was 11 years older than her and 10 years older that William Willis Clayton.

It is especially interesting because he was in the same military outfit as Will, and served approximately the same time. He was older and a private. Will was a corporal and a "kid" relatively speaking. Since the 1810 VA census shows he was already married & had a little daughter, they might not have lived exactly the same places but chances are they were nearby, and in rural Abingdon. So indirectly this tells something about our people.

Edmund ("sometimes called Edward") Vest, was born 15 Nov. 1783. Affidavit says he was a private attached to Captain Willey Jones' 5th Virginia Militia. He enlisted 8 Sep 1813. He was mustered into service at Robert (?Craig's) about 1½ or 2 miles below Abingdon, Washington Co VA. From there they were marched to Norfolk VA where he was enrolled at Peach Orchard and served 6 months - "the object to hold possession of that place." "There was no fighting at that point, but there was some skirmishes with the enemy at the bay shore." He was honorably discharged 10 Mar 1814 at Peach Orchard, which he said was 1½ miles from Norfolk.

He stated he was married 17 Aug 1807 to Sarah R. Martin at the house of her mother, Mrs. Sarah Martin, in Washington Co. VA. His wife was deceased before 8 May 1871 when he filed for a War of 1812 Veteran's pension subject to the Act of 14 Feb 1871.

He stated he would be 88 that coming 15 Nov 1871. He had to swear that he had not aided the Confederacy during the Civil War (possibly doubly insisted upon, though that was part of the Act, because he was living in Kentucky). Character affidavit signed by W.G. Carter and M.B.Cox. His current address was ~~next~~ West Liberty, ~~Monroe~~ Morgan Co. KY but he applied before US Commissioner John W. Hazelrigg of Mt. Sterling, Montgomery Co. KY to whom he gave power of attorney to act for him in the matter.

He received pension for $8.00 per mo (the usual). Soldier's Claim 12657. SO 18567 also mentioned. Date of his death was not in the file--The Archives called this their complete file. This does not mention his descendants, though he probably had several.

Norma

If the above was Martha's brother, their parents probably married around 1780 more or less. Looking at IGI some time ago, a 6th sense made me write down Edward West married Sally VA Martin 18 Aug 1805 in Wash. Co. VA. Need to double-check the date, but this obviously is our man above. Could our great-great-great granduncle have forgotten his wedding date at age 88? He did not have to prove it, since no widow's pension was involved. They did not show when he died, but whenever it was, it fits in with the long-lived White ancestry. (Maybe it said 1807 & I copied wrong?)

Note that his signature resembles

June 1993

Dear Billie & Allan,

Well, here is the last one, and it is a hard one to write up but I feel should be done for future easy reference. This one is a mess. We could easily be misled by it had no other (more reliable?) records been collected previously. Bean Cemetery records show he was born (3?) Feb 1789 in VA and Susan was born (12?) Apr 1790 VA.. The Archives called what they sent the Complete File but some papers must have been lost in that case. The ones enclosed are the most pertinent. But whereas in the other 2 letters data supplementing the file info was confined to brackets it would be very difficult to do so in reviewing the papers of the widow of James Vest. Some of the papers they sent were so faint I had to use a magnifying glass. It was a frustrating job, but I believe insightful.

It would appear that in those days in western Virginia boys were educated but girls were not. (Does this have anything to do with the apprenticeship system?) Susan, probably 81 years old, seems to have lost much of her memory, and relied on her sister-in-law, Martha, probably 5 years younger, to help her out. Remember that "Marthy"--she probably said "Martha E."--had trouble with her own application. Poor Susan was so befuddled that she signed power of attorney for a shyster lawyer to pay him $25 to prosecute the case, remembering when she finally got her pension it was only the usual $8 per mo. He may even have had it deducted from her check? One of her application forms includes the signature of C.W. Dunsworth. (The Gov't may not have known, but 1850 IL census shows Susan living with him and daughter Angeline Dunsworth. Susan called 55, maybe wrong. But obviously Mr. Dunsworth had a vested interest in the outcome.)

Sounds like a mess? Maybe. It sure took a long time and hard work for her to finally succeed. But the more I muse over the facts, the more it seems to me that the old ladies were more coy than befuddled!

I forget the contents of the Act of 14 Feb 1871 providing War of 1812 survivors' benefits. Perhaps it required (or they thought it did) that the soldier had to be married to the widow before the war or within a year or so after it. If so, they were clever enough to finally succeed.

A book "Early East Tennessee Marriages" says James Vest married 10-13-1816 in Carter Co TN, but they could not make out the name of his bride. That seems to be his marriage to our Susan Simpson. Govt. papers show soldier claimed he was married in Carter Co TN though he was drafted in Sullivan Co TN.

Martha Clayton, who said she "could not be mistaken because James Vest was her brother," concocted a story which may be partly true. She said she had known Susan (Simpson) Vest since she was 15 years old. She said she was not present at the wedding but had seen them right before and a little after, and that they had cohabited ever since up to the time James Vest died, and that Susan had not since remarried.

Note: See Clayton file for pension file of William W. Clayton's widow Martha (Vest) Clayton

Martha states further that she, herself, was married in 1811 (?!) and had two sons within two years, that James and Susan's marriage was very shortly after that. (If she did, they must have soon died. That does not square at all with 1830 E. TN census. We can verify from several sources that Wm. Willis, Jr was born in 1817 and Valëntine in 1818, and that she was married in 1812.) (A little son, James L. Clayton died young and is buried in Bean Cemetery. He does show on the 1830 E TN census, and remember that Jr. said there were 5 of them. The 2 girls married Averills. Maybe some did die young. There is a gap of 5 years before Jr's birth.)

It is conceivable James and Susan had a common-law marriage before they finally rounded up a preacher in 1816, but as far as I can tell Angeline was the oldest, born about 1817. They had nine children (won't repeat because I sent you the list last fall). Do want to mention that the daughter, Martha C. Boyd, with whom she lived during her last illness, and had nice clear handwriting --letter included--asked that she receive the last $8 due her mother to pay for (medical bills, etc?). Don't know if she ever got it but imagine she deserved it. (Militia lists for Washington Co. VA show a Henry Boyd there who also served under Capt. Willey Jones, plus several other Boyds. Wish I had copied the page that would have showed Simpsons. Maybe later if I don't forget. Probably those were related to McDonough Co. IL Boyds. I notice they had an older daughter Frances (named for Grandma?) and a little son James C. Vest buried in Bean cemetery.)

The attached records definitely show the following:

James Vest was a private. He was drafted, entered the service in Sullivan Co. TN, served 12 Oct 1813 to 8 Feb 1814. He died 2 Apr 1850 in McDonough Co IL. He stated he married Susan Simpson in Carter Co TN. The couple received 160 acres of bounty land, claim #92,933. (Adds No. 55) Susan finally received certificate # 5316 for $8 per mo. pension, effective________. She died 12 Aug 1878 in Colchester, McDonough Co. IL

(later note: He did fight under Jackson – in NW GA)

Susan said because of age she could no longer remember who James Vest's captain was, but he fought under Jackson! Can this be true? Jackson did live a while around Jonesborough, E TN when he first practiced law. What a story! Can't you just see our great-great-great granduncle at New Orleans? Might not be true, though. Records I already have state he served as a private under Captain Jacob Hartsell and Col. William Lilliard, East Tennessee Militia. We might be able to check the story out by finding out what battles Hartsell and Lilliard were in. It also occurs to me that if they were married a couple of years after the war, she would have heard fewer details than if they were married during the conflict.

Love
Norma

The Watauga Settlements

This provides insight into the speech of our ancestors.

by Harriette T-Arnow (McMillan 1963)

any; tanderness, tenderness; elligent, elegant; cillibration, celebration; etarnaly, eternally; and she may have made a slow and soft three-syllable word of stranger as she spelled it strainger;[44] danger spelled also with an extra i may have been spoken in the same fashion. Rachel's older brother, John or Captain John, though his spelling was more orthodox, had the same general speech pattern, writing spile for spoil; hant, haunt; and sayed for said. Both he and his sister spelled many words as did Smollett in dialogue: welcome, weelcome; bosom, boosom; and copy, coopy.[45]

Rachel's nephew, John Hutchings, in business with his Uncle Jackson,[46] appears to have had even less formal education than the older generation; in his writing, reached was retched; very, vary; waiting, weighten; both, boath; show, shew; raised, raisted; violent, vialint; and in general Hutchings showed the same tendency to soften hard ing sounds, give the ed the sound of t, and add syllables and vowels.[47] Among isolated hill people seeing is often a soft but two-syllabled sean, being becomes bean—not pronounced like the vegetable or the English been; some also still say sheare for share as did James Robertson. Hutchings, for all the softness of his sounds, never softened his meanings any more than did his uncle John Donelson, who never left the reader wondering what he had meant to say. They lived in a world that praised Colonel Ridley for his lack of circumlocution.

James Robertson, basically Scotch-Irish, spoke much as did the Donelsons, showing the same liberal use of vowels: any—aney; many—maney; unjust—unjest; their or there—thar; certainly—sartainly; whether—wheather; was—ware; yellow—yalow; near—nigh to; and parcel—persel.[48] The pioneer Cumberland was in general a place where most had "years" on their heads, not short and sharp as today's earth's orbit to the east, but finely rolling so that the listener knew there was a y and plenty of r; not too many years ago there were still such "yearres" in the hills. Children chanting "Cock Robin" had no trouble rhyming lark with clerk and many so spelled the word; a canebrake was a canebrack, but a horse was a "hoss," and even a man could "nuss a baby," nurse meaning to hold a child on one's lap, not to suckle it.

Many said git and whar, et rosin-yearres (ate roasting ears),[49] and like the Andrew Jacksons talked of yestardayes and charectores, though few spelled with such reliance on the ear as did Jacob ~~James~~ Hartsell, captain in the War of 1812: "On the same night I dremp I met my mother and went into my hourse with hur whar I saw my wife making of cornbread and saw the tabel set with plates, copes [cups], knives, and other articales. . . . I toock a walk round—the hole loines—I could not git one yeare of corne and I fetched a verey large load of cane—some horses lay thar, and as I passed throw the horses nickered for my cane tell my hart aked for them."[50]

Many used fotch instead of fetch and similar pronunciations as indicated by a well-to-do woman who when unexpected company dropped in on scrubbing day remarked, "You have cotched me with my britches down."[51] This pronunciation can in remote regions among the unsophisticated be heard at times as can a good many of Captain Hartsell's; a few older folk in out-of-the-way places still say pint for point and whar for where, and, no different from early court clerks who spelled as they spoke, they have sassers instead of saucers, cags for kegs, and rebands for ribbons.[52] Most on the Southern borders were in the early years as unselfconscious of their speech as of displaying their emotions—or their spelling. The speech pattern indicated by the Donelsons, Robertson, and numerous phonetic spellers was not the only one, but it appears to have been the most common up the river as well as down.

None of the phonetic spellers mentioned was of Irish origin, but certainly many localities would have been seasoned with a few Irish. Costello, Murphy, Kennedy, Casada (Cassidy), and other Irish names were found

Miró to O'Neill, New Orleans, August 12, 1787[67]

By the Copy of the Letter of the Indian Commissary, Mr. Alexander McGillivray, I am informed of the death of Davenport, and the ruin of the American trading settlement a half day's journey from a Chickasaw Village, which news I received at the same time from different sources.

The absence of any molestion of the Talapuches, who did the murder, while passing through the Chickasaw villages indicates that the majority of them are devoted to us.

I am informed of the recent attempt of the Talapuches against the Cumberland Settlement, of which McGillivray had already advised me. . . .

THE "J. HARTSELL MEMORA": THE JOURNAL OF A TENNESSEE CAPTAIN IN THE WAR OF 1812

Edited by Mary Hardin McCown

Foreword by the Editor

Jacob Hartsell, the son of Hannah Hartsell, was born in 1786, probably in Pennsylvania shortly before his mother moved with her family to the Watauga settlements. The Hartsell family, descendants of the feudal clan of the barons of the Reich van Hertzeele, who resided in the vicinity of the city of Cologne on the Rhine, were among the numerous emigrants from the Palatinate who came to Pennsylvania during the early part of the eighteenth century. Induced by religious persecution and urged by the offers of William Penn, who guaranteed religious freedom in his colony, eight different Hertzels landed in America and took up homesteads in Bucks and Northampton counties, Pennsylvania. One of them, George Henry Hartsell, who settled in Bucks county and established the Indian Creek Christ Reformed Church near Telford, died in 1784. In 1930 a bronze tablet was erected at the church to his memory by the National Association of Hartzells of America.[1]

The exact date when Hannah Hartsell moved with her three sons, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, from Pennsylvania to the Tennessee country is unknown. According to tradition she was a widow at the time of her arrival, and this view is supported by the complete absence of any reference to her husband in the Tennessee records. On February 19, 1790, Hannah Hartsell purchased from John Hunter, Jr., for £210 thirty acres of land in Washington county, North Carolina, lying on both sides of Cherokee Creek, beginning at William Murphy's line. On July 12, 1794, after the Southwest Territory had been organized, she obtained a North Carolina "50 shilling grant" of thirty acres located in the same vicinity. A third acquisition of land was her purchase in 1805 from John Hunter for $77.00 of fifteen and one half acres of land also lying along Cherokee Creek in Washington county.[2]

Although Jacob was the youngest of Hannah Hartsell's three sons, it appears that in 1811 she transferred to him her landed estate by a covenant or article of Agreement for $725.00 for the benefit of my other children, to be paid in annual installments, 1/6 part each year, beginning with the eldest—together with the further sum of $30.00 per annum to be paid me during my lifetime—also firewood furnished me—For this I transfer to Jacob Hartsell all my interest in my tract of land on the brushy fork of Cherokee Creek—75 acres more or less. . . .[3]

[1] Jacob Hartsell MSS. (in possession of Mrs. Minnie Jones Cargille, Jonesboro, Tennessee). The name Hartzell may also be found listed among Pennsylvania's Revolutionary War soldiers.

[2] Washington County Deed Book (in Washington county courthouse, Jonesboro, Tennessee), E, 173, No. 7, p. 186, No. 8, p. 301, No. 11, p. 268. In the Washington County Lists of Taxables for 1796, 1797, and 1798 she is recorded as the owner of sixty acres of land on Cherokee Creek. Her neighbors included the Bolingers, John Creselious, Hosea Rose, Peter Ruble, John Hunter, and Charles Robertson.

On this tract of land was built, either by Hannah Hartsell or her son Jacob, the manor house in which dwelled four generations of the Hartsell family. It was a large two-story log house with smaller out-houses for the slave quarters, typical of the period. When it was eventually destroyed by fire about 1900, one of the few family pieces saved was an old grandfather clock probably brought south by Hannah Hartsell. The land is still in the possession of the family.

Although many of the neighbors along Cherokee Creek were Baptists and attended the Cherokee Baptist Church, Hannah Hartsell and her family attended the "Old Dutch Meeting House," constructed by the early Lutheran pioneers. No records of this early church are extant, but according to tradition it was built before 1800.[4] After the Lutherans ceased to use it, some time before 1860, it was used by the Methodists. The building was later torn down, and today "God's Acre" is the only material evidence of its former existence. Beneath one of the crude, unlettered, limestone markers in this graveyard lie the remains of Hannah Hartsell, who died in 1841, leaving an estate of considerable proportions for that day.[5]

Concerning the early life and education of Jacob Hartsell little is known, but one surmises that the godly mother and the "Old Dutch Meeting House" played an important part in both. Before he was twenty-one he was married to Nancy Million,[6] the daughter of Edward and Mary Million, early Baptist settlers on Cherokee Creek. To this union were born nine children, Mary, Anthony, Delilah, Russell Bean, Hannah, Martin Luther, Emaline, Isaac Washington, and Nancy. Most of these children reached their maturity and married early. Some chose to settle on nearby farms, while others moved to distant parts. Martin Luther Hartsell settled in Roane county, Tennessee, and Hannah, who married O. P. Nelson, moved to Kentucky. Isaac Washington married Rebecca Brown[7] of the Nolichucky River neighborhood in September, 1842, and after his father's death on May 2, 1843, he and his wife moved into the old home with his mother. Jacob Hartsell died intestate, leaving over 1,300 acres of land, besides his home, cattle, sheep, stock, notes, and ready money.[8]

[3] Deed Book, No. 13, p. 39; Minutes of Court of Pleas and Quarter Sessions, 1811-1817, p. 139. The eldest son, Abraham Hartsell, moved to Blount county, where he married a Mary Norton. Isaac Hartsell, the second son, remained in Washington county and purchased land from a William Whitson in 1810 and from his brother Jacob in 1828. Deed Book, No. 12, p. 339, No. 18, p. 142. He served as first lieutenant in Jacob Hartsell's company in the Creek War. He married a Miss Nelson, but little is known of his life.

[4] In addition to the Hartsells, its membership included the Bolinger, Keplinger, Walters, Cresellious, Horne, May, and Coblentz families.

[5] Washington County Estate Records, Undated Inventory. The total of notes and cash was $1,813.99. The estate was settled on November 30, 1843, by Jonah Lilburn and Orville P. Nelson, administrators in place of Jacob Hartsell, deceased.

[6] They were married on October 3, 1805, by Jacob Brown, justice of the peace. J. Hartsell Memora.

Nancy Hartsell drew a widow's pension for the services of her husband in the War of 1812.[9] A forceful character, she possessed a keen wit and led a most active life, surviving her husband until 1870. A short time before her death, she united with the Christian Church during a revival led by her son, Isaac Washington, who was one of the early preachers of the Church of Christ, or Christian Church, in East Tennessee. Her will left her entire property to her children, with the unique restriction requiring the daughter's shares to descend to daughters, or daughters of daughters.[10] She was buried beside her husband in the churchyard of the old Cherokee Baptist Church.

Early in life Jacob Hartsell showed traits of leadership, for in 1809 he was appointed by the Washington county court to act as tax assessor, and given the title of captain.[11] He served in this capacity until 1815, except for the year 1813, and again from 1826 to 1830.[12] He was a magistrate, or esquire, for many years, performing a great many marriages in the county. He was public-spirited, interested in good roads, a popular money-lender, and was evidently highly esteemed by his fellow citizens of Washington county.

As a result of the massacre at Fort Mims in August, 1813, a call was sent out for volunteers to engage in a campaign against the Creek Indians.[13] It is not strange that Captain Jacob Hartsell took the lead in enrolling a company at Jonesboro in October of that year.[14] That he planned to keep a journal of events is indicated by his purchase of a record book and ink powder before the company left Washington county.[15] The book purchased was six and one-half by eight inches in size, with brown cardboard binding, and containing 80 pages. This little book and other Hartsell manuscripts are packed into a small hand-made walnut chest of Jacob Hartsell. They are the prized possessions of a great-granddaughter, Mrs. Minnie Jones Cargille, of Jonesboro, Tennessee.

[8] Washington County Estate Records. The inventory totaled $2,129.32. The estate was administered by two sons-in-law, Jonah Lilburn and O. P. Nelson, but settlement was postponed until October 15, 1847, because of litigation among the heirs in which the widow was successful. Among the bills paid was one "To George Reed, paid $7.08 for coffin."

It is this journal which gives us the real insight into his character, depicting a man of above-average intelligence, with the habits and training of a farmer. All along the route of march to Alabama he took note of the soil, the variety of trees, the water courses, the hills, and the valleys; all were of great interest to him. Though not a trained militiaman, he drilled his men until they excelled all other companies. He was on the alert to provide daily rations for both men and horses. He faithfully discharged the responsibility he had assumed. The Indian life was novel and of interest to him. In short, he was a mountaineer who was seeing the outside world for the first time. He abhorred sham and deceit, especially among officers, and was bold to speak against it. Naturally of a social nature, he enjoyed companionship with the other men, and was always looking up his former friends and comrades. On this campaign, he made the acquaintance of John Ross,[16] the Cherokee chief, and kept an interest in him in later years. A lover of music, he was mindful of its effect on his men during service. Through no fault of Hartsell's, the Second Regiment, to which his company belonged (Col. William Lillard's), was detained at Fort Armstrong for almost two thirds of their three months enlistment period. Although they had not actually participated in any battles, when the call came to enlist for longer service, his men voted to go home, for as Hartsell said, most of the men had no other way to make a living but to "farmit," and spring crop time was at hand. So he returned them safely to their homes.

After his return to Washington county he must have enjoyed some degree of popularity, for he was always addressed as Colonel Hartsell, and in 1836 was urged to become a candidate for the office of brigadier general in the militia of his district.[17] During the years following the War of 1812 he became a large land owner, and acted in positions of trust as guardian, etc., until his premature death.

The little journal termed by him "J HARTSELL MEMORA" is not merely the account of his military expedition; it contains also his family record, including the births of his children, and the dowry given each child at his or her marriage. The amount of each dowry was commensurate to the length of time spent in service for the parents.[18]

Another side of his nature is revealed by the "Memora." Without it we would not have known the poetic longings and aspirations of the man. Wars have always inspired the bard to sing his lay; and one of Hartsell's ballads preserved in the "Memora" is entitled "A Song Balet Concerning Ware." Two others are called, "A Song Balet Rote by me, Dec. 4, 1814,"[19] and "The Second Book of Cronicals."[20] A fourth, unnamed, is about a brave volunteer. Crude as they may appear to the literary critic, they breathe the soul of one who cries:

Our Countries invaded, oheare the alarme
Turn out sons of tennessee and gird on your armes
We air sons of Columbia and straingers to fear
Sure heaven will smile on the brave Volenteere.

When wars and its thunders shall cease for to roar
Then we will returne and enjoy our stores
We'll train up our children their rights to revere
And when their invaded turn out Volenteere.[21]

A major purpose of the editor in presenting the journal of Captain Jacob Hartsell has been to give the reader a human story of the Creek

Jacob Brown, a brother-in-law of Hartsell, was also on the Creek campaign with Ross and Hartsell.

[19] This is a ballad of the "Barbara Allen" type.

[20] This describes the battles of Tallushatchee and Talledega: "The Cronicals of Andrew, one of the Chief Captains of Columbia's Host—when he lead the thousands throw the South Counterey in search of the barbarians that dwelt in the deserts of Alibamia—Composed by Joseph the high priest and recorded by Jesey the Scribe on the 8th day of twelfth month in the eighteenth hundred and thirteenth year of the Christian Hegaria—Rote by me in a hurey on the 7th day of January 1814. Jacob Hartsell Capt."

[21] A poem also included in the J. Hartsell Memora.

War. This war was noted for its scarcity of food, the lack of concerted action among its leaders, and the insubordination in its ranks. Jacob Hartsell was untrained in military tactics; yet, possessed of a keen perception and an observing mind, he recorded a vivid picture of his "three months tour," and a glimpse of the indomitable spirit of General Andrew Jackson.

Hartsell's schooling was evidently limited, as shown by the Memora. His irregular use of capitals, his numerous misspelled words, his lapses in grammar, and his almost total abandon of punctuation marks, all were common to his day. Yet his words expressed his feelings, and one cannot fail to grasp their meaning.

An exact copy of his manuscript has been made, using his orthography and capitalization, but the editor has inserted punctuation marks where necessary to make the meaning clear. And the entries for October 12, 13, 15 and 21, which are to be found near the end of the manuscript journal, have been moved to their proper position at the beginning, although they were probably not recorded until after the date of the first entry on the first page of the journal, October 26.

Hence, after the lapse of a century and a quarter, these "Memora," probably kept by Hartsell only for himself and his family, now reveal to the world the reactions of an early American.

[28] Camp Brown was probably named for Col. John Brown of Roane county, a commander of a regiment of volunteers in the Creek War. It was located on high ground, about half way between old Washington, Rhea county, and the Hiwassee Garrison on an old road which comes into the present road to the garrison site some three or four miles back from the river. This site was definitely located in May, 1938, by Mrs. P. J. Allen and the editor.

[29] Hiwassee Garrison, located ten miles southeast of Dayton, at the junction of the Tennessee and Hiwassee rivers. Established by the U. S. government in 1807 as a frontier post against the Cherokee, the troops were stationed there until a short time before the War of 1812. The Cherokee Indian agency, with Col. Return J. Meigs as agent, was located there from 1807 to 1816, when it was moved to present county of Meigs. Penelope J. Allen (comp.), Historic Chattanooga (Chattanooga, 1935), 23.

[30] Hartsell meant the Cherokee Nation. In 1812 the northern boundary of the Cherokee territory on the west bank of the Tennessee River was a line running due west from the mouth of the Hiwassee. East of the river, however, their land extended to the mouth of the Clinch. During the Creek War the Cherokees were allies of the Americans. J. P. Brown, Old Frontiers (Kingsport, Tennessee, 1938), 460-465, Appendix B.

[31] Tennessee River.

[32] At John Brown's Ferry. He was a Cherokee who operated two ferries, one above and one below the "Suck." Brown was a slave trader and a blacksmith. His claims presented to the United States government show that he ferried many troops across the river: "Dec. 2, 1813—To ferriage 260 men Col. Brown's Regiment across Tenn. River @ 12½ cents apiece—$32.50. . . ." "Jan. 29, 1814—To ferriage 500 men Col. John Brown's Regiment across Tenn. river—$31.25. To ferry wagons across—$6.00." Return J. Meigs MSS. (in possession of Mrs. Penelope J. Allen, Chattanooga, Tenn.).

[33] Camp Ross, established by Gen. James White in October, 1813, was located at the foot of Lookout Mountain near the mouth of Chattanooga Creek, and called Camp Ross from its proximity to the trading post of Daniel Ross, a Scotchman, and the father of John Ross, the Cherokee chief. [35] Brig. Gen. James White (1747-1821) served as captain and colonel in North Carolina during the Revolutionary War. He built White's Fort in 1786 at the site of Knoxville. During the War of 1812 he commanded a brigade of militia, which while en route to join Jackson at Fort Strother on the Coosa River, had been detached from Camp Ross to Turkeytown to the relief of the Chief Pathkiller, who feared an attack from the Creek Indians. Tennessee State Archives; Bassett, op. cit., I, 342, 348.

[36] Turkeytown, a Cherokee town founded about 1770, and located in the bend of the Coosa River in Cherokee county, Alabama, was noted as the home of "The Turkey," a famous chief who led many early attacks against the whites of Tennessee and Kentucky. During the Creek War it was the home of the head chief of the Cherokees, Pathkiller. T. M. Owen, History of Alabama (Chicago, 1921), II, 1332.

[37] Probably the Battle of Tallushatchee. See note 46, below. It is likely that White's men brought the first news of this victory to General Cocke's army, as recorded by Hartsell.

[38] A corruption of the trade term, "point," no longer used, denoting weight.

[39] Chattanooga Creek joins the Tennessee River at the base of Lookout Mountain. Camp Ross was on the high ground between the creek and the river.

10 Instant—We marched about 15 miles throw some as good ground as my eys ever saw. large levele plantations might be had with not one hill in them, white oack and black oak and shugartree, poplar, wild chereytrees plenty, som good springs as ever run out of the erth— I think that on one spot of straight rode I was on advance gard this day and halted my company and loocked back, saw at leas one thousand men well armed which apeared at least three quarters of a mile long—thursday 11—Marched about twenty miles. pased throw two Indians towns.[40] I was as much amased. I lafed as harty as I ever I did in my life at the sight. ther was as good runing water as I ever saw in my life. pased as good land and some as good springs as I ever saw in my life. some as levele land and large timber as I ever saw in my life, some shugar trees. we had to draw beefe the same night with much confution as my selfe atended to the plase tell we recived our rations—

on the same knight I dremp I met my mother and went in to my house with hur whare I saw my wife making of corn bread and saw the tabele set with plates, copes [cups], knives, and other articales. then I taught [thought] I was walking with my brother along some rode, then I a woake and was in my tent in the wild woodes. soon after the drume beet the revelee—

On the 12 Instant—We marched to a small creeck, then we came to along leading creeck, then to some hiley ground and poore. we incamped about twelve miles on the same rode.

On Saturday 13 Instant—We marched to a small river caled Coocy.[41] then we came to a small creeck and some good land. pased several good houses whare was some half breed lived, and they had some likely farmes. then we came to Camp Coocey,[42] whare we met with thirteen hundred troopes at this plase from diferent countreys. we incamped in a holow square. be fore we was thare ther was sentinales plased round the Incampment. I was verey unwell this day tell [until] I came to this plase, and I got beter and Magor Bradley[43] and my selfe and one of my boys went to the rivere and crosed in a small Cuneo [canoe], where we went throo a large cane brack three quarters of a mile, and the land was verey good and the timber was verey good of all kinds. I cold not git one yeare of corne and I fetched a verey large load of cane for the horses, and came throw the incampment and some horses lay thare, and as I pased throw the horses nickered for my cane tell my hart aked for them—the rivere runes verey still and verey deep and has high banks, and on this side, which is the south side, there is the apearance of a large intranchment[44] & apaires to bee done seven or eight yeares agow. ther is a large spring runing out of the banck of the quick sand. It will bee a famous river for boting, for it is allways deepe anuff for botes to run. ther is only one ford to cross in all nowing, that is whare General Jackson lays at the ten Islands,[45] which is thirty miles be low whare we now lay.

The best acount we have had from General Jackson is that the first batele[46] he kiled one hundred and eighty on the ground, and twock [took] thirty prisoners. some of them dyed and some of them is alive yet. the first batele lost five on the ground, and tow [two] dyed after wards that was wounded. the last batele[47] that Jackson had he kiled two hundred and sixty wayers [warriors], and whome was all wayers fifty wayers charged throw the lines and made ther ascapes. the most of ther armes was taking from them, fifty rifles gunes the white twock from them. the Indians kiled sixty horses of the whites—

November 13th day—I bought corn for my horses—0-3-0

On Sunday 14teenth—William Rogers[48] preached to 12 oclock at the block house, whare there was a large asembley atended with much satesfaction, for the hole of them seemed to be engaged with solom inserety. the most of the men was melted into teeres under the sermont. after the preachen the[y] was dismised without singen or prayer. the[y] started to ther deferent tents, which seemed to bee fifteen hundred men, all of one choler nearer than I ever saw in my life before, no women nor children, all men. after I went home I toock a walk round the lines and counted the fiers which seprised me much. ther was two hundred and fifty diferent fiers, twelve men to each fier and some thirteen and fourteen to each fiere. the hole loines is one mile lone [long] which is camped in a hollow square, the block house in the midst of the incampment, the horses and all the head ofesers [officers] and ther waters [waiters] in the midst of the lines—about 9 o'clock at knight ther was one of the Sentinales fired. orders was given to perade Instantly. I was seting by my fier side talking with some of my boyes. I holowed perade, perade in aminit, which was don. in a few minutes I marched up the lines to see how the men was standing and when I had them in order I returned to the head of my line. had not been ther long be fore I thought I heared some one walking tordes [towards] me and snaped ther gun tordes me behind the fiers. I haled them, and haled them twise and was redy to fire my piece, and the man ansered twise and said it was mee fixing my gunloock, which scared me much for I shold shot in aminit if he head not aspoock and shold kiled him without axsedent [accident]. when I toock sedond [second] thought I was much scared. if I had kiled him, he or the[y] cold not ablamed me for it, because the hole of the men was ordered out in the inside of the incampment and he was out side of the incampment which was liabile to be shot without hailing aney— As quick as I was formed the Agjedent came to me and demanded six men out of my Company to goo and see what was don. I told six of the men to turn out amedentley [immediately]. John Walker, George Starmer, James Casedy, Lenard Calver, Moses Conkling steped out without delay, and marched to the Sentinal whare the firing was, and did not find the Sentinal, went to the mex [mess] and found him much scared. twoock his gun from him and ordered John Walker and James Casedy to garde him to the General, and the General on axamination clared him and sent him to his post. when all was don the ofiser halowed "a fawlse alarme, Dismis your men." I dismisses my men and we went to bed as ushale [usual]—

[40] Probably Cherokee villages.

[41] The headwaters of the Coosa River cross Cherokee, Etowah, and Elmore counties, Alabama. The name "Coosa" is derived from the Choctaw word "Coosha," meaning "reedy," on account of the dense cane brakes along its banks. An Indian tribe by the same name was there when De Soto discovered the river.

[42] The site of Fort Armstrong. The camp on the Coosa was built in October, 1813, by Gen. John Cocke, and used as a base for supplies, both of men and provisions. Located on the north bank of the river in Cherokee county, Alabama, just west of the Georgia line, it was the logical place for a fort, for the Coosa was then considered the boundary line between the Cherokee and the Creek nations. The fort was named for John Armstrong, then secretary of war. B. J. Lossing, Pictorial Field Book of War of 1812 (New York, 1869), 766.

[43] Major William Bradley, first major in the Second Regiment under Col. William Lillard. He was ordered on the second campaign in January, 1814, under Col. John Brown. Tennessee State Archives.

[44] Was this the scene of an earlier Indian battle?

[45] The Ten Islands were seventy miles below Fort Armstrong. Lossing, op. cit., 766. "Fort Strother was on the west bank of the Coosa . . . at the lowest point of the Ten Islands Shoals. Greensport, Ala., the present Lock Three on the Coosa, the railroad station named Lock . . . and the old fort site are coincident. . . . Rousseau's raid into Alabama in 1863 says that he crossed the Ten Islands Shoals at Fort Strother exactly where Andrew Jackson crossed in 1813." Peter A. Brannon Alabama Department of Archives and History, Montgomery, Alabama, March 25, 1938, to the editor.

[46] Tallushatchee, fought on the early morning of November 3, 1813, with General Coffee's cavalry leading the attack, resulted in 186 Indians killed and eighty taken prisoners. Col. Richard Brown, a Cherokee chief, two of Chinaby's men, and Jim Fife, of the Natchez tribe, distinguished themselves on the American side. Here it was that the young Indian lad, Lincoyer, was rescued by General Jackson. Jackson wrote Gov. Willie Blount, "We have retaliated for the destruction of Ft. Mimms." Bassett, op. cit., I, 341, 345; Lossing, op. cit., 762-763.

[49] The Cedar Creek Indian village town was in Talledega county, Alabama, located on the north bank of the creek above where it empties into the Coosa. On March 21, 1814, Fort Williams was built on the same side of the creek, between the town and the river. Owen, op. cit., I, 212.

[50] The Creek Indians, so-called from numerous streams of water in their country, occupied the greater part of Alabama along the Coosa and Tallapoosa rivers, and on the Flint and Chattahoochee rivers. The most serious war of the Creeks against the the Americans was that of 1813-14, and it ended with the complete submission of William Weatherford, the Creek chief, and the cession of part of the Creek lands to the United States. The Creeks were removed to Indian Territory west of the Mississippi in 1836. Hodge, op. cit., I, 362.

John Cocke served in the state legislature and in 1813 was appointed major general for East Tennessee volunteers in the War of 1812. Jackson and John Cocke had misunderstandings which led to Cocke's arrest in January, 1814, at Camp Ross, but at a court martial Cocke was acquitted. He later went to Congress. His home was at Rutledge, Grainger county, Tennessee. "The Cocke Family," American Historical Magazine (Nashville, April, 1897), II, 152 et seq.

[1] Jackson, always short of rations for his army, had been desperate which course to pursue. He had hesitated to order Cocke to join him on account of the conditions of supplies, but on December 6 he ordered him to be at Ft. Strother on December 12, after which they were to advance to the confluence of the Coosa and Tallapoosa, and establish camp there. J. S. Bassett (ed.), Correspondence of Andrew Jackson (Washington, 1926-1935), I, 374, 335.

[2] Jackson had known all the while that the Spanish were instigating the Creeks against the Americans. A letter to Leroy Pope, October 31, 1813, says: "The irregularity of supplies has retarded my progress very much, and I am anxious to reach the center of the Creek country, and give them a final blow, and then strike at the root of the diseas pensacola." Ibid., I, 339. See also Jackson to Holmes, in ibid., VI, 428.

[3] The Georgia troops were led by Brig. Gen. John Floyd and Gen. John Adams. Ibid., I, 364. A letter from Jackson to Gov. Willie Blount, December 29, 1813, says: "We have got within 90 miles of each other [the Georgia troops]." Ibid., I, 419.

[4] On November 7, 1813, Daniel Parker, chief clerk of War Department, notified Governor Blount that Governor Mitchell of Georgia, having declined re-election, the President of the United States had ordered Maj. Gen. Thomas Pinckney to take direction of the expedition against the hostile Indians. Ibid., I, 351, n. On November 16, 1813, Pinckney notified Jackson that he had been so ordered. Ibid., I, 363.

William Pillow, of about 1400 men. Only one commissioned officer, old Captain Williamson, remained. Jackson contended that their enlistment had been for one year of service, exclusive of the time spent at home between the Natchez expedition and the Creek campaign, while they urged that the year had passed. Ibid., I, 392.

[30] On the Natchez expedition the troops had been ordered discharged en route, but Jackson brought them back to Columbia and issued a discharge until further orders. They now claimed a complete discharge. Ibid., I, 385.

[32] Ditto's Landing, on the north side of the Tennessee River and south of Huntsville, was a base of supplies where General Cocke had contracted to send those from East Tennessee. Boats could not come down in low water, so supplies had to be brought overland. Camp Coffee was on the bluff opposite Ditto's Landing. Ibid., I, 325, 328, 332. "Tennessee, like most of the western rivers, is not navigable in its upper waters in dry seasons, and the flour which General Jackson expected to find awaiting him at Coffee's bluff, was still hundreds of miles up the river, 'waiting for a rise'." When later arrested by Jackson's lifeguard, he still refused to halt, and General Jackson intervened, personally demanding his sword. Upon Kirby's refusal, the General leveled his pistol at Kirby, but Adjutant Gen. James W. Sitler stepped between the two. Dr. Taylor rushed up and drew Kirby's sword, handing it to Sitler, who demanded that Kirby himself tender it. This was done, and Kirby arrested. [79] Capt. John Gordon (1763-1819), the first postmaster of Nashville, is best eulogized by the monument on the lawn of the post office and custom house in Nashville, Tennessee. He came to Nashville from Virginia in 1782, and became a noted defender of old Fort Nashboro and the frontier settlements from the Indians, and participated in the Nicajack expedition which ended Indian atrocities on the Cumberland. As captain of the spies in the Davidson county regiment, reporting only to Jackson, he distinguished himself in every battle of Jackson's Creek campaign. In 1814 he performed alone a mission of great danger, as Jackson's special envoy to the Spanish governor of Pensacola, resulting in the capture of Pensacola and the cession of Florida to the United States. He is buried at Columbia, Tennessee.

[80] Captain William Russell led another company of mounted spies, who served as Jackson's lifeguard. Russell served as major of Vol. Mtd. Gunmen under Col. Robert Dyer in General Coffee's brigade in the New Orleans campaign, 1814-15. Tenn. State Archives.

[81] Captain Hamilton was later killed in the Battle of Ehotochopco, January 24, 1814. Jackson then wrote concerning him: ". . . among the former [those killed] was the brave Capt. Wm. Hamilton from E. Tennessee who with his aged father and two others of his company, after the period of his engagement had expired, volunteered his services for this excursion . . . No man ever fought more bravely, or fell more gloriously . . . ." Jackson to Pinckney, January 29, 1814, Bassett, op. cit., I, 452.

[82] Jackson wrote to Coffee, December 31, 1813: "They militia I think will go and I wish they and they volunteers had a smoke tail in their teeth, with a Peticoat [the symbol of cowardice] as a coat of mail to hand down to their offspring . . . . I think of all damned Rascals I ever saw, is some of the Holston [Jackson always refers to the eastern region as Holston] soldiers, nothing can excape them." Ibid., I, 431. Jackson's patience did give out.

[83] Lillard wrote Jackson on December 26, 1813, and January 7, 1814, that his men just refused to go on, except Capt. Hamilton and two of his men. Ibid., I, 411, 437,n. Lillard was severely criticized by Col. John Williams: "I am mortified to hear of Col. Lillard's conduct. It is disgraceful in the extreme. A petty coat ought to be presented to him." Ibid., I, 431,n. Jackson also criticized Lillard in a letter to Blount, December 26, 1813: "I could not believe the general would have made such a promise to men whose service was so much needed . . . . without notifying me thereof." Ibid., I, 409.

[84] "The poor Indians were pillaged and their property ravaged by the army, which was always short of supplies. Many complaints were sent to Colonel Meigs about the conduct of the East Tennesseans, but very little relief was felt while the war lasted. The Indian warriors were at the front, fighting for the Americans, while the women and children were made to starve by their allies. Along the Ross road from Ross' Landing to Turkeytown, near Ft. Armstrong, hardly a cow or hog, or an ear of corn was left. Daniel Ross wrote to Colonel Meigs at Hiwassee asking help for them. In 1816 Colonel Meigs submitted to Secretary of War John Armstrong claims for the Cherokees amounting to $25,498.42½ for property damages inflicted by the march of the white troops through their lands. [1] Jackson, always short of rations for his army, had been desperate which course to pursue. He had hesitated to order Cocke to join him on account of the conditions of supplies, but on December 6 he ordered him to be at Ft. Strother on December 12, after which they were to advance to the confluence of the Coosa and Tallapoosa, and establish camp there. J. S. Bassett (ed.), Correspondence of Andrew Jackson (Washington, 1926-1935), I, 374, 335.

[2] Jackson had known all the while that the Spanish were instigating the Creeks against the Americans. A letter to Leroy Pope, October 31, 1813, says: "The irregularity of supplies has retarded my progress very much, and I am anxious to reach the center of the Creek country, and give them a final blow, and then strike at the root of the diseas pensacola." Ibid., I, 339. See also Jackson to Holmes, in ibid., VI, 428.

[3] The Georgia troops were led by Brig. Gen. John Floyd and Gen. John Adams. Ibid., I, 364. A letter from Jackson to Gov. Willie Blount, December 29, 1813, says: "We have got within 90 miles of each other [the Georgia troops]." Ibid., I, 419.

[4] On November 7, 1813, Daniel Parker, chief clerk of War Department, notified Governor Blount that Governor Mitchell of Georgia, having declined re-election, the President of the United States had ordered Maj. Gen. Thomas Pinckney to take direction of the expedition against the hostile Indians. Ibid., I, 351, n. On November 16, 1813, Pinckney notified Jackson that he had been so ordered. Ibid., I, 363.

[5] Col. Samuel Wear (1753-1818) commanded a regiment from East Tennessee from September 23, 1813, until January 1, 1814. Tenn. State Archives. He was a veteran of the King's Mountain campaign and an early settler of Sevier county. War of 1812 Records (in possession of the editor).

[84] The poor Indians were pillaged and their property ravaged by the army, which was always short of supplies. Many complaints were sent to Colonel Meigs about the conduct of the East Tennesseans, but very little relief was felt while the war lasted. The Indian warriors were at the front, fighting for the Americans, while the women and children were made to starve by their allies. Along the Ross road from Ross' Landing to Turkeytown, near Ft. Armstrong, hardly a cow or hog, or an ear of corn was left. Daniel Ross wrote to Colonel Meigs at Hiwassee asking help for them. In 1816 Colonel Meigs submitted to Secretary of War John Armstrong claims for the Cherokees amounting to $25,498.42½ for property damages inflicted by the march of the white troops through their lands. Meigs MSS. (in possession of Mrs. P. J. Allen, Chattanooga, Tennessee). Jackson informed Cocke, December 28, 1813, that certain felonies were traced to Colonel Wear's regiment, and denounced the actions of the troops. Bassett, op. cit., I, 415.

CHESTERFIELD COUNTY, VA. REVOLUTIONARY PENSION CLAIMS.

Under a United States pension act passed in 1831, claims for Revolutionary pensions were to be proved before the local courts, and one copy of the duly attested declaration forwarded to the Pension Department, while another was filed with the Court. In some of the Virginia counties the duplicate declarations are still preserved on file. In others they have been lost; but in all the application and the action of the Court is duly entered, with varying degrees of fullness in the minutes—the "order books," as they are called in Virginia. The following is a list of those in Chesterfield, with date and page reference:

REV. J. J. IN GOODSPEED's

(Arkansas)

Among the first books to contain biographical information about Arkansans, the six volume set divided the state into regions. Information included in the books was furnished by the biographee. The whole set of books is known as Goodspeed's, since it was published by the Goodspeed Publishing Company.

The following entry is about Rev. J. J. and his family:

> James J. Vest was born in Alabama, in 1821, and is a son of James and Sallie (Harvey) Vest, the former a native of Georgia, born in 1791, and to their union, which occurred 1809, a family of eight children were born: Albert, James, John, George, William, Lucy, Martha and Nancy. The mother of these children died in Alabama, in 1827, she having been a worthy member of the Methodist Episcopal Church for many years. Mr. Vest wedded his second wife, Margaret Canady, in 1828, she being a daughter of Felix Canady, and the following children were born to their union: Henry, Martin, Jonathan and Sarah. Mr. Vest from earliest boyhood was reared to a farm life, and received his early education in the common schools of Georgia. He served as a captain in the Alabama State Guards, State Militia, and in 1833 was elected to the office of constable of Morgan County, Ala., and after remaining in office for several years he was (in 1838) elected sheriff of the same county, holding the position until 1840. Two years later, he was elected to represent Winston County, Ala., in the State legislature, and died in this county in 1868, followed by his wife two years later, and they lie side by side in the Old Mount Nebo Cemetery, Ala. James J. Vest received his early instructions in farming from his father, and in 1857 removed to Izard County, Ark., from which State he enlisted in the Confederate army in 1862, under Gen. Price, and after serving for a short time in the infantry, he joined the cavalry, and was a participant in all the principal battles which occurred west of the Mississippi River. He surrendered at Jacksonport on the 25th day of June, 1865. When a young man in his native State, he studied for the ministry, and in 1838 was licensed to preach in the Methodist Church, and was a minister of that denomination for several years. In 1865 he was ordained to preach in the Baptist Church, and although he was the owner of a tract of land, he has divided it among his children, and devotes his time to the cause of Christianity. He is a stanch Democrat, a Royal Arch Mason, and also belongs to the I. O. O. F. His wife, who was formerly a Miss Delaney Kent, and whom he married in 1840, was born in the State of Alabama, and she and Mr. Vest are the parents of the following family: Albert, James, William, Martha and Mary living, and John, Malviney and Sallie deceased. [51]

note May 1992 - Saw genealogy at Wisconsin State Hx Soc re this man + his descendants - included photos.
He was a frontier preacher in Arkansas. No proof he was our distant cousin but he probably was. (Note the names of his children + parents.)

DELANEY KENT VEST

Delaney was a tiny woman. It is said she fit under her very tall, very dark haired husband's outstretched arms.

REV. J. J. VEST

His (Alabama?) mother was a devout Methodist. He became a Meth. preacher in late teens, but was later ordained Baptist minister in Arkansas.

The Arkansas preacher. May have been very distant kin of ours. Headstrong, dominant; powerful preacher - intimidated his grandchildren. Traveled much - held weekly services at four widely separated churches.

Is she the lady on 1820 census Washington Co?
Not likely widow of John Vest, Rev soldier who died in 1818 because the 1799 instrument would have been in his name in that day & age. This lady likely a widow?

boundary at that place just mentioned, and intersected the old boundary where it crosses White Water River, in the extreme eastern part of the State, fifty miles north of the Ohio. South of this to the Ohio River all the land was ceded to the United States by certain chiefs and warriors of the Pottawattomie, Miami, Eel River, Delaware and Wea tribes. This treaty was made at Grouceland, near Vincennes, in August, 1805. Thus there is found to be no less than four separate treaties or deeds from the Indians to the United States, conveying in different tracts the land now embraced in Orange County. These were made as follows: At Fort Wayne, June 7, 1803; at Vincennes, August 18 and 27, 1804; at Grouceland, August 21, 1805; at Fort Wayne, September 30, 1809. In nearly all of these Gen. William H. Harrison was Commissioner, acting on the part of the Government.

LOCAL INDIAN VILLAGES.

Concerning the more direct Indian occupants of this county, there is but little of reliable information to be found. It seems that the red men in the earliest times did not occupy much of the county as a permanent habitation, but lived at a distance along the larger streams and resorted hither in quest of game. A few small villages were established at random, one of which was Shawnee, and stood on the banks of Lost River, not far from where that stream sinks in the northeastern part of the county. The chief of this village was known as "King Billy," and is said to have had a red-headed white woman for a wife. After white men began to arrive there were but few Indians in the county, and these only in straggling and roving bands, sometimes for hunting, sometimes for pillage and plunder, and occasionally for bloodshed. Throughout the whole of the Wabash Valley great discontent and hatred was instilled into the Indians against the white settlers who were rapidly destroying their forest hunting grounds. Foremost among those who entertained this bitter hatred for the whites were the renowned Shawnee warrior, Tecumseh, and his brother, called the Prophet. Under their lead an Indian war was begun and only ended with the battle of Tippecanoe, in November 1811. Frequently during these years of terror and strife were the few inhabitants of Orange County compelled to fly to one of the early forts or block-houses that were then built for protection of the pioneers.

THE LOG HOUSES.

Probably the first house of this kind in the county was built on the farm now owned by Mr. Samuel Mahan, in the northwestern part of Stampers Creek Township. This was known as the Moore Fort, and in his youth Mr. Edward Moore, now living at Orleans, lived there with his parents. The house was of the regular block style, and a few yards away a trench or deep ditch was dug entirely around it just inside of which was a row of split posts set into the ground slanting out over the ditch. This effectually prevented an approach from the outside to the house where the settlers were congregated. Farther north in the county was another on Lost River, in Orleans Township, on the farm now owned by George Wolfe. This was near the site of the old Shawnee village before spoken of. In Northeast Township, on the farm of Preston Tegarden, stood what was known in early times as the Maxwell Fort, and in its day was the one more frequently resorted to than any other in this part of the county. In the western part a fort was established at French Lick, and during the years when Tecumseh had stirred the Indians into frequent acts of hostility, a company of rangers was stationed at this place for the purpose of protecting the whites in this section. As a Government station this was maintained until about the year 1815.

MURDERS COMMITTED BY INDIANS.

Orange County has been fortunate in the scarcity of its Indian murders. After the coming of white men the red natives were seldom seen except in small roving bands. Before this time nearly all of them had moved from this territory in accordance with the various treaties, and only returned at intervals, usually, perhaps in the ardor of the chase, sometimes with the object of wreaking a deep and merciless revenge upon the innocent frontier settlers. There is said to have been three white men killed in the county by the Indians. Concerning one of these there is much doubt and but little reliability. However, on the authority of Uncle Thomas Bedster, of Northwest Township, who is one of the oldest men and earliest settlers now living in the county, it seems that a man named Samuel Wilson was killed in Orangeville Township on the farm now owned by William C. Shirley, at a very early time. Mr. Bedster affirms the truth of this in an emphatic way, and no one was found to dispute it, but several had heard of the matter, although it had nearly escaped their memory. Nothing of the particulars could be learned, and this statement is given for whatever value it may bear in itself. About the year 1814 a man named Vest was shot and killed near where the present town of Orleans is situated. The particulars seem to be about as follows: Some horses were missing in the neighborhood of the Lost River settlement, and a party of men were out searching for them. It was supposed that they had been stolen by a band of Indians that was at the time hovering in that part of the county, although this supposition proved to be erroneous. When at a place one-half mile northeast of the present town limits, the men were fired upon by Indians in ambush and Vest was instantly killed. The savages made good their escape, and the victim was buried upon the spot where he fell, and his grave is still pointed out by the citizens of Orleans as a monument of the only savage treachery that ever occurred to stain with blood the settlement of their prosperous community.

Re: Chesterfield Co. Vests — Rev War — Gabriel V.

by Daniel Trabue

of bred and ginder cakes and took them to our Mess. We saved some of our bred for the next morning and put in each man's napsack.[33] We cross the river at the town—wagons, artilery and all—and took up the plank of the bridge[34] and lay on our arms all night. We was now in chesterfield county, whire I was born and raised.

Some of our county men heard of the approch of the enemy and in the night had come to us—perhaps 1 or 2 hundred, some of them light horse[35] and others on foot.[36] Their was Great counciling that night with our general and field officers. The conclusion was to fight and try the Militia.

When Morning [April 25] came at Day light the reveley beat, a Morning gun fired, the plank of the bridge laid Down, and a hogshead of Rum rooled out to every Ridgment of Men, the head nockd out. "Now, boys, drink and fill your canteens," was the word. "But Don't Drink too much. We are a going to fight to Day."[37] It was said the enemy was 6,000, our army upward of 3,00[0], nearly 2 to 1.[38]

Our cannon was not took over the river but kept on a hill[39] on chesterfield side near the bridge, and it was before sun rise the army was over the bridge. Several patroling little companys was sint out a reconetering. They weare light horse from our county Just come as Vallenteers. Our advance guard meet the enemy a bout 1 Mile from town. This advance was only a sergant and 12 Men. His orders was when he meet them to fire when they came in 200 paces of them, and then retreat to where they would meet with a larger squad. They Did so and meet about 100 which had the same orders. This 100 Men fired when the enemy was fully 200 yards Distant and fired several Times until they Got in about 100 Ditto and then Retreated to where their was about 500. They also fired several times. The bretish fired their cannon but our men was so scattered that they did not receeve much Damage, while the enemy's loss was considerable. At length the british charge on them. They thin Retreated to whear the main army was.[40]

Our men was behind a wear house, a hedge, and Diches, and fences, etc. And we fired on the britesh as they advanced.[41] We took good aim and killed a number of them. A party of our men had been sent to charge on their left flank. This seemed to halt the enemy and our people a fireing away. The britesh had no light horse and our men ventured very much with a superiour force. Our Army retrated further in the town,[42] and it was one hour or two before the Enemy advanced on our men.[43]

And while we was their waiting Colo[nel] Forkner[44] called out for volenteers to go with him to take a britesh vessil that was 1/2 mile below and a ground. He said he wanted a Capt. and subaltons and a bout 60 Men. He wanted brave men and them that could swim. A Capt. Epperson, who I was well acquainted with, run out and said, "Come out, boys." It was perhaps one or two menuts before any one turned out. One of my mess—to wit, Gabril Vest[45]—said to me if I would go he would. All the hesitation I had I thought we was needed where we was and perhaps taking the Vessil was not Much of an object. However, I told vest I woud and out we went. We weare the first that followed Capt. Epperson. The company was made up and started in 5 Menuts.

We went in a run, and before we got to them they fired on us. We went on the bank oppersit the vessil within 60 or 70 yards and fired on them as fast as we could load and shoot. They fired several times at us. When Capt. Epperson saw them puting their Mach to their canon he would cry out, "Shot!" All of us would fall Down and the cannon ball generally went over our heads. We would Jump up and fire again at the men we could see on Deck and Did actuly kill the most of them. As we now could see no other to shoot at and they had quit shooting at us Capt. Epperson sayed, "Boys, we will board her." All things was now still.

When Col. Forkner was off at a Distance of 200 yards a waching at the head of a swomp for fear some of the enemy might souround us when we did not expect it, Col. Forkner came riding as fast as he could, hollowing, "Retreat! Retreat! Retreat!" We started and when he Meet us he told us their was several hundred of the enemy a sourounding us. We run a long up the river. And when we got up to the head of the swomp where Col. Forkner had been a waching the enemy, a bout 250 me[n] was oppeseset to us a bout 200 yards off to our right. We could out run them. When they Discovered that they Could not ketch us, they turned and went to their Vessil and I suppose found the most of their men dead. We had 2 Men badly wounded with grape shot and had gone away previously. One ball went in the bank under us and knocked so much of Dirt on sveral of us that we was stuned for a little while.

We went to our redgement. They had been skrimishing while we was Gone. We meet them Retreating over the bridge. We then was before in the Retreat. As soon as we Got over the bridge we went above and below the bridge on the edge of the water to save the Retreat over the bridge.

When the enemy Discovered our men acrossing the bridge they rushed after them. Our cannon had been fireing on them the most of the Day but at the begining of their fireing they was at a Great Distance, but Now when they came near they (the enemy) was much Damaged by our cannon. The bridge was not wide enough for the men to get over fast enough. The enemy came Rushing Down to cut off our rear.

Where I stood we had a fine view of them and they weare very fair to us and we made good use of it. The enemy at the foot of the bridge was in solid Colums and was some little time combating with our men, chargeing with their bayonets. And our men resisted and Definded themselves some little, but at last they took off about 40 or 50 of our men

Young Gabriel Vest (Rev War soldier & friend of the young Huguenot descendant) was a distant cousin of our Vests.

The Gabriel Vest referred to is one of Daniel Trabue's friend & neighbor of Chesterfield Co. (during Rev War) before our faces within 60 or 70 yards of us but they paid Dear for these men. Our redgiment at the bridge fired 10 or 12 times each. I fired 13 very fair shoots, and the most of the shoots when they were nigh a plenty the wind blowed of[f] the smook. And when I fired I looked whire I shot at and I could see them tilt over. And when they Retreated up the hill from the bridge they run, as our men would keep on fireing at their flanks so as not to hurt our men who was Just made prisoners.

We lost that Day killd 40, wounded 60, prisoners 50. The enemy's loss was 6 or 800.[46] Near about the bridge after the enemy retreated the ground was covered with red coats as we could see them plain.[47]

The fireing first began a little after sun rise and continud until two hours of the sun in the evining. Their was some time on that Day when you could not hear a gun but not long at a time. Several times that day my gun was so hot that I could hardley hold it. If I would spit on it, it would fize.

Our Militia that Day was very brave. We was ordered to fire when they was some Distance from us, and when they came up nigh the men Had got a litle use to it.

At one time of that Day a redgiment Joined our Redgiment that had not been engaged as yet. And a young man in this new Redgiment, only one man betwen us, said he was very sick. He lay Down in the rear of his platoon and roold on the ground, the enemy a coming on before us. Maj. Boyse,[48] Brigader Major, Rideing along in the rear giveing orders, this sick man attempted to run away. The Major road after him, sweareing he would cut of[f] his head as he was a Coward. This young man tryed to Jump over a Gulley and fell back in the Gulley. The Major's horse Jumped over the Gulley. The young man run back to his place and stood in his place. The major Turned his horse and come back, and as the young man was in his place said nothing more. Orders was emediately give for to fire. I cast my Eye to this young man. He fired and kept on a fireing as well as any of us. I make no Doubt but this young man was sick, but it was fear that was the cause of it and Major Boyse cured him.

Their was some of my near neighbours on horse back equipt as light horse—to wit, Robert Wooldredge and 5 others—sent out in the morning to go a round the enemy, and go Down to their shiping to bring information and pick up straglers if they could. They returned about the middle of the day with 5 prisoners who was on cappital good horses. These men had some of the Generals' baggage comeing on behind, had Just come on from their shiping, and they were well armed. The way they took them: they saw them at a Distance and hid themsilves in ambush until they came close by, and on a sudden ordered them to surrender and they yealded emediately. When they brought them to our camp it did very much Revive us to see these red coats and to think our undisiplined men Did take old vetorns. Mr. Wooldredge and these 5 Men was Vallenteers and had Just came to us in the night.

Some of our wounded which was slitly [slightly] wounded could Travil on foot and 2 wagons halled the ballance. We left Petersburgh when the sun was nearly 2 hours high in the evening. I was now 25 Miles from home. We marched towards whire I lived up towards our court house. We went about 7 Miles that night, and encamed at Dark where theire was a plenty of wood and water, and all went to cooking and eating. That Day their was but few of this army that Did eat one Mouthful. For my part I Did eat a small piece of a light loaf that I had got the over night.

I Did never in my life before nor since Drink as much nor half as much rum or other sperrits in one Day as I Did that Day. I filled my canteen in the morning which held near one quart, and once in a while take a Dram out from the canteen. I Drank no water nor had no chance to git any. And I had never been used to Drink sperrits much without water; but that day when I wanted water, when I had time I wood take a Dram, and at night my rum was out and I was Duly sober. And the rest of the men Did about the same.

When morning [April 26] came we went on to chesterfield court house,[49] which was about 5 Mile. And about 2 hours of the sun in the evining Capt. Mosley told me the army would leave that place that night and he expected we would go towards where we lived. He said Corn Wallis[50] and Col. Talton[51] was also come from the south and was at Petersburgh with the other britesh army. And he further said, "I wish you would go home and go to my house and give my wife the knews and see my overseer and tell thim Thus and so, and you come to us to Morrow. I know you can and will." And said he, "Don't say one word to one of the soldiers of this, as a vast number wants to go home and some of them in sight of their homes as we March along." And said he, "Take your Mother's Waggon and load it with Brady and bring it to camp. If she has not got it, go to my Seller [cellar]. Their is plenty." Capt. Mosley was very unesey about his Negros for fear they might flee to the enemy.[52] I told him I would go.

Cornwallis
+ Tarlton

At this chesterfield court house was Barren Stuben[53] with new recruets of soldiers and a vast number of young officers, that he was tutering for the army and publick stoors also. I had no thought of our army leaving that place without contending for it. So it was, they left it the same night after I was gone. And they Did not have wagons sufficient to remove the stoors and they left them behind.

I had 12 Miles to go and I started about 1 1/2 hours before sun set alone on foot. When I was 4 Mile from home in the Dark night I heard some body a meeting me like a heavy footed negro. I suposed he was runing a way going to the british. I halted untill he got in a bout 20 yards. I then hailed him, "Who comes their?" He stopt. I then said, "Don't run or you will be shot. Who are you?" He broake and run. I fired at him. The blaze semed to go almost to the fellow. It was a loud Report. The Fellow run off. I never heard who I shot at, but their was a number of negros run away that night.

When I got home all was well and our negros all at home. I went to Capt. Mosley's emediately and his negros was all at home. A few nights after that some [of] Capt. Mosley's did run off and one of mine. I ate and slept well that night. When morning [April 27] came my mother's Wagon was made ready and loaded with Brandy. She was very glad for me to have it. She said she was afraid the british would hear she had it when they weare in the neighbourhood and come after it, or if the negros would rise they would come after it. Now the poor woman was almost as afraid of the negros as of the british. My Mother's nigro Drove the wagon. Brother Stephen was about 14 years old. He went along with us to help to retail it.

We meet with the army at Falling creek church about 4 or 5 Miles from our home.[54] They had been Marching almost all night. Our army was perraded in a large green wheat Field and Commanded by Barren Stuben. He had some of his soldiers and officers with him. They expected the enemy every menut. They [the enemy] did on this day Come to the court house and took what they wanted and burned all the ballance. Evin the court house they burned,[55] and Talton was seen coming this way. The army marched this same evening and stopt at the cole pits near where we lived.[56]

In 2 or 3 Days I sold out my brandy and went and got Capt. Mosley's and sold it and made a handsom profit on it. When I was oblidge to Do Duty Brother Stephen was Tapster with the assistance of the negro Driver, but I was mostly their my self and would hire a man to go on Guard in my place.

Our army[57] at this time was 25 Miles from Petersburgh, and they moved back towards Petersburgh 12 Miles—not fair from Chesterfield court house at Sutberry's Old Field.[58] They weare now about 13 M[iles] from Petersburgh, and on a rainey Day [May 23] the men in their Tents, some in a barn, some a cooking, some out of camp (I was out of camp myself by permission), when Talton with 500 horse, and ivery horse one of the Infentrey behind. So their was 1,000 came up on them on the backside.[59] The men broake and run. Some of the officers hollowed to the Men to perade but all in vain. Lewis Subblit[60] (my brother-in-law) run in the barn, took his gun and catritge box, waked his brother James (but he was taken a prisoner), and run out. They told him to stop, a D[amned] Rebel, and one horseman came up with him. He Defended himself with his bayonet, Jumped over the fence in a swomp, and made his escape very narrowly. This swomp saved a bundence of the men. They took 40 odd prisoners and the most of the guns, all the cannon and all the waggons with the baggege and publick stores that they had with them.[61]

These 40 odd men was taken Down the river in a prison ship and took sick and Died—every man except 3. They weare Martain Rayley,[62] John Bowman, and Gabril Vest. All the rest did actully Die by Hard yousage. They weare plundered of their cloaths, kept in a prison ship, and nothing good to eat, not even good water. These 3 Men told me so.

Mr. Bowmer, I said, came home alive; but he was sick when he was exchanged for, and his people fetched him home and he Died. He lay as a skilitan for months previous to his Death. This Mr. Railey was a cousin of Tom Jefferson [and] a neighbour of mine, a very young man, but a man of sence. This Gabril Vest was also my neigbour and as Great a heroe as any. I saw Bowmon before he Died. They all told me the main Reason of their hard Treatment was because they would not inlist in the service of his Gracious Majesty king G[eorge] III. Mr. Vest told me he thought he would make his escape from them, but he had not the least chance as they kept them in a ship well guarded.

These men that was supprised at sutberry's Old Field was Dispersed in such a Manner, was never got to gether again. Some few was colected and went on to the north where they Meet General Fayatte[63] and General Wayn[64] on the Rappey Dan River at the Rackoon Ford.[65] My time of servise was now Out.

The britesh army was Destessing our cuntry very much and had no oppisition. Corn Wallis had his head quarters at Petersburgh,[66] and Col. Taltern roaving about the country Just where he plesed.

The people in chesterfield was mostly hid in the swomps. These swomps in the wenter is wet and poonds of water, but in the summer is Dry and very bushey—almost equil to cain breaks. Almost all our young Women left their homes and went up the country. When the britesh would go to a house they would compel the negros and children to go and shew wher the meet[67] or brandy or flour was hid out.

My Mother's house was weather boarded and lathed and plastered inside; and I went on the back side and Drawd a plank or two, and put the most of the Cloathing and plate and the like, and nailed it up again. No one knew of it but me and my Mother. Some of our meet we hid out, and only some negros know where it was but those we could confide in. My sisters went to an unkil's where it was thought was a very private place. What arms and ammonition we had we hid out.

Brother William and my self when we was at home slept out. Brother Stephen (a boy) and my Mother stayed at home.

Capt. Mosley, Brother Wiliam, and my self took several tours on the enemie's line in the night. Corn Wallis and Talton left the south side of the river and went on the North side to Richmond.[68] that he had been married previously and had thereby become the founder of one or two lines in Henrico (Chesterfield) which we have already mentioned as not definitely placed. Certainly his eldest son Thomas may well have been the offspring of an earlier union.

The following items concerning Charles Burton have been taken from Chesterfield records:

On June 5, 1749, the court ordered that "a Road be opened from the road near John Blankinship's to Swift Creek at or near Charles Burton's and from there to second branch road. That George Cogbill be overseer thereof to have the hands of Peter Fitzpatrick, Charles Burton, Wm Perkinson, John Vest and Henry Womack." 1749

In June and October, 1751, and July 1752, Charles Burton served on a jury. In January 1752 the Levy court paid him ten pounds of tobacco; in August 1752 George Cousins was ordered to pay Charles Burton and his wife 200 lbs. of tobacco for four days attendance each as witnesses for him against "ffreeland."

In June, 1752, the estate of Peter Gill, deceased, was directed to pay £9-14-6 to Charles Burton, Senior, for hides. This is the first time he is designated as "Senior" which shows that his son of the same age was already at least 16 years old, and thus tithable.

The Chesterfield Order Book on August 1752 contains the petition of Charles Burton to build a mill on Swift Creek near his own plantation; permission was granted by the court on the understanding that he would build a mill dam at least seven feet high.

Charles Burton devoted a large part of his career to litigation. There follows a partial list of the suits in court in which he was engaged: 1738 James Franklin vs. Charles Burton; 1739 Field Jefferson vs. Charles Burton; 1739 John Puckett vs. Charles Burton; 1752 Shipy Allen Puckett vs. Charles Burton (dismissed) and Charles Burton vs. John Gibbs for debt; 1753 John Wayles vs. Charles Burton; 1754— in this year two ladies of the family connection brought suit against him and he triumphed over them both: Obedience Burton the wife of Isaiah Burton of Pocoshock, and Phebe Burton, a niece of Charles. 1761, Thomas Hanks vs. Charles Burton and Gerrard Walthall vs. same; 1768 Wm Anderson & Co. vs. Charles Burton for debt; 1769 Charles Burton vs. James Franklyn, Jr. whom we believe to have been his wife's nephew—"the suit being brought for words to wit That the > Plt. kept a sifter in his mill and sifted the customers meal & converted it to his own use. The Deft. confessed in court that he did not think Plt. guilty and that he never spoke the words Thereupon the suit dismissed."

1772, Charles Burton vs. John Arbuckle, dismissed; 1774 Charles Burton vs. John Nunnally.

Assiduous litigation no doubt varied the monotony of life as a miller and dealer in hides.

That Charles Burton had a softer side appears, however, from a deed dated February 6, 1756, when he conveyed to his "beloved son Thomas Burton" 150 acres of land on the south side of Swift Creek, "bounded by the said Creek and the lands of Peter Fitzpatrick, John Sturdevant and Thomas Dance the younger." The order book (11. 156) contains an entry for February 1756 of acknowledgement of a deed of gift from Charles Burton to his son Charles. The gift no doubt was another tract of land.

On May 7, 1756, Thomas Jotty, Junr., Charles (C) Burton and William Vaden witnessed a deed of Henry (×) Worsham the younger of Amelia to John Rowlett of Chesterfield for of Mr. Madison. He served with President James Madison, of William and Mary College, on a commission to define the Virginia and Pennsylvania line. He married (first) Elizabeth Ballard, (second) Mary Blair.

Andrews, William, an ancient planter, came before 1616, was living on the eastern shore in 1624; lieutenant-colonel of the militia of Northampton county; died in 1654 or 1655, leaving issue—William, John, Robert, Andrew and daughter Susanna, and grandchildren, Elisheba and Elizabeth Andrews.

Andrews, William, Jr., son of Lieut.-Col. William Andrews, was sheriff of Northampton county in 1655, and burgess in 1663. He married Dorothea, the widow of Mountjoy Evelyn and daughter of Col. Obedience Robins, of "Cherrystone." He was a justice, major of militia, etc.

Anne, Queen of the Pamunkey Indians in 1676, and widow of Tobopotomoi. She was a relative of Opechaucanough. Bacon attacked her tribe and she was forced to flee for her life. Sir Herbert Jefferyes completed a treaty of peace with her on May 29, 1677, at which time he gave her a coronet, or frontal, adorned with false jewels. By an English colonel she had a son Capt. John West, who was about twenty in 1676. Her coronet is preserved by the Virginia Historical Society.

Appleton, John, was born in 1640, and was probably from New England, where the name is prominent. He was burgess from Westmoreland in the session of March 7, 1675-76, and was a captain. He married Frances Gerard (widow of Thomas Speke and Valentine Peyton). His widow married (fourthly) Col. ohn Washington, ancestor of George Washington. He had a "brother, Mr. Richard Colbourn, neare Spittlefields Gate, in London," in 1674. Capt. Appleton died in 1676.

Applewhaite, Capt. Henry, was a burgess for Isle of Wight county at the assembly of 1700-1702. He came from Barbadoes, and died in 1704, leaving issue—sons, Henry (q. v.), Thomas and William, and daughter Anne.

Applewhaite, Henry, son of Henry Applewhaite, was burgess for Isle of Wight county in 1723-1726.

Archer, Capt. James, ensign in the regiment of Col. Herbert Jefferyes, sent over in 1676 to subdue Bacon's rebellion; settled in Virginia and was justice of the peace for York county. His daughter Anne married Maj. William Barber (q. v.).

Armistead, Anthony, was son of the emigrant, William Armistead, who was son of Anthony Armistead and Frances Thompson, his wife, of Kirkdeighton, in Yorkshire, England, and resided in Elizabeth City county. He was one of Sir William Berkeley's court-martial in 1676 to try the Bacon insurgents; justice of the peace and captain of horse in 1680; burgess from Elizabeth City county in 1693, 1696, 1697, 1699; and one of the committee in 1700 to report a revision of the laws which was approved by the general assembly in 1705. He married Hannah, daughter of Dr. Robert Ellyson, of James City county.

Armistead, Anthony, son of Anthony Armistead, son of William, the emigrant, was burgess from Elizabeth City county, in the assembly of 1720-1722. He was lieutenant-colonel of militia in 1724. He was justice and high sheriff of Elizabeth City county. He was called Anthony Armistead, Senior, to distinguish him from his nephew, Anthony Armistead, of Warwick county. He married, it is believed, twice: (First) Anne, who united with Anthony Armistead in a deed in 1717, (secondly) Elizabeth Westwood, sister of William Westwood. His will was probated Dec. 18, 1728.

Armistead, Gill, was the son and heir of Capt. John Armistead, of New Kent, and his wife, Elizabeth (Gill?). He lived in Blissland parish, New Kent. He was sheriff in 1751, and colonel in 1758. He married Betty Allen, of James City. He was burgess from New Kent in the sessions of Nov. 3, 1761, Jan. 14, 1762, March 30, 1762. In the sessions of Nov. 2, 1762, Burwell Bassett represented New Kent in place of Gill Armistead, deceased.

Armistead, Col. Henry, was son of Col. John Armistead, of the council, and lived first at "Hesse," at the mouth of Pianketank river, in Gloucester (now Mathews county). In 1733 he was sworn county lieutenant of Caroline, and must have lived, during the latter portion of his life, in Caroline county. He married Martha (baptized Nov. 16, 1685), daughter of Maj. Lewis Burwell. He had issue: 1. William, of Hesse. 2. Lucy, married Thomas Nelson, of Yorktown, secretary of state. 3. Martha, married Dudley Digges. 4. Robert.

Armistead, Robert, son of Anthony Armistead, and Hannah Ellyson, his wife, and grandson of the emigrant, William, was a burgess for Elizabeth City county in 1714, succeeding Nicholas Curle, who died; in 1715, agent for Row's warehouse on Poquosin river; justice and sheriff of York county; married (first) Miss Booth, (second) Katherine Nutting, and his will was proved in Elizabeth City county, May 9, 1742. He left issue—Ellyson Armistead and others.

Armistead, Robert, was burgess from Elizabeth City county in the session of May 12, 1726. He was son of Maj. William Armistead; married Ann, daughter of Rev. James Wallace, who came from Erroll, in Perthshire, Scotland. In 1737 the trustees for Eaton's Free School land rented him a portion of the land, for the natural lives of his sons, Robert, William and James, conditioned on his building two tobacco houses, planting and caring for an orchard of 200 winter apple trees and paying to the trustees the annual rent of six pounds current money. Robert Armistead was for many years church warden of his parish, and colonel of the militia. His will is dated July 28, 1771, and was proved Nov. 24, 1774.

Armistead, William, was son of Anthony Armistead (q. v.) and his wife, Hannah Ellyson. He resided in Elizabeth City county, and was major in the militia, high sheriff of Elizabeth City county (1695) and a justice. He was burgess from Elizabeth City county in the assembly of 1696-1697, and in the sessions of May 13 and June 18, 1702, Oct. 25, 1710, and Nov. 16, 1714. He married several times. His first wife was Hannah, born July 1, 1673, daughter of Thomas Hinde (or Hine) by his wife Hannah. Maj. Armistead's last wife was Rebecca, daughter of Edward Moss, J. P., of York county. Maj. Armistead's will is dated Jan. 5 (year blank), and probated Feb. 17, 1715-16.

VEST FAMILY

On Christmas Eve 1812, in one of those green valleys over near the Holston, seventeen-year-old Martha E. "Patsey" Vest married her sweetheart, not-quite-twenty William Willis "Billy" Clayton. * The following Christmas season was not so merry, though. Her young husband had been drafted and was way over east on the Chesapeake Bay, now blockaded by the British. He was helping to "prevent takeover of the seaport of Norfolk by the enemy." But he was back home in time for spring planting, and all was well.

These youngsters were Grandpa William Wesley White's maternal great grandparents, so we naturally would like to know as much about them as we can. We will start by trying to trace Patsey's ancestry back as far as we can. The task is not easy for someone like me, spoiled by those nifty New England town records to the year 1850. Colonial Virginia town records were a rarity, and so were towns in the beginning when most folk lived on tobacco plantations. After the product was cured it was encased in large hogsheads and rolled to the nearest river dock for shipment to England, though by 1812 our family was too far west. We think Patsey's parents were James & Fanny (Davison) Vest. If so, her grandparents were James Sr. & Lucretia Vest and Edward & Agnes Davison.

Actually, at this stage all is but a search. Some material has been found and hopefully more will be. The best way I know of to see how and IF it all fits together, and where the gaps are, is to document everything chronologically. Lucky for us, Vest is an unusual surname. Please be warned that this will not read like a novel. It will read like a documentary, perhaps a bit jerky, with too much extraneous data for we do not know what could safely be left out.

It should be mentioned before we begin our report, that there is one Vest Genealogy, and it seems well written. Trouble is, it starts out too late to help us, with John Vest, a brave Revolutionary War veteran who died while receiving a pension in Franklin Co. VA.It seems to me that he was probably Patsey's uncle. If not he was a second cousin or so. We have no way of knowing if James, her father, fought, for he died when she was 13 or 14. It seems rather likely he did, but we can only guess. Most soldiers of that time and place were "minute men." That is, they fought in individual battles or campaigns usually limited to 90 days unless they re-enlisted. They are rarely listed in any military rolls. If they lived to old age (1833 on) they could get pensions if they needed the money, by proving their service to the proper authorities. The average man born about 1750 was not alive in the mid 1830's.

There are also family group sheets and descendancy charts available through the Latter Day Saints. Presumably they contain much valid information, but in this case we can spot many obvious errors without trying hard. They seem to imply that those of the Vest surname in America are mostly descended from a John Vest (died 1765 in Chesterfield Co. VA) and his wife, Ann Bakes. Chronologically he could not be our ancestor though he and his children will be told about here, for they were part of our clan.

George and Mary Vest had one son, George Jr. and six daughters, the last of whom was born after he died. John and Mary Vest may have had older children born before they came, perhaps the Valentine whom we shall meet later among them, though he could also have been a younger brother. The known children were (1) John bp 07 Sep 1712, who, I speculate, was probably

John of Chesterfield, subject of all those charts (2) Mary born 22 Jan bp 02 Feb 1714/5. The book, which does not contain marriage records, nevertheless says she married William Keys whose children are shown on a page I neglected to copy.

John and Ann Vest (of Chesterfield?) had one child in that vicinity before they moved on, (1) Elizabeth bp 14 Dec 1735.

When George died prematurely, Mary seems to have had a hard time controlling her oldest teenaged daughter. The church records show that Sara Vest, "grass widow" had a daughter (1) Mille, bp 05 Oct 1729. Later on Judith Vest, "grass widow" had a daughter Simion, five months old, bp 29 Apr 1750. It was not mentioned whom Judith's parents were. Bsck in those days, grass widow usually meant unwed mother rather than a divorcee. Perhaps in olden days when such things were more difficult to control and harder to hush up when love went awry, such things were more common than posterity realizes.

It appears that at least some of George Vest's daughters stayed in the area but that George Jr. probably moved on, perhaps to join relatives -- that name is later found among the clan. The timing is right for John and John Vest, Jr., to be the Vests next sighted up the Mattaponi, which the upper stretch of the York River is called in honor of an indigenous Indian tribe which had now left.

11 Mar 1736/7. Action of debt. Joseph Temple agt John Vest dismissed. (note--from reading the book, it appears that if an action in those days were taken in default against a defendant who did not appear the first time, he could appear at next court and plead his case. Thus he was able to have Temple's motion dismissed. Second note--many of the names which show up prominently in local histories are featured in these order books. Page mentions "Col Armistead's people." You will observe the connection later.)
12 Aug 1737. John Vest acknowledges his mortgage to the Hon. John Carter, Esq. (Is this the very prominent early land speculator?)
12 Nov 1737. It's ordered John Vest pay Hew Noden 50 pounds of tobacco for two days' attendance as evidence for him agt. Pattison. It's ordered that Charles Pattison pay Charles Trainhem 50 pounds of tobacco for two days' attendance as an evidence for him ads. Vest.

10 June 1743. Valn. Vest agt Leond. Young. Trespass on the case. 12 member jury (listed) find for the defendant.
10 June 1743. It is ordered Valn. Vest pay John Holloway, Edward Grady, John Barns (each) 50 pounds of tobacco for two days' attendance as an evidence for him agt Young.
12 Aug 1743. Action of trespass on the case. John Vest Jr. agt John Daniel and Ann, his wife. Dismissed, (parties) being agreed.
09 Sep 1743. Petition. Val. Vest agt John Woodford Gent. Dismissed.
11 Aug 1744. Action of debt. Leighton Wood agt Valentine Vest. The defendant not appearing, judgment is granted against him and John Glanton his security for what damages the plaintiff shall recover unless the defendant appear at next court.
10 Nov 1744. Petition. Valentine Vest agt John Davis. Dismissed, being agreed. It's ordered Valentine Vest pay James Cox 125 pounds of tobacco for five days' attendance for him agt John Davis.
10 Nov 1744. Action of debt. Leighton Wood agt Valentine Vest. The defendant not appearing, judgment against him and John Glanton his security for Ł5.15.10 current money and costs. (This seems to be merely assessing costs of the 11 August case.)
14 March 1746/7. Several hundred persons were listed and the amounts they were to pay (name to be inserted) This is the kind of listing one often sees when a wealthy merchant dies and the heirs call in the accounts of all the customers who have charged items to their accounts. Valentine Vest is ordered to pay Ł0.3.4½, a trifling amount.
12 June 1747. Suit on attachment. William Taliafero, Gent., against the estate of John Vest. It is ordered that Sarah Battaile, widow, garnishee, declare what estate she has belonging to John Vest. (This speaks for itself. John, Sr., seems to have remarried a younger wife after Mary died, and even before the estate is probated, Sarah has remarried, into one of the "better" families of the community!)
12 Sep 1747. Suit on attachment. William Taliaferro Gent agt the estate of John Vest. The plaintiff proved his account. It's considered by the court he recover Ł8.14.8 current money. Henry Fitzhugh, Gent., garnishee, declared he has belonging to Vest 474 pounds of tobacco which he is to deliver to the sheriff and that he cause the same to be sold to satisfy the debt.

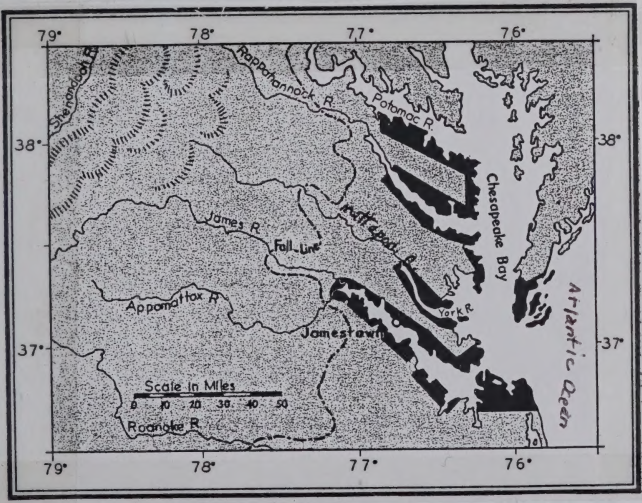
Then and even today, this type of garnishee is defined as "a third party who has been warned that money or property in his control, but due to or belonging to the defendant, has been attached legally." Fitzhugh must have run some type of storage and/or marketing facility for tobacco. Proving that Ł8.14.8 was a modest amount, another entry on the same page mentioned that there were 3551 tithables in the district, with Ł8 each to be collected by the sheriff. (Whether rich or poor did not matter--head taxes on every male 16 years or older on every ablebodied male often meant that poor people paid more taxes than the rich!) Thus this John Vest, perhaps our ancestor, died with outstanding bills equalling about a year's taxes, which Sarah caused Fitzhugh to pay. Probably there was a great deal left over.

VEST FAMILY

There were two official warehouses at shipping docks along the Mattaponi. It was ordered that William and Richd Taliafero, Gents, were to judge the weights at Boys. William Woodford and Lawrence Battaile, Gents, were to judge the weights at Conways. Reading all the entries, one gets the feeling that these citizens got their entertainment by suing each other in court, in a very litigious society.

This is all of the entries concerning Vests, except that about 1749 a deed of feoffment from Edmund Booker and Jane his wife to Richard Coleman was proved by Thomas Glass and George Vast, two of the witnesses. It might be helpful to know whether this Edmund Booker was related to Judge Edward Booker of Amelia County, whom we will soon encounter in connection with Valentine Vest. "Deed of feoffment" is a medieval term. A "fee" or "fief" was a grant of land from a lord on condition of homage and service. Another such term, "livery of seizin," was used on the same page. "Livery" is the official delivery of land to a new owner. "Seizin" (from the middle English-French word Seize) was possession of land in a freehold state.

Scanning old documents to learn more about the lives of our ancestors gives us a sense of how much customs have changed in two and a half centuries.



This little map shows the extent of white settlement in Virginia in 1650. So far, the first sighting of our Vests there was in 1709 by which time Indian trader William Byrd II and a colony of French Huguenots dwelt above the Falls of the James, but few others were living above the fall line. By 1740 a few hardy souls, predominately Scotch-Irish, were beyond the Shenandoah, but in 1750 the bulk of the population was only now beginning to venture up the major rivers, shown here.

Our next sighting is through the index of an order book, mentioning that John Vest (III, the man born in 1712??) was present in Henrico Court during the April 1746 session. When more details are discovered they will be inserted here.* Henrico was then an immense swath of land on the north side of the Appomattox, widening as it went west, until it reached the Blue Ridge Mts. It seems safe to assume that John was living in that part of Henrico which became Chesterfield in 1749.

"On 05 June 1749 the court ordered that a road be opened from the road near John Blankinship's to Swift Creek at or near Charles Burton's and from there to second branch road. That Geo. Cogbill be overseer thereof, to have the hands of Peter Fitzpatric, Charles Burton, Wm Perkinson, John Vest, and Henry Womack." * We assume this was the John Jr mentioned only once when he settled a case out of court in Caroline in August 1743 (to us John III of Chesterfield). We will have much more to tell about him later but need to keep this chronological. By the time these men, or more likely their slaves, were working on the new road to Swift Creek, his Uncle Valentine, last mentioned in Caroline in March 1747 as owing a little over 3 shillings to a businessman, had been active to the west.

This Deed with the Livery of Seizin endorsed from EDMOND WOOD to ROBERT THOMSON was presented in Court by said WOOD and by him acknowledged to be his act and on motion of ROBERT THOMSON ordered to be recorded **

Whom Robert Thomson was we do not know. People buying land usually chose witnesses they could rely on, such as relatives or very close friends, and 595 acres was a large parcel. In the 1740's and '50's county boundaries were changing with bewildering frequency. This part of Albemarle has just been created from Goochland. Thomson's land, we can tell from an atlas, wound up in present Cumberland Co., some of it possibly straddling the Buckingham border. Willis River's headwaters are a little north of the Appomattox but flow north into the James.

It is very enlightening to discover Valentine's presence in this particular area fleetingly, though he did not dwell there. Before long we will observe other Vests there who may have been his sons. Our Patsey Vest's Grandpa and Grandma Davison also lived near there.

Perhaps he was already living across the Appamattox in Amelia County by then, for there is where we find him in Court records the next summer *

16 June 1749. Edward Booker, Gent, obtained an attachment agt estate of Thomas Dudley for a debt of £4/1/10 but deft had so absconded that he could not be served. Sheriff reported he had attached in the hands of Valentine Vest (garnishee?) who swore to having one hat, one coat, one trunk, one pair of breeches, one knife, two forks, pepper box, one hone and three books and no more. Ordered plt to recover debt, plus costs. Attached effects to be sold by Sheriff with proceeds given to plt towards recovering the debt.

19 Jan 1749/50. Debt action. Edw. Booker, Gent, pltf vs James Vest, deft. Sheriff returned, he had estate in hands of Richard Booker (Judge) summoned as garnishee, said he had sufficient to satisfy plt's attachment. Amount of £5/6/9, half penny proved & judgment granted.

28 June 1750. Trespass action, Matthias Ayers vs Valentine Vest, deft. abated, deft. being dead.

__ Apr 1751. Debt action. Samuel Cobbs plt vs James Vest deft for £1/6/10½. Plt obtain an attachment agt estate of James Vest but he is said to be so absconded that the common process cannot be served on him. Sheriff returned that he had attached in the hands of Richard Booker, Gent sufficient for his discharge of debt & costs. Samuel Cobbs is to recover sums & costs.

17 May 1751. Elizabeth Vist--also Vest--granted administration of estate of Valentine Vist, ordered after her security (no name filled in) gave bond. Ordered that Wm Crawley, Thomas Booth, John Powell and John Clay, or any three, to value personal estate of Volanatine (sic) Vist and make return.

We suppose this is the same Valentine Vest mentioned before. If so his estate diminished, possibly due to ill health or misfortune. We would like to know what connection he and Elizabeth had with Thomas Dudley whose personal effects they were holding. She has now remarried to ______Wallrush.

Cobbs had little real need for James Vest's money. He owned 2120 acres between "Knibbs" and Flat Creeks which, as Samuel Cobbs, Gent of York Co he purchased 23 June 1732 for L10/15/0 while the land was still in Prince George Co. His neighbors adjoining were Richard Booker Gent of James City Co (970 acres for £5) and Edward Booker Gent (950 acres for £4) by July. Property values increased tremendously in 18 years.

VEST FAMILY

The rapidity with which early Virginia county boundaries changed is a stumbling-block for genealogists. Things are not always what they seem in the records. I always consult a modern DeLorme Virginia atlas to determine where the land, usually described in deed books in accordance to the nearest river or creek, is currently located. Neglect to do that has led some authors into some serious errors. If the stream is not mentioned, the names of the nearest neighbors will be, so look up their deeds forthe information. It is amazing that most creeks still have the same names they had many centuries ago, but they do.

The map below will help one visualize the paths our ancestors and their kin took in their gradual migration west. It is a section of a map opposite page 244 in Kegley's Virginia Frontier, Vol. I. The one opposite page 112 includes a wider area but is less helpful to us. Our map shows the status as of 1756, early stage of the French & Indian War.

Albemarle (taken earlier from Goochland) then included what became Buckingham and Cumberland--Many Vests and Davisons lived near Willis River, shown above flowing into the James. Prince Edward and Amelia were derived from Prince George--See Nibbs and Flat Creeks flow-into the Appomattox in Amelia. Regarding later Vests and Davisons, see Bedford, which was derived from Brunswick/Lunenburg--see Seneca Creek flowing into the "Staunton"(Roanoke)--became Campbell in 1782.

Vest Family

It seems that all the Vests we encounter were related. Only a few of their wills have been found so far. They all repeated the same group of names in every generation, making it difficult to determine whether a certain John or James Vest is the same man or a cousin of some sort. The most common names were John, James, George, Philip, Valentine, occasionally William, Robert, etc.

To make matters even more confusing, county boundaries changed so rapidly that the only way to know where land enteries were really made is to get out the atlas, pray, and squint. Albemarle and Goochland County entries turned out to be in overlapping Cumberland and Buckingham. We seem to hit pay dirt here, for many of the neighbors turn out to have the same surnames as those we encounter again in Campbell County after the Revolution, whom we know for sure are our Vests--and Davisons.

But first, because some widely-circulated pedigree charts claim our branch descends from John Vest of Chesterfield County who made a nice will in 1765, it is necessary to relate what we know of him and his descendants before we proceed, so that the reader may make up his/her mind about that. Personally, it seems to me that they were nice people, but that they were cousins of some sort, for the timing is a bit off, our branch having gone west a generation or more earlier. Showing this will help us avoid confusion!

see Camp pg 154 Clayton Family

The atlas shows Tinsbury Creek flowing into the much longer Swift Creek in the outskirts of very urban Colonial Heights, Virginia, joining Appamatox River flowing into the James. A keg accidentally tossed overboard into the Tinsbury would wind up in the briny Chesapeake in an hour or so.

VEST FAMILY

We pick James up again in Albemarle Co. deeds--puzzling at first until consulting the detailed atlas. He was in "Old Buckingham" Co.--well, sort of--after that county lost territory his old farm is now in Appomattox. *

11 Feb 1761. Alex Hunter, Bedford, to Ro. Rutledge, Prince Edward Co. for Ⱡ15, 275 acres David Creek adj Philip Mayo, Jno. Patterson.

28 Feb 1761. Alex Hunter, Bedford & wife Elizabeth to Alex Davidson for Ⱡ 344 acres Wolf Creek of Appomattox & both sides of John Patterson. Wit: Jas. Lax, Sebree? Lax, Jas. Vest.

12 Mar 1761. Alex Hunter & wife to Jas. Vest for Ⱡ9, 140 acres Bridle Creek adj. Philip Mayo, Phelps

23 Feb 1761. Alex Hunter & w as above to Nicholas Mays of Bedford for Ⱡ10, 200 acres on Wolf Creek adj. John Patteson, Phillip Matthews. Wit: Alex James, James Vest, James Lax.

Neither the atlas nor our Buckingham map show Bridle Creek, though unnamed small creeks are shown--but we can deduce where it was from the locations of the neighbors shown above. Probably it was the untitled spur branch of Wolf Creek, flowing into the Appomattox. Wolf Creek and nearby David's Creek evidently start on the same hill, but the latter flows north to the James.

Notes: Back then spellings were not exact as they are today. Alex Davidson could have become one of his son's inlaws in time. Later on a John Vest and Edward Davison owned land near Willis Creek/ Mountain on the east side of the county, on or near the part that became Cumberland.

Vest Family

Will of Valentine Vest of Manchester Parish 14 Feb. 1776:
Executor: Sister Elizabeth Vest, and to her 5 barrels of corn at Geo. Vaden's, 5 barrels corn at John Vadens, 5 bushels corn at John Shutsbeary's and 4½ bushels wheat at George West's, also ₤ 3 cash, also 5 barrels corn and ₤ 1/12 at James West's. 40 shillings at John Patterson's ard vialend at Claibon Puckett's. The accounts li left with John Graves, my cloaths with John Graves.
Wit: Thos. Belcher, Nath'l Puckett, Mark Puckett.
(No mention was made of any land at the fork of Tinsberry. It seems neither he or his sister married. He cannot be the same Valentine Vest we encounter in places to the west.)

Will of James Vest 06 Jan. 1795:
Land to wife Diner (Dinah?), items for life and then to all my children. Money from lawsuit I brought against Joseph Fore in Prince Edward County, to discharge my debts. Francis Lockett, Sr. is to transact my business in the lawsuit. All my sons to be bound to a trade. Executors: friends Thomas Burfoot and Archer Trayler.
Wit: Jos. Moseley, James Ball, Richard Moseley.

How solvent the family had been before, one cannot say, or how long James had been ill, but he felt he had money rightfully coming from Joseph Fore (of Huguenot descent from Fauvre, soon to be changed to Ford) living in Prince Edward, just west of Amelia). Without James there to testify, and others taking their cut, chances of collecting much were not great. Women in those days were not considered capable of handing money, or raising children without male guidance. Court records say, "Overseers of Poor for Dist 3 bind: Rainey Vest (a corruption of the French Rene), John Vest, Archelus Vest, Stephen Vest, Frank Carter Vest, Eleazer Vest, and Littleberry Vest, orphans of James Vest, dec'd."

The law was that orphans over 14 were capable of choosing their own guardians. In July James Vest (they probably meant John Vest) chose (uncle?) Philip Vest as his guardian and in August (his uncle or grandfather?) Stephen Chastain was appointed guardian of Rainey Vest. Frances Lockett, Sr. "granted administration with the will annexed" of estate of James Vest, deceased. Evidently five little boys were under 14 years of age. Was this James Vest who died the son of John Vest? It would seem so. Both were in the same county. And Philip Vest, the boys' uncle, was probably another son.

We do not know whom the other boys were apprenticed to, but learn from a weekly newspaper, The Richmond & Manchester Advertiser, which ran an ad on 20 August 1795, that "Vest, John, apprentice age 14, ran away from Luman Bishop, Manchester. He is supposed to be in Buckingham with a relation, Rainey Chasteen.." Poor little fellow, Heartbroken, homesick, and too young to realize how he would benefit from a trade. Perhaps Bishop was a little strict, or neededtto be. * It turns out Uncle Philip Vest was in Buckingham, too.

These Vests too late to do good

Vest Family

Revolutionary War records show that some of the Vests who came to Campbell County were born in that part of Cumberland County that became Powhattan in 1777 (the other part having been Chesterfield). Cumberland was created in 1748/9 from Goochland, 1717 from Henrico. There were several Philip Vests. One of them, and also Judith Vest, John Hayes and William Dudley, witnessed a deed for John Denney on 09 September 1767 for a purchase of land north of the Staunton River in that part of Bedford which became Campbell 15 years later. Other Vests were there by 1770 or before, and soon had many nice farms along Seneca Creek, also draining into the Staunton. But this is getting ahead of the story, We must turn back to young John Vest's Uncle Philip of Buckingham Co. who may or may not have been the same man.

Not ours

His mother seems to have been Dinah (Chastain) Vest, granddaughter of Stephen (Etienne) Chastaine born in Place Vese in Dauphine, SE France This was in the ancient Languedoc area where protestants had been persecuted for centuries (now identified as being in the general area of Provence.) His family fled for their lives to England, and were prominent in the 1700 settlement of Huguenots in Manakintown above the falls of the James. The name Vese underlined above sounds so much like the rather rare surname Vest that it almost makes one wonder if the family could have been French originally, though I suppose that is stretching it a bit. The name sounds Norwegian but the only Scandanavians were early settlers on the Delaware River. I have been unable to discover anyone of that name in English or Irish records, despite the appearance of John Vest in Philadelphia in 1690.

Young John's Uncle Philip Vest was a member of the B ptist Church congregation of Rev. Rainey Chastain when it was organized officially in in Buckingham in 1772, which had a very long list of members. He must have been the "relation" the boy was fleeing to. Illegally, of course. There are many books that mention Rev. Rene Chastain, born in present Powhattan Co. 28 June 1741. While quite young the family moved to Buckingham and at age 19 he married Ann Ford, daughter of James Ford, Sr. and granddaughter of Pierre Faure, early settler at Manakintown. They were closely related to J oseph "Fore" of Prince Edward who owed little John Vest's father James a debt. Many other congregations split off from Rev. Chastain's, with new ones as far south as North Carolina. Son Rev. John Chastain, a/k/a "ten shilling bill" later moved to Pickens Co., South Carolina.

According to one book, another member of the congregation, John Wheeler, had as early as 10 July 1745 when it was Henrico Co., purchased land on Barren Lick Creek of Willis River. On 29 Feb 1764 Wheeler sued Philip Vest and won a judgment against him, for Vest had co-signed a 4₤ note for a Thomas Dillard on 27 Sep 1763, who could not or did not pay. Wheeler told the Buckingham court that Philip Vest was indebted to him and "delays payment or so absconds that ordinary process of law cannot be served on him." An attachment (writ of replevin) on the estate of Uncle Philip was carried out by the constable, who carried away two feather beds, two bolsters, one rug, two dutch blankets, one sheep, and four heads of cattle. (4£ sure must have been a lot of money in those days! I doubt Uncle Philip ever co-signed a note again.)

After that, Wheeler seems to have caught up with Thomas Dillard, the original debtor, in 1771 in Pittsylvania Co. courthouse and sued for £4 8 pence, and got Dillard's mare and bridle. It seems he collected double for the same debt. The authors believed John Wheeler was also a land speculator, for a man of the name owned land in Bedford County in 1754, on Falling River which later became part of Campbell. Our branch of Vests later lived on Seneca Creek only a little west of there, while it was still Bedford.

Granted that this Philip Vest was probably our many-great uncle, telling about him is a bit premature. We have to go back and let the rest of the clan catch up. By the 1740's others were in Cumberland, next to Amelia, and in Buckingham as shown in Goochland and Albemarle deeds before those counties were created, and will be listed as well as some other surnames of families who later married into the clan that went to Campbell later. Early Davison records are more available, but almost none for the Vests, and no marriage records for any of them. Without them we are left searching around in the dark, but will keep trying, hoping for other pieces that might later solve the puzzle.

Specifically, as well as ancestors of Edward and Agnes Davison, we need more about James Vest (d. Jan 1809) who married Fanny Davison and his father, James Vest, Sr.,(d. about 1790 in Campbell Co.) and who m. Lucretia, and whom their parents were.

Some early Goochland & Albemarle land entry records show:

18 August 1735. William Rennilds, Elizabeth Alford wife of Salvator Alford and Mary Rennilds, spinster, on south side of John's and falling into the James River from the south. (married into family of our James's brother John).

date not copied. John LeMaster, 244 acres on both sides of Porridge Creek. (Sarah Davison, our Fanny's widowed younger sister said to have married a LeMaster.)

30 June 1743. Edward Davison, 400 acres between Angolo Creek and Green Creek adjoining Stephen Stone. These creeks were in later Cumberland Co. draining into Appamatox River from the NE.

05 October 1749. Valentine Vest, 200 acres on both sides of middle fork of Slate River. This is in Buckingham Co. but not far west of Davison.

27 March 1754. John Vest, 400 acres on branches of Tongue Quarter Creek, a branch of the Willis River. On Cumberland/Buckinggam border.

12 March 1761. (Albemarle DB 3 pg 26) Alex Hunter & wife to James Vest, 140 acres on Bridle Creek. This is near Wolf Creek flowing into Appamatox R. in Buckingham but not far east of Campbell Co. Neighbors: Alex Davidson, James Lax, John Pattison, Philip Mayo, Phelps.

Maps A & B

Experts (which I am not) will tell one that early Virginia research is very difficult because (1) county boundaries changed with bewildering frequency (2) many records have not survived, partly due to courthouse fires (and southerners never kept records as thorough as New Englanders, anyway) and (3) residents, themselves, were often confused about just what county they were currently living in. For instance, our later James Vest's Buckingham Co. land was accidentally recorded in Albemarle Deeds.

Our little map A is way too early, but is presented because it helps us visualize what an amphibian society the colony was at first, back when most roads were barely passable trails.

The purpose of our little set of maps, is to clarify just where it was that our Vest kinfolk actually resided. The first-known John Vest was in Philadelphia on the Delaware in 1690, on the other side of the Chesapeake.

A John Vest, Jr., was baptized in Abingdon Parish, Gloucester Co. on the York R. & may have gone up its tributary, the Mattaponi to CarOline Co. by 1740 with wife Ann. His cousin Rebecca crossed the wider part of the York to York Co. by 1757. This may have been John of Chesterfield, who was on the lower Appomattox by 1746, as was his uncle Valentine. Some of John's sons married descendants of a group of exiled French Huguenots, settled at the Falls of the James in 1700.

VEST FAMILY

This is a rudimentary search for ancestors of 17-year-old Martha E. "Patsey" Vest who married 19-year-old William Willis Clayton on Christmas Eve, 1812, in Washingron Co. VA, shortly before the young man marched off to war.*

More will be told about our newly-weds later, but this report will start as far back as we can and work forward. Presently there are more questions than answers. Very little has been written about the Vests as a family. Though well-intended, LDS family group sheets and descendancy charts are full of obvious errors as they concern the earliest generations; they do contain some clues as to where to start searching. On the other hand, the only Vest Genealogy I have found does seem well written, though it starts a little to late to help us. It begins with a brave Revolutionary War veteran, John Vest, who died in Franklin Co., VA. Though I am a long way from proving it, it seems that this John was probably brother of our James, and thus Patsey's uncle.

The family charts imply that an older John Vest and his wife, Ann Bakes, of Chesterfield Co. VA, were progenitors of those of the name in America. His 1765 will will appear later. However, my own search, tentative as it is, suggests that, though certainly related, John was more likely our many-great granduncle. There are yet several other leads to be followed when I am able. In the meantime, putting together a documented narrative of what has been learned so far, helps tie people and events together for further scrutiny.

The earliest mention of any Vests on our shores seen so far, is of one John Vest who, on 25 May 1690 in Philadelphia, witnessed the will of John Fuller, a Quaker merchant, proved 05 Dec 1692. There is nothing to show that he and Fuller were more than acquaintances, or that Vest was also a Quaker, but just in case it should later be deemed significant, Fuller left an inheritance to his mother, Elizabeth (Warren)(Valentine)(Fuller) Cuppage born March 1627 in Colchester, England, currently residing in Lambstown, Co. Wexford, Ireland.

What appears to be a computer-generated 1740 Virginia Census shows that a John Vest, based on Caroline Court Order Book 1732-40, was living in that county. A number of Caroline Co. record books were found on the shelves at WI State Historical Library, but none that early. Though both places were not far from the tidewater, that was considerably north of where our supposed ancestor was living six years later.*

Cumberland Co. Deed Book I shows:

Signed, Edward Davison. Wit: Gideon Johnson, Warren Walker, Robert Walker. At 26 August court this deed was acknowledged by Edward Davison, a party thereto and ordered to be recorded. Agnes, wife of the said Edward, relinquished her right of dower.

Wit: Warren Walker, Joel Walker. At 27 March court the deed was proved by the witnesses te and Mary, the wife of David Davidson (sic) relinquished her right of dower.

Where Edward and Agnes Davison lived later I have not determined, but they did own land. We know from Campbell wills that they had a son David. Was he old enough to be the David Davison mentioned here? If so, he witnessed the will of :

Page 56. William Walker of Southam Parish Wife, Judy, daus Lucy & Judy. Son James to have 350 acres plantation where Thos Spradlin now lives, running from the back line of Edward Davison to the Appomattox River, Son William Walker 300 acres where John Duram lives. Other sons, Joel, ____, Robert, Benjamin & Henry £80 ...etc. Wit: David Davison, Stephen Wood, Jonas (his xmark)Renols Proved by witnesses at May court 1752.

The Joel Walker here is the man who purchased Edward Davison's 1754 sale of land listed above. As to Davison land purchases after these sales, it seems highly likely that they were in Buckingham County, which, as one can see from our maps, was not far from Angola Creek. The problem we now encounter is that the Buckingham Courthouse burned just a few years before the Civil War. Only a very few records were saved. One of the few land entries shows:

26 April 1763. John Vest. 60 acres on a ridge among branches of Willis Creek. John Nicholas and Thomas Jefferson, neighbors.

Vest Family

A supplement to the 05 November 1772 issue of the Virginia Gazette ran an ad stating that "Vest, James, son and heir of John Vest, deceased, of Buckingham, is summoned to court." Our James Vest was probably in Bedford County (became Campbell) by then. Was he the James they meant?? *

Some Vests remained in Buckingham when the others left, as did folks with the same surnames as people later associated with our branch in Campbell. One author trying to help people like us published old lists of titheables. They were inconsistent in the spelling of Davison/Davidson (and even Campbell Co. records spell it Davidson which may not be correct based on other earlier sources). I neglected to copy Vests for 1764. There were several Baileys, Childress, Rane and Isaac Chastain, Canefaxes, William Davison, Edward Davidson (Constable 400 acres) David Davidson, William Davidson, Alexander Davidson with 334 acres.

Cannifax was missing by 1773. Rene Chastain, etc still there, Edward Davidson, Jr., Stephen and Edward Davison, Constable, also Edward Davison-son of David. Abraham Jones in 1774, Bohannah Kitchen--probably related to John Kitchen of Campbell. George Vest-probably an apprentice, John Vest with Richard Vest in 1774--probably son of Valentine deceased. Webbs, Wheelers, Walkers. By 1800 the Davison-Davidsons were not on the list.

However, there were Davidsons there by 1794, indluding an Edward, and others, buying and selling land. In 1805 ____Vest sold land to Elizabeth Webb. A Gabriel Vest (the earlier Chesterfield Co. soldier?) bought land and was there 1794 to 1805. A James Vest sold 460 acres to a Philip Vest who sold the land toJoseph Roper in 1786. A John Vest was involved in several land purchases and sales, all this in Buckingham. All this makes our search difficult, for the Vests everywhere clung to the same given names and multiplied wherever they were. Yet the name did not get common. **

An Abraham Jones and a John Kitchen, wherever they did it, married daughters of Edward and Agnes Davison. So did a Merry Webb, two Vests, and much later a LeMaster (a French-sounding name. It seems pretty certain that our Vests came there through Cumberland and Buckingham, and we sure hope that James Vest, whether ours or not, eventually got his debts paid!

Albemarle Deed Book 3:26 12 March 1761. Alex Hunter & wife Elizabeth of Bedford sell to James Vest for 9 pounds, 140 acres on Bridle Creek. 13 days later they sold Alex Davidson 344 acres on Wolf Creek of Appamattox R on both sides of John Patterson. Wit: James Lax, James Vest. Both buyers had the same list of neighbors, thus we can identify the area on our little map. It was in present Appomattox County, not far at all from Campbell.

Very early Cumberland deeds ~~have~~ do not ~~yet been looked up~~ Show Vests. That county included part of Powhattan at first, and it is claimed that some of our Campbell Co. Vests were born there. Other records show some of the others going back to Chesterfield. Those early deeds might show other Vest homes than Albemarle ones. Still, we have accomplished our goal to discover where all our Campbell families came together--the Cumberland/Old Buckingham area. Below are some excerpts from Cumberland County in the early 1750's do the trick. They are not especially important otherwise, and I blush when reading of all those judgments against my ancestor, James Vest Sr. But taking them all together, it seems he may have been more cantankerous than poor, for they were all paid off by hook or crook, and he had plenty left to pay cash for the place on Bridle Creek later on. He turned the tables by suing others. And one of the debts was satisfied by the sheriff seizing his prayerbook, proving that he was literate. Probably most of the residents in that time and place were illiterate because schools were too scarce.

16 June 1749. Edward Booker, Gent, obtained an attachment agt estate of Thomas Dudley for a debt of Ŀ4/1/10 but deft had so absconded that he could not be served. 17 May 1751. Elizabeth Vist--also Vest--granted administration of estate of Valentine Vist, ordered after her security (no name filled in) gave bond. Ordered that Wm Crawley, Thomas Booth, John Powell and John Clay, or any three, to value personal estate of Volanatine (sic) Vist and make return.

Lists of tithes show James Vest living between Nibbs and Flat Creeks in Amelia in 1749. These creeks rise in the center of the upper part of the county and flow eastwardly into the Appomattox. He is present again for the 1754 and 1755 tithes. It appears from the above that Thomas Dudley's debt was still unsatisfied after Valentine died, so they went after James. James was literate. He along with Richard Puckett witnessed the will of Stephen Watkins on 24 April 1755 and helped prove it in court. So were Valentine Vest and Thomas Dudley. ****

James apparently left Amelia to move further west after these unfair experiences. We will pick him up later.

was there but may not have been in the family

Washington Co TN 1830 census p205 (printed) shows the couple with three little sons over 5 and daughter betw 5+10 – undoubtedly Martha + the 3 boys listed above. Sarah born after census taken. Obituary reference to "only brother" could mean "only living brother" who survived childhood. James may have been named for Uncle James Vest (Even Grandpa James???)

Washington Co VA military lists are sketchy (some lost) but suggest moving back + forth from TN. William (James?) served 1815. William W 1820, 1824 – 8 year gap – 1832, 1835 (also during the war of 1812) (they went to IL in 1835) Since Wash. Co VA + Wash Co TN were at that time contiguous and connected by rivers and the old warriors' path, then settlers trail, and the border at one point uncertain, he may have just continued with the old outfit he was with during the war. (This was the old "State of Franklin" area.)

Military Reserve Duty – this does not mean they did not serve other years, also. Some records lost

Since both W. W. Clayton and Edmond/Edward Vest both served in the same outfit — 1st Battalion, 105th Regt, Light Infantry Co (Ed – 1807, 1812, 1815, 1816) during the war + other times – Under Capt Wiley Jones I'm pretty sure Ed was one of her (Martha's) brothers. Edward Vest shows up on the 1810 Washington Co VA Census as young man (living near Fanny Vest and her Children) described as under 26, with wife and baby or toddler girl.

For information on Capt Wiley Jones see attached opposite WA Co TN map.

Consider this part on Chart

1830 Washington Co TN census p 208 shows Vest, James 0110001 - 30110l.

"War of 1812 Pensioners" page 1760 shows Vest, James (wife) Susan (widow's claim) #5,316. He served as a private (per this & a book "War of 1812 Tennessee Volunteers") under Col. Wm. Lillard, Capt Jacob Hartsell, E TN Voluntary Infantry.

Neither of the books tells where James Vest went to, but the 1830 TN census p 206 shows an Isaac Hartsell 121330l - 2112001 living in the same vicinity in Washington Co TN as James. I believe this is the same James Vest who moved to Illinois. He died ~~before~~ April 1850. These War of 1812 pensions started ~~much~~ 20 years later, but she was living with their Daughter, Angeline Dunsworth & could have used the money.

'spose Jacob & Isaac were brothers?

Another circumstance tying these Vests to the Claytons is the fact that Westley Dunsworth, a relative to Angeline's husband, lived next door to William Clayton. And "Filo Averill" lived next door to N. B. Teas (his daughter Charlotte's family) and two doors from James Vest! From "Westley" Dunsworth's name, the whole pack of them were undoubtedly Methodists. The Bean Cemetery literature explains the Clayton/Vest & several other families lived in Washington Co VA & then Washington Co ~~VA~~ a while before settling in town of Tennessee, McD. Co IL in 1835.

hilo Averill was rman's father

Franklin County Virginia 1786-1986 - A Bicentennial History
by John S & Emily J Salmon

✓ John Vest, who settled in Franklin County after the war, was present at Guilford Courthouse although he scarcely mentioned it when he applied for a pension years later. He enlisted in Buckingham County for a two-year stint in the southern theater in 1780 and 1781. He "joined General [Nathanael] Green[e] at Hanging Rock on the Yadkin River in North Carolina, marched from there to Booker's Ferry in Virginia thence to Guilford, and was in that battle[,] also in the battle of Ninety-Six and marched from there to Congaree Fort."[40]

Some soldiers of the Revolution served long tours, while the careers of others ended quickly. Thomas Booth, for instance, who was a resident of Bedford County at the time of his enlistment, joined the company of Captain Gross Scruggs in the 5th Virginia Regiment of the Continental Line on 15 February 1776. Just five months later, in July, he was discharged because of a wound to his right hand. As a result of the wound, Booth lost the middle finger and much of the use of his forefinger, which limited the amount of labor he could perform. On 28 October 1786 Governor Patrick Henry ordered Booth placed on the state pension roll; he received £6 a year thereafter.[41]

A comrade of Booth, George Asbury, fared much better. Born in 1756, Asbury also joined Captain Scruggs's company in February 1776, but instead of being wounded he served out his full two-year enlistment. He was discharged at Valley Forge, Pennsylvania, in February 1778, having fought in the Battles of Brandywine and Germantown. Asbury married Mary Hatcher on 27 May 1785 and died in Franklin County on 12 November 1834.[42]

Abraham Abshire served his tour of duty within the state of Virginia. Born in 1763, Abshire was sixteen years old when he was called into Captain Moses Greer's company of Bedford County militia in 1779 and marched to protect the state's lead mines in present-day Wythe County. Even before that tour, he had served at least one other against the loyalists in the nearby mountains; Abshire went on several similar expeditions while in service. In 1780 or 1781 he marched with Greer's company to Petersburg, probably to guard military supplies there. He was pensioned in 1832 and died on 28 July 1842.[43]

✓ John Campbell was born in Halifax County in 1760 and was living in Pittsylvania County when he enlisted in 1777 in Captain John Donelson's company of militia. The company left Pittsylvania County and marched to Long Island on the Holston River on 1 March 1777. Campbell returned home on 17 July. Later he moved to Bedford County and marched under Captain Charles Callaway and Lieutenant Jacobus Early to Yorktown, where he witnessed the surrender of Cornwallis on 19 October 1781 and was discharged by Early the next day. Campbell resided in Franklin County after the war.[44]

Eiles Cooper, who was born in 1746, served two tours of duty from Bedford County early in the war. About 1775 he went to the lead mines in present-day Wythe County to guard them against a possible Indian attack. According to his recollection, he marched with the militia company of Captain Henry Buford to the Holston River against the Cherokee in 1776. He died in Franklin County on 4 December 1843, at the age of ninety-seven.[45]

Richard Dale moved from Richmond County to Bedford County about 1768, when he was nine years old. In February 1780 he was called out for six months' service in the militia; he marched to Richmond, then across the river to Manchester to guard the magazine there. When Richmond was threatened by the

PREFACE

The research and assemblying of data relative to these marriages has been a two year project of the Genealogical Records Committee of Blue Ridge Chapter, Lynchburg, Virginia, National Society Daughters of the American Revolution. It was done in accordance with one of the objectives of the National Society which is the preservation and making available of historical and genealogical records.

Because of our interest in presenting a comprehensive listing of Campbell County marriages, it was necessary to consult two distinct sources of information which are presented in this book in two separate Sections:

Section I - Information about the approximately 1250 marriages found in the Campbell County Courthouse records for the period 1782 through 1810, taken from the original marriage bonds, consents, and ministers' returns.

Chesterfield

Section II - Data concerning about 50 Quaker marriages which took place during this period at the three Campbell County Quaker Meeting-houses: South River, Seneca, and Hills Creek. We found no marriage bonds or ministers' returns at the courthouse for these marriages. Our prime sources for this Section were photostatic copies of original Quaker records at the Virginia State Library, Archives Division.[1] Included in our listing are the names not only of the bride, groom, and parents, but also extensive lists of witnesses. These names have been published previously in James Pinkney Bell's out-of-print book, Our Quaker Friends of Ye Olden Time, (Lynchburg, Virginia 1905.) We checked the names and marriage dates in Bell against the original data, and gained sufficient confidence in the degree of his completeness and accuracy so that his book was used as our source for the names of the witnesses. The few inconsistencies found in these two sources have been noted.

In working with the courthouse and Quaker records, our curiosity led us to further research which resulted in the following three Appendixes included herein:

Appendix A - A chronological summary of the basic provisions of the early marriage laws of the Colony and of the Commonwealth of Virginia.

Appendix B - A list of the ministers who performed these Campbell County marriages, with their denominations and places of residence.

Appendix C - A chart showing Quaker migrations to and from Campbell County, by region and by decade.

The information presented in this book has been fully indexed. In addition to listing and indexing the names of the marriage principals, we have given similar treatment to the names of the bondsmen, parents, witnesses, and ministers. Variations encountered in the spelling of names are also included.

ABOUT THE COURTHOUSE RECORDS

Section I in this book is primarily a compilation of data abstracted after careful examination of the original marriage bonds, consents, and clerk's recordings of ministers' returns found at the Campbell County Courthouse, Rustburg, Virginia.

The Campbell County marriage bonds (one of which is reproduced herein) and the associated papers at the courthouse cover the period from 1782, when Campbell County was formed, to 1853, when the new series of marriage registers was introduced in Virginia.[1] Because of the tremendous number of these papers, it was deemed advisable that we limit this initial undertaking to just the period 1782-1810.

To avoid confusion, it should be noted that there are at Campbell County Courthouse, in addition to loose bonds and consent papers, two separate and distinct volumes of marriage records relating to the 1782-1810 period.

The first volume, a small leather-bound book with the title, Register of Marriages C C C in gold letters on the outside, is actually a book of the original entries of ministers' returns as recorded by the clerk. For each marriage, it contains the names of the groom, the bride, the officiating minister, and the date of the marriage. It appears to have been re-bound in recent years. In the rebinding the top line on some of the pages has been covered by the binding, making it difficult to decipher and in some cases impossible. Consequently we may have missed a few items. We will hereinafter refer to this book as the original Register.

The second book of marriage records relating to this period is a much larger leather-bound volume with the title, Marriage Register, No. 1, 1782 to ______. This volume is currently in use at the courthouse, and appears from its fabric to have been compiled in recent years from information taken from the marriage bonds, from consents, and from the ministers' returns in the original Register. For each marriage, there is listed the name of the groom, the bride, and the date of the marriage bond; also in most cases the names of the bride's parents and the officiating minister appear. This is one of the volumes on microfilm (reel 36) in the Archives Division of the Virginia State Library. It is arranged alphabetically by husbands' names, and an index to females appears at the end of the volume. This book will hereinafter be referred to by its title, Marriage Register No. 1, 1782 ______

If a marriage is listed in the original Register of ministers' returns, we may be very certain that the marriage actually took place - even though in a few cases no corresponding bonds were found at the courthouse. Some 45 per cent of these marriage bonds have no corresponding entries in the original Register; it is highly probable that these marriages also took place.

Although we were able to examine this original Register, not even a sample seems to have survived of the papers on which the ministers made their returns to the clerk. Hence, we do not know the format or procedures used by the ministers in making their returns. It would appear from the large number of bonds on which no returns were found that, in spite of the possible heavy fine for not reporting marriages, the ministers were quite casual about making returns and the law was not vigorously enforced.

Undoubtedly the manner in which some of the ministers made their returns influenced the clerk's recordings in the original Register. There are some entries with incomplete or missing dates. A few entries are recorded twice or even three times. The sequence of entries is seldom strictly chronological; in an extreme case, for example, the entry for Patrick Lamb and Nancy Truitt, 17 October 1810, follows an entry for 1814. We checked entries through 1817 to pick up stray recordings of marriages through 1810. There is an occasional entry date for a minister's return earlier than the date of the corresponding bond and consent; in such cases we rechecked the dates for possible transcribing errors. To cite another example, the minister's return date for the marriage of John Baber and Sally Moorman is actually recorded as 24 March 1790, about three months before the date of the bond and consent, 13 May 1790.

For the benefit of those not too familiar with the early marriage laws of Virginia, the marriage bond was a prerequisite to the issuance of a marriage license. The bond had to be filled out by the county clerk, signed by the bondsmen, and attested by the clerk before the license could be written. The bond's apparent purpose was to prevent illegal marriages from occurring.

The bonds were usually signed by two bondsmen. In most instances one of these was the prospective bridegroom, and the other a friend or a family connection of the bride or groom. A written parental or guardian's consent was required if either principal were under twenty-one years of age. However, if the bride's father was a bondsman, no separate consent was necessary since his signature on the bond implied his approval. Many of these consents, handwritten on odd scraps of paper, have been preserved with the bonds to which they relate. The signatures on these consents are invaluable in resolving questions of identity when more than one person of the same name was living in the county. (For a detailed discussion of these early marriage laws see Appendix A).

In these abstracts we have included family relationships only when such relationship is stated in the body of the marriage bond or in the consent papers. The fact that a bondsman has the same last name as the bride does not necessarily prove relationship, although it suggests it.

Race or color has been recorded in these abstracts only when such was indicated on the original records, and in each case the wording as it appeared thereon has been transcribed.

Some Wheeler Notes: Buckingham and Cumberland Counties, Virginia

Although we have found no proof as such that the John Wheeler patent of 10 July 1745 was for John Wheeler of Henrico, it seems likely that it was. The patent, already stated in the Henrico County notes, was for 400 acres "in Goochland County" on a branch of Barren Lick Creek of Willis' River, adjacent land of Henry Cary and Samuel Ridgway. The land can be placed in Buckingham County by referring to Volume 1 of "The Edward Pleasants Valentine Papers", section devoted to the Cary family, pages 271 and 273. The Henry Cary tract is described as being "on the branches of Buck river other wise called Willis's Creek in the County of Goochland commonly called and known by the name of Buckingham". Page 326 carries abstracts of two patents to Archibald Cary, dated 12 Jan. 1746 and 1 June 1750. The earlier one is for land on the north branches of Willis's River, adjoining Henry Cary, Henry Beard and John Wheeler. The one of 1750 is for a tract on both sides of Barren Lick branch of Willis's Creek, adjoining Alexander Trent, John Hardeman, James Wilkins, John Payne, John Wheeler and Harvey (sic) Beard. A closer placing of "Barren Lick" can be found on pages 231 and 232 of the same reference.

Whether or not the John Wheeler of the 1745 patent was from Henrico, it seems probable that the Wheelers of Buckingham County lived on or adjacent the John Wheeler patent land. Because the tract was adjacent to or near the Cumberland County line, we find almost as many references to the Wheelers in the Cumberland Order Books as can be found in the few existing early records of Buckingham County. Although the Wheelers lived within Buckingham, they apparently had business with residents of Cumberland which brought them to Cumberland courts from time to time.

SARAH WHEELER. The earliest reference we have found to Sarah Wheeler of Buckingham is derived from pages 83-84 of Morgan Edward's 1772 volume, "Materials Towards a History of the Baptists in the Provinces of Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia", the original copy of which is in the Baptist Historical Collection, Furman University Library, Greenville, S.C.. The pages cited cover the Baptist church in Buckingham County, which church was constituted 7 May 1772, and built in that year on land given by Seth Cason. The minister at that time was Rane Chastain, whose wife was Ann Ford. Assisting him was William Johnston. The original constituents of the Buckingham Baptist group were: Rane Chastain and wife, Joseph Carter and wife, Robert Huddleston and wife, Wm. Anderson and wife, Seth Cason and wife, Wm. Johnston, Wm. Hammonds, John Epperson, George Epperson, Thos. Holland, Steph. Garret, John Acres and wife, Henry Baker, James Ford, Philip Vest, Benj. Bristol, Benj. Goss, Wm. Peasley, John Arnold, Hanna Hudgins, An. Carter, Sarah Wheeler, Lettice Hammond, Sara Guthry, Eliz. Sharoon, Eliz. Goss and four negroes, unnamed in the Edward's history.

The Virginia Gazette (Purdie), 11 Aug. 1775, page 4, col. 1, carried a list of tobacco remaining in Rocky Ridge Warehouses, the list being primarily of persons of Cumberland and Buckingham Counties. Listed: "Feb. 18, 1773 Sarah Wheeler Note out".

Buckingham Co., Va. Tithables, 1774, page 1, list of George Hooper, 10 June 1774 lists Sary Wheler with negro Pegg as her one tithable. Listed 2 lines above Sary Wheler, was Archer Wheler (Archelaus Wheeler).

James Wheeler, etc Henrico → Buckingham → Amelia → Prince Edw → Campbell → Bedford

Notes Concerning the Earliest Wheelers of Bedford County, Virginia

Roland Wheeler, Thomas Wheeler, Benjamin Wheeler and Archelaus Wheeler are dealt with elsewhere in this publication, Roland having come from Henrico Co. to Bedford Co. sometime between 6 May 1765 and 25 April 1769, Thomas appearing in Bedford by at least 10 October 1777, Benjamin and Archelaus arriving shortly before 21 Nov. 1781. There were, however, a few other Wheelers whose names are found in Bedford County records in earlier years, and it is those references and the Wheelers they mention, that are set down here.

JAMES WHEELER (probably born ca. 1734 or before). James Wheeler's first appearance in our notes from Bedford Co., Va. records is in Order Book 1A, pages 51-52, Dec. 1754 Court, wherein "Moses Helm, William Moore, Thomas Franklin, John Bollings tyths, William Rutherford, James Murphey, James Wheeler, John Galloway, Archibald Campbell, James McRunnals, Edward Phair, Nicholas Hayse, Lewis Franklin, Edmond Franklin, John Thompson, John Pleasants tyths, Nathl. Patterson and John Carson are added to hands that work on the road whereof John Beard is Surveyor" More of less the same entry, also dated Dec. 1754, is on page 23 of Order Book 1B. A few names were omitted, possibly because they were found to live beyond the jurisdiction of Bedford.

4 counties meet

Judging from at least some of these names, it is likely the region involved was over toward Falling River in what is now Campbell County, at or near the point where Campbell, Buckingham, Prince Edward and Charlotte Counties came together before Appomattox Co. was created. It is necessary to keep in mind that in 1754 county lines were being changed rapidly - Charlotte was still Lunenburg, Prince Edward was being formed from Amelia, and Buckingham was not yet created from what was called Albemarle, but which had covered territory that only a few years before had been considered a part of Goochland! If it is confusing to us, it is easy to see that it would have been even more so to those who were settling the region.

The foregoing is stated here because the next mention of James Wheeler that we have found in Bedford is a deed of March 1759 from John Beard, Bedford Co., Va. to James Wheeler, of Prince Edward Co., Va.. For Ł20 James Wheeler purchased 53 acres on the North side of the Stanton River, which tract utilized the river as part of its boundary. There were no witnesses and the deed was recorded 26 March 1759. (Bedford Co., Va. Deed Book 1, page 208.)

Campbell 1764

Order Book 3, pages 93 and 98, Court of 29 February 1764, note that James Wheeler served on a jury, and on the same day came into court for John Talbot's suit against him for a debt, and for a suit of James Wheeler's against Phillip Vest, also for a debt. The court packets reveal that on 15 Feb. 1763 James Wheeler signed a note to John Talbot in the amount of Ł25. 2 shillings. 11 pence half penny, which note was witnessed by John Denney and Elizabeth (X) Henson. It was signed: James 𝔍 Whealer. On the reverse side is what appears to have been a partial payment dated 11 June 1763 which amounts to a credit of Ł4.3.9. Charles Patterson is noted as having provided bail (for James Wheeler it is presumed). A judgment was handed down in Feb. 1764 Court. It should be noted here that John Denny's will of 1754 names, among others, a son John Denny, and a daughter,

Phillip Vest's personal property attached. Beds, etc + 4 cows

A judgment was also made in the Feb. 1764 Court on James Wheeler vs. Phillip Vest. The court packet contained a note in the amount of £ 4 made out to Thomas Dillard and signed by Phillip (X) Vest on 27 Sept. 1763. This is followed by a memo agreeing to pay the cost of a suit that Thomas Dillard had brought against him, which memo carried the same date and was witnessed by Chas. Talbot and Wm. Mead. On the reverse side of that paper was: Recd This 12 Dec. 1763 of Mr. James Wheler the contents of the within bond recd by me." (signed) Thomas Dillard. On 12 Dec. 1763, James Wheeler brought a complaint that Philip Vest was indebted to him and "delays payment or so absconds that ordinary process of law cannot be served on him". An attachment on the estate of Phillip Vest was ordered and executed the property attached being 2 feather beds, 2 bolsters, one rug, 2 dutch blankets, one sheep and 4 head of cows. Philip Vest of ~~Campbell Chesterfield~~ Co?

The last mention we have found of this James Wheeler in Bedford Co. is a deed of 27 Aug. 1766, wherein he sold to John Murphy of Bedford, his 53 acres on the North side of the Stanton River. It was not witnessed, and was recorded the same day. (the "Henry Co" Murphy?)

Dun

The last reference we have which we think concerned this same James Wheeler is found in Pittsylvania Co., Va. Order Book 1, p. 275, March 1771 Court. Cited is James Wheeler, Pltf. agst. Thomas Dillard, Deft.. Dillard owed Wheeler £ 4.2pence. John Vaughan, garnishee, had Dillard's mare and bridle, which were to be sold and Wheeler was to be paid out of the proceeds. Perhaps this was more of the story begun in Bedford Co., which was touched on above.

It should be noted that "Historical Southern Families", Vol. XVIII,(Mrs. John B. Boddie), p. 143 states that the Pittsylvania Co. Tithables of 1767-1785 list a James Wheeler and son James Wheeler, 2 tithables, which names appeared on Thomas Dillard's list, but the book either did not state the year(s) in which the Wheelers were so listed, or we failed to make note of it. Reference to the tithables lists themselves would clarify the point.

Because James Wheeler appears early in Bedford Co., Va. records, he is of special interest to us. Because his initial deed of purchase in 1759 stated that James Wheeler was of Prince Edward Co., Va. we have checked records of that county and of its parent county, Amelia, hoping to find more information. There is one brief mention of a Wheeler in Amelia Co. Order Book 2, p. 13 (right hand leaf), July 1746 Court, which notes "John Wheeler on his petition is Levy free". Also in Amelia Co., a "John Waller, Senor" and wife, Ann, of Amelia sold a tract to Patrick Mullen of Henrico, which was recorded Feb. 1746. The land had been a part of a patent to Richard Tally of 5 Sept. 1723, and the deed was witnessed by Richard, Mary and Thomas Talley. (Amelia Co., Va. Deed Book 2, p. 442-443, and Order Book 2, p. 31 [right hand leaf].) There were many Wallers in Virginia, and this deed may have been truly for a "Waller", not a "Wheeler". These two entries are the only early possibilities found thus far in either Prince Edward or Amelia Counties.

Campbell County
Ludwig Bucholtz Map, 1859
Source: Map Collection, Virginia Library and Archives

These Campbell County land records, besides showing localities where various members of our Vest and Davison families lived, mention a William W. Clayton as witness to a deed in January 1793, at which time our own William Willis Clayton was a babe in arms. It appears he and his fellow witnesses were all fairly prominent Bedford Co. men living just to the West. (Including an in-law named Steptoe.) It is hard to imagine our William Clayton being from such an upwardly socially mobile family; on the other hand, his latter signature in Illinois is that of an educated man--many in that time and place did not attend school.

There were Simpsons, but much too late to prove any connection with wife of James III (or is it James IV?)

Please note: The dates in the index were not in chronological order, but rather semi alphabetical order. Writing (or photography) not clear. I could have misread numbers, etc

Deed book seems to started near close or during Revolutionary War & (index) continued about a century - index to over 50 volumes. The object was to extract the Vest's transactions from Grantee & Grantor indexes. (At the time I did not know enough to trace Davison / Davidson / Daverson.)

Information gleaned from Printed Vols 2+3 Campbell Co VA Deed Books

We already know that Campbell Co. was created in 1782 from Bedford Co. These pages show that some of the land was still being surveyed for original patents during the 1780's + 1790's. Probably the best land was grabbed up while it belonged to Bedford Co — or possibly before, + not in Campbell books.

I was unable to get hold of Vol 1 + Vol 4 + after, because the library books were withdrawn for several days while the stacks were being relocated. We need to access Vols 1, 4 + 5 at least. Vol 1 would probably give James Vest's wife's first name — whether it was Fanny or not. (Even so, she could have been a second wife). - (Deed book 1 pg 335) - 2 Sep 1784 they sold land. That was before Chesterfield James with wife Dinah + with 6 boys + daughter Martha who were apprenticed, died in 1795. I do not believe they were the same James, because the Campbell Co man received power of Attorney for John Webster Gilbert in (DB 4:326) April 1797 (Read on about Gilbert. He was son of the la Preston Gilbert and active in land sales.) Then in Sep 1801 James Vest obtained a release (DB 5:388) from Hairson (or Harrison ?) Payne + Co. Since the latter 2 entries are not purchases or sales, am not positive the latter 2 entries are in the printed books but expect so. Otherwise it will be necessary to find it in 200 year old writing on microfilm. The beauty of the printed books is that they tell the story more clearly. Witnesses and neighbors don't show in the microfilmed grantor/grantee indexes.

Where James "+ ux" lived after 1784 not stated. Perhaps they still had other land there that they did not sell, which they acquired before 1782 (For a P/A or release, he would not even have to have been still residing there.)

In comparing these Campbell Co Vests with those of John Vest and Ann (Baker) Vest's children — they seem not to have been the people on the Ancestral Chart. Probably they may have been related in some way because the given names are similar + localities close. For one thing — the wives' names were different. This John Vest's wife was Nancy. George's wife was Mary and he did not go to Kentucky. William's wife not stated. Though a Wm Alford was in the County, there is no indication William's wife was   Alford. Just don't know yet, Maybe she was. name of Henry's wife not stated here. Thomas Vest's wife was Betty. (Perhaps Betty was Elizabeth Bailey but I'm not sure.)

These pages show that the Vest Clan/in Campbell Co. lived close together on or in the area of Seneca Creek (River) lands. They probably raised tobacco. fords (actually two of them) were on John Vest's line. It does not show whether William W Clayton (our ancestor's older relative?) lived there but he did witness a sale of land in Campbell County in 1793. You can find where these Vests lived on a Rand McNally travel Atlas - a little map with little detail. It is just north of a town now called Long Island on VA Highway 76. The map here shows a Maryville - not on the travel map - maybe too small.

John Vest was already living on Seneca Creek as of 4 Nov 1785. His neighbors were Augustin Potter, Wm Self, + Benj Gaursey (or Godsy?) Spelling was somewhat labile in those days. Neighbors John + Cloe Welch - who got the land from his dau Mary Welch who got it from Samuel Gilbert, deceased. Remember the name Gilbert. Also John Booker Hay + his wife Mary sold. Together that 2 couples sold 170 acres to David Terrell, who was then the new neighbor.

26 Dec 1785 John Vest bought 100 acres from Matthew Childress [part of the patent on 2 Dec 1788 (error - do they mean 1780?) of Williston Talbot. Bounded by Wm. Brown, David Johnson + "Murry's old order.

25 Aug 1787 John Vest + Nancy his wife sell 100 acres on both sides of Hill's Creek to Samuel Welch. That tract was patented 1 Sep 1780 to Williston Talbot. Neighbors: Murray to Wm. Brown to Murray to George Vest to Wm. Brown Sr. Said John Vest got the land from "Marthew" Childress who formerly lived there. (some land in the area still being surveyed as late as 1790).

27 Nov. 1794 Isaac Butterworth buys 200 acres, being part of the tract from Preston Gilbe to John Webster Gilbert - bounded by deep ford on Seneca Creek, John Vest, the old spring branch, Callaway, Daviss, Butterworth. (Sounds like a valuable location)

14 blank 1795 John Vest sells 60 acres to Charles M Talbot - part of the tract where he lives - bound by said Matlock near Sandy Ford W side Seneca Creek, Benj Butterworth + the Deep Ford. Was Nancy still alive? No wife mentioned. He signed with an X.

William Vest was living on the east side of Seneca Creek as of 7 Dec 1782
He evidently purchased the land while it was Bedford Co. I did not see Vol 1 – (Deed Book 1 pg 9) shows a sale to Hezekiah Coleman – that would likely show his wife's name. I presume it was not Lucy Alford – the name the LDS ancestral chart of John/Ann Baker Vest's children, though a Wm Alford did live in the county – need to see Vol 1.

In Dec 1786 his neighbors, Wm & Ann Childress – who had got land from John Woolams – sold land to William Moore. Woolams & Childress had been original patentees. The land in 1786 was bounded by Lewis Lewis, Burwell, Micajah Davis, John Woolams, and William Vest. Vest was still there in 1792.

George Vest on 15 Nov 1786 bought 415 acres on Seneca Creek from Shildrake Sr. & Sarah Brown, Nelson, Benjamin Gilbert, then up the hill to Samuel Gilbert, then Welch, John Micals (Michael's ?), Wm Brown, The land was on both sides of Phelp's old road & bound on one side by the Locust Thicket road.

4 Sep 1786 (recorded by clerk out of order same day as above entry) George Vest bought 193 acres bounded by Burwell's line to Drew, then to John Vest then to Daniel Brown. THIS SHOWS John, William & George Vest had adjoining properties, if you are following all this.

1 Mar 1787 George & Mary Vest his wife sold 200 acres of this – bounded E. by So by Brown, No. by Clark Morman, W by Robert Brown, So. by Anthony Haden, Wm Brown, Thos. Lester.

Same day George & Mary Vest sell 250 acres of this to Robert Brown – bounded on the East by Phelphus' old road to Morman's line, "North on the West" by said Robt Brown, So by David Terrell & Anthony Haden.

5 Sep. 1793 Robert Brown & Mary his wife sell John Haden 214 acres on Seneca Creek – the former property of Benjamin Gilbert & George Vest. (Perhaps Vest still there, since they still had at least 158 acres left.

Henry Vest on 6 Sep 1792 bought 100 acres on a So branch of the So fork of Senece Creek from "Partrick" + Jemima Casty. Neighbors: Lewis Lewis, Partrick Casty, John Webster Gilbert, Nicholas Crow, Jesse Ginnens.

5 Sep 1793 Patrick Carter sells 100 acres on Senece Creek to James Boatwright. Bounded by Henry Vest, John Webster Gilbert, Lewis Lewis.

Thomas Vest on 27 July 1792 and Betty his wife sell 400 acres on Buck Branch of Seneca Creek to James Wilson. Bounded by John Webster Gilbert, Benjamin Butterworth "+ others". (This land had once been part of 1000 acres - original patent? - conveyed by James Talbot by Michael Gash) Thomas signed X his mark)

4 Mar 1788 (recorded out of order on same day as above by clerk) Thomas + Betty Vest sell 312 acres to Thomas Rice. Location: Dudley's Corner - indicated by pointer on Denney's Road) branch of Swan Creek, Ailes' line, Cattemount Branch, Green Spring Creek. (one witness was Wm Alford) These 2 locations were not adjacent, but were in same vicinity (see maps).

James Vest see first sheet. You will note John Webster Gilbert was the man who gave him the Power of Attorney, in April 1797 + that he sold land in in 1784 evidently aquired early on. Again - this needs to be explored.

David Daverson on 31 Aug 1792 + Elizabeth his wife sell 100 acres on the So Side of Seneca Creek to Robert Clark. She signed Elizabeth X Davidson. I suspect this is Davison!

(Book 3 pg 434) Edward Davison 7 Nov 1793 living on land drained by Seneca Creek. On that date Wm Brown "of the Locust Thickett" + Mary his wife sell 333 acres on Seneca Creek to Manoch Lasley. Neighbors: John W Gilbert, Manoch Lasley, Locust Thickett Line, John Condrey, Anthony Haden, Edward Davison. (Says also see Commission Deed Bk 4 p 207)

William W Clayton blank day — Jan 1793 was witness to land sale from Robert + Elizabeth Cowan to William Irvine for only 5 shilling, 100 acres of land, being part of a 950 acre patent 30 July 1787 to Cowan. Speaks of Irvine's old line so must have been neighbor already. Other witnesses: James Penn, James Steptoe, Joel Terrell. (It might be helpful to find out who they were. Steptoe family rings a bell as having been prominent.) Our William Willis Clayton was a baby at that time. Was the older William W. Clayton a relative??

DB 3 pg 32. A James Campbell sold 50 acres including a mill, out of a 404 acre tract on Falling River. That was a little east of the Vests - not adjacent. Of course Campbells were numerous in Washington County, but in 1810 a James Campbell was one of Fanny Vest's near neighbors.

That entry - probably earlier date - mentions "Flat Top Mountain" in Bedford Co, which was purchased by "Clayton & Hunter." (It is possible that was only an investment.) A 1787 map shows Goose Creek to be a branch north of the Staunton which, in turn, drained into the Roanoke. Seneca Creek in what became Campbell also drained into the Staunton (only Otter Creek was in between. If the Claytons really lived there instead of being land investors), they were not awfully close but were not all that far away, either.
It appears Wm Willis Clayton was in Washington Co later than the Vests, Th couple may have met there, not in Bedford or Campbell.

solemn affirmation - this phrase, when used, suggests the person in question was a Quaker (who could not take an oath).
specie = gold, silver, and other coin, as distinguished from paper money.
underlining = text was difficult to read, so the underlined letters were best guesses on the part of the compiler.

Information gleaned from Printed Vols 2+3 Campbell Co VA Deed Books

We already know that Campbell Co. was created in 1782 from Bedford Co. These pages show that some of the land was still being surveyed for original patents during the 1780's + 1790's. Probably the best land was grabbed up while it belonged to Bedford Co — or possibly before, + not in Campbell books.

I was unable to get hold of Vol 1 + Vol 4 + after, because the library books were withdrawn for several days while the stacks were being relocated. We need to access Vols 1, 4 + 5 at least. Vol 1 would probably give James Vest's wife's first name — whether it was Fanny or not. (Even so, she could have been a second wife). - (Deed book 1 pg 335) - 2 Sep 1784 they sold land. That was before Chesterfield James with wife Dinah + with 6 boys + daughter Martha who were apprenticed, died in 1795. I do not believe they were the same James, because the Campbell Co man received power of Attorney for John Webster Gilbert in (DB 4:326) April 1797 (Read on about Gilbert. He was son of the late Preston Gilbert and active in land sales.) Then in Sep 1801 James Vest obtained a release (DB 5:388) from Hairson (or Harrison?) Payne + Co. Since the latter 2 entries are not purchases or sales, am not positive the latter 2 entries are in the printed books but expect so. Otherwise it will be necessary to find it in 200 year old writing on microfilm. The beauty of the printed books is that they tell the story more clearly. Witnesses and neighbors don't show in the microfilmed grantor/grantee indexes.

→ Where James "+ ux" lived after 1784 not stated. Perhaps they still had other land there that they did not sell, which they acquired before 1782. (For a P/A or release, he would not even have to have been still residing there.)

In comparing these Campbell Co Vests with those of John Vest and Ann (Baker) Vest's children — they seem not to have been the people on the Ancestral Chart. Probably they may have been related in some way because the given names are similar + localities close. For one thing — the wives' names were different. This John Vest's wife was Nancy. George's wife was Mary and he did not go to Kentucky. William's wife not stated. Though a Wm Alford was in the County, also married a Sarah Virginia Martin. He settled in Kentucky instead of going to Illinois.

there is no indication William's wife was Alford. Just don't know yet. name of Henry's wife not stated here. Thomas Vest's wife was Betty. Cannefox? (Perhaps Betty was Elizabeth Bailey but I'm not sure.)

These pages show that the Vest Clan in Campbell Co. lived close together on or in the area of Seneca Creek (River) lands. They probably raised tobacco. fords (actually two of them) were on John Vest's line. It does not show whether William W Clayton (our ancestor's older relative?) lived there but he did witness a sale of land in Campbell County in 1793. You can find where these Vests lived on a Rand McNally travel Atlas - a little map with little detail. It is just north of a town now called Long Island on VA Highway 76. The map here shows a Maryville - not on the travel map - maybe too small.

John Vest was already living on Seneca Creek as of 4 Nov 1785. His neighbors were Augestin Potter, Wm Self, + Benj Gausney (or Godsey?) Spelling was somewhat labile in those days. Neighbors John + Cloe Welch - who got the land from his dau Mary Welch who got it from Samuel Gilbert, deceased. Remember the name Gilbert. Also John Booker Hay + his wife Mary sold. Together these 2 couples sold 170 acres to David Terrell, who was then the new neighbor.

26 Dec 1785 John Vest bought 100 acres from Matthew Childress (part of the patent on 2 Dec 1788 (error - do they mean 1780?) of Williston Talbot. Bounded by Wm. Brown, David Johnson + "Murray's old order."

25 Aug 1787 John Vest + Nancy his wife sell 100 acres on both sides of Hill's Creek to Samuel Welch. That tract was patented 1 Sep 1780 to Williston Talbot. Neighbors: Murray to Wm. Brown to Murray to George Vest to Wm. Brown Sr. Said John Vest got the land from "Marthew" Childress who formerly lived there. (some land in the area still being surveyed as late as 1790).

27 Nov. 1794 Isaac Butterworth buys 200 acres, being part of the tract from Preston Gilbert to John Webster Gilbert - bounded by deep ford on Seneca Creek, John Vest, the old spring branch, Callaway, Daviss, Butterworth. (Sounds like a valuable location)

14 blank 1795 John Vest sells 60 acres to Charles M Talbot - part of the tract where he lives - bound by said Matlock near Sandy Ford W side Seneca Creek, Benj Butterworth + the Deep Ford. was Nancy still alive? No wife mentioned. He signed with an X.

William Vest was living on the east side of Seneca Creek as of 7 Dec 1786. He evidently purchased the land while it was Bedford Co. I did not see Vol 1 – (Deed Book 1 pg 9) shows a sale to Hezekiah Coleman – that would likely show his wife's name. I presume it was not Lucy Alford – the name the LDS ancestral chart of John/Ann Baker Vest's children, though a Wm Alford did live in the county – need to see Vol 1.

In Dec 1786 his neighbors, Wm & Ann Childress – who had got land from John Woolams – sold land to William Moore. Woolams & Childress had been original patentees. The land in 1786 was bounded by Lewis Lewis, Burwell, Micajah Davis, John Woolams, and William Vest. Vest was still there in 1792.

George Vest on 15 Nov 1786 bought 415 acres on Seneca Creek from Shildrake Sr. & Sarah Brown, Nelson, Benjamin Gilbert, then up the hill to Samuel Gilbert, then Welch, John Micals (Michael's?), Wm Brown, The land was on both sides of Phelp's old road & bound on one side by the Locust Thicket road.

4 Sep 1786 (recorded by clerk out of order same day as above entry) George Vest bought 193 acres bounded by Burwell's line to Drew, then to John Vest then to Daniel Brown. THIS SHOWS John, William & George Vest had adjoining properties, if you are following all this.

1 Mar 1787 George & Mary Vest his wife sold 200 acres of this – bounded E. by So by Brown, No. by Clark Morman, W by Robert Brown, So. by Anthony Haden, Wm Brown, Thos. Lester.

Same day George & Mary Vest sell 250 acres of this to Robert Brown – bounded on the East by Phelphus' old road to Morman's line, "North on the West" by said Robt Brown, So by David Terrell & Anthony Haden.

5 Sep. 1793 Robert Brown & Mary his wife sell John Haden 214 acres on Seneca Creek – the former property of Benjamin Gilbert & George Vest. (perhaps Vest still there, since they still had at least 158 acres left.

100 Henry Vest on 6 Sep 1792 bought 100 acres on a So branch of the So fork of Seneca Creek from "Partrick" + Jemima Casty. Neighbors: Lewis Lewis, Partrick Casty, John Webster Gilbert, Nicholas Crew, Jesse Ginnens.

5 Sep 1793 Patrick Carter sells 100 acres on Seneca Creek to James Boatwright. Bounded by Henry Vest, John Webster Gilbert, Lewis Lewis.

Thomas Vest on 27 July 1792 and Betty his wife sell 400 acres on Buck Branch of Seneca Creek to James Wilson. Bounded by John Webster Gilbert, Benjamin Butterworth "+ others." (This land had once been part of 1000 acres – original patent? – conveyed by James Talbot by Michael Gash) Thomas signed X his mark) Dudley — 4 Mar 1788 (recorded out of order on same day as above by clerk) Thomes + Betty Cammfox Vest sell 312 acres to Thomas Rice. Location: Dudley's Corner – indicated by pointer on Denney's Road) branch of Swan Creek, Piles' line, Cattemount Branch, Green Spring Creek. (one witness was Wm Alford) These 2 locations were not adjacent, but were in same vicinity (see maps)

James Vest see first sheet. You will note John Webster Gilbert was the man who gave him the Power of Attorney, in April 1797 + that he sold land in in 1784 evidently aquired early on. Again – this needs to be explored.

David Daverson on 31 Aug 1792 + Elizebeth his wife sell 100 acres on the So Side of Seneca Creek to Robert Clark. She signed Elizabeth X Davidson. I suspect this is Davison!

(Book 3 pg 434) Edward Davison 7 Nov 1793 living on land drained by Seneca Creek. On that date Wm Brown "of the Locust Thickett" + Mary his wife sell 333 acres on Seneca Creek to Manoah Lasley. Neighbors: John W Gilbert, Manoah Lasley, Locust Thickett Line, John Condrey, Anthony Haden, Edward Davison. (Says also see Commission Deed Bk 4 p 207)

William W Clayton blank day – Jan 1793 was witness to land sale from Robert + Elizabeth Cowan to William Irvine for only 5 shilling, 100 acres of land, being part of a 950 acre patent 30 July 1787 to Cowan. Speaks of Irvine's old line so must have been neighbor already. Other witnesses: James Penn, James Steptoe, Joel Terrell. (It might be helpful to find out who they were. Steptoe family rings a bell as having been prominent.) Our William Willis Clayton was a baby at that time. Was the older William W. Clayton a relative ??

DB 3 pg 32. A James Campbell sold 50 acres including a mill, out of a 404 acre tract on Falling River. That was a little east of the Vests – not adjacent. Of course Campbells were numerous in Washington County, but in 1810 a James Campbell was one of Fanny Vest's near neighbors. 2) page 355. In speaking of the will of David Crenshaw who lived on "Goos Creek"

That entry - probably earlier date - mentions "Flat Top Mountain" in Bedford Co, which was purchased by "Clayton & Hunter." (It is possible that was only an investment.) A 1787 map shows Goose Creek to be a branch north of the Staunton which, in turn, drained into the Roanoke. Seneca Creek in what became Campbell also drained into the Staunton (only Otter Creek was in between). If the Claytons really lived there instead of being land investors, they were not awfully close but were not all that far away, either. However,
It appears Wm Willis Clayton was in Washington Co later than the Vests, The couple may have met there, not in Bedford or Campbell. He was only 20 at marriage.

Was this the brother of our James Vest II

Uncle of our Martha E (Vest) Clayton

John Vest, born about 1750, came from Campbell County, Va., to Franklin County in 1795. He was a carpenter and served in the Revolutionary War. It is said that he married Agnes Davidson, daughter of Edward Davidson. Records indicate that he purchased from John Talbott sixty acres of land on the head waters of "Barton's Spur" and, in turn, sold John Talbott sixty acres in Campbell County, Virginia.

Children of John and Agnes:

- I. Mosby Cox Vest, married Feb. 17, 1803; Mary Robert, widow, Franklin County, Virginia.

LITTLEBERRY VEST

LITTLEBERRY VEST, son of John Vest, born Nov. 28, 1774; died Nov. 14, 1868, buried at Head of the River cemetery. A new stone was unveiled August 1939 by Cigile Vest, now Mrs. Lee Roy Martin, Roanoke, Va., but according to the 1840 and 1850 Floyd County census he was not born until 1783, which seems more likely as he would have been 22 years old when he married Polly Moore on Jan. 7, 1805. His second marriage was Jan. 3, 1817 to Sarah (Sally) James born April 12, 1802; died May 18, 1878. In 1815 he owned 175 acres of land on Runnet Bag; in 1818 he owned land on Otter Creek, Franklin County.

BRIEF OF DEEDS

This Indenture made this 3rd day of April 1818 between Berry Vest and Sally his wife of the one part and Joshua Radford of the other part, all of Franklin County, Va. In consideration of the sum of one hundred dollars paid by Joshua Radford, sold him a parcel of land lying on the waters of Otter Creek being a part of the land on which said Vest now lives and to be 100 acres.

Indenture made the 7th day of July one thousand eight hundred and thirty-five between Littleberry Vest of the first part and Thomas H. Stegar of the second part and Charles B. Reynolds of the third part. Littleberry Vest is justly indebted to the said C. B. Reynolds in the amount of four bonds totaling $128.15, it being all that tract of land on which the said Littleberry Vest now lives. This parcel of land conveyed unto Thomas H. Stegar, but he shall permit Littleberry Vest to remain in quiet and peaceable possession of the said tract of land; to take the profits thereon to his own use until default is made in the payment of the amount aforesaid named. If default be made, the trustee hereby authorize for the purpose to sell to the highest bidder for ready money at public auction, after having fixed the time and place, thirty days notice given thereof on one or more of the newspapers printed in the state of Virginia and also notified the same of advertisement to be set up at the door of the courthouse in Franklin County on some court day previous to the day of sale. All to be done on or before the 7th day of July 1836 when the same is payable.

This indenture made and entered into this 13th day of Sept. 1837, between Littleberry Vest and Sarah Vest his wife of the first part and Joshua Radford of the second part all of the county of Franklin. Wit: that for the consideration of the just and full sum of $128 paid by Joshua Radford to Berry Vest one certain boundary of land being part of the old tract and bounded as follows. Beginning at a crooked red oak in Joel Hudsons and John Vests line to the mouth of the big spring branch and thence a SE course to a chestnut oak in the aforesaid Joshua Radfords own land and with said Joshua Radfords line with its meanders to a hickory corner, corner to said Radford and Hutson and thence a short line to the beginning. Berry Vest hereby warrants and forever defends a good and lawful wright and title free from the claim and claims of myself, any heirs and allso from the claiming any and every person whatsoever. (It appears that this is the same tract of land in the above indenture, which totals the same amount.)

In 1840, Littleberry Vest was living in Floyd County, Va. I do not know the exact location but I have found a survey which joined where he lived. Also, a survey of a neighbor which proves that it was near Flat Run.

SURVEY FOR LITTLEBERRY VEST

Survey for Littleberry Vest one hundred and fifty two acres of land by virture of two entries; one for fifty acres made the 22nd day of July 1844 on part of land Office Treasury Warrant N14615 issued to I. N. Zentmeyer the 13th day of August 1841 for 638 acres and the other one hundred and two acres is found on an entry made the 15th day of May 1845 on part of a land Office Treasury Warrant No. 12215 issued to Samuel M. Lovell on the 18th day of April 1836 for 790 acres lying in the county on the waters of the Roanoke and bounded as follows: Beginning at a pine on a small ridge corner to his own land, thence with the same N. 20 W. 70 poles crossing a small branch to a white oak and chestnut on a ridge N. 22 E. 14 poles leaving his line to a white pine on the north side of said ridge N. 57 E. 73 poles to a spanish oak and sourwood by said branch S. 3E. 212 poles crossing two small branches to a chestnut and chestnut sprout on top of ridge S. 39 E. 28 poles to a whiteoak on a ridge S. 59 E. 60 poles to a maple and birch in a line of George Walters land thence with his line S. 76 W. 62 poles to a white oak and a dogwood on a north hillside S. 29 W. 79 poles to a forked whiteoak and chestnut oak by a path on top of a ridge N. 57-1/2 W. 70 poles to a white pine on a sharp ridge N. 55 W. 26 poles to a scrubby blackoak N. 52 poles to two pines on a west hillside N. 59 E. 12 poles to a pine on top of a hill thence N. 40 E. 40 poles to the beginning.

McNEIL SURVEYS

Survey for James and Wm. McNeil 494 acres, 26th Aug. 1851; survey called Tinsleys big survey-near top of Mattocks Mountain; new line down mountain to pointers on a high point-steep hillside near Flat Run-on a ridge by a path on the aforesaid ridge to two hickories in Littleberry Vests line-thence same crossing Flat Run to a cucumber to sd Vests line, also corner to Jacob McNeils land.

Survey for James I. and Wm. McNeil 281 acres, Dec. 1, 1852, beginning with large poplar in hollow, corner to Jacob McNeals--small hickory on steep hillside--small gum on a ridge, two populars and chestnut in line ering one volley after another with good effect before retiring. When the British finally struck the third American line the fighting grew intense and bloody. At last Greene withdrew his army and left the field to Cornwallis. Although technically a British victory, the Battle of Guilford Courthouse proved so costly to Cornwallis that he soon abandoned the Carolinas and began his ill-fated Virginia campaign. The American militia gained confidence (this time it was the Maryland Continentals who broke and ran) and experience, and because Greene had removed his army from the field on his own terms the affair was seen as a moral victory for the revolutionaries. It was a major step toward Yorktown."

Charles was probably born in the part of Bedford Co. which became Campbell Co VA.

Charles + older bros Wm Vest Samuel " } fought in NC from VA

Charles Vest, son of William and Lucy Vest, was born in Bedford County Virginia in April 1763. When the American Revolution moved South, his older brothers, William and Samuel volunteered for service in North Carolina. In 1779 Charles, who was only sixteen years old, left home, against his father's wishes, to find his brothers and volunteer for service in the same regiment with them.

This zealous young Whig started out walking for his destination. While walking along the Ararat Road, he came to the relatively new town of Richmond which was the county seat of Surry County. At this time this area was having some trouble with Tories, so young Vest was arrested on the spot and placed in jail on suspician of being a spy. He told his story to Sheriff Jesse Briggs, who was also the jailer. The sheriff agreed to check out his story but it would take a few days to contact his family in Washington County, which had been formed from Bedford County in 1782, and until the news arrived he must remain in jail.

Washington from Bedford??-1782 (really Campbell)

Sarah Briggs, the beautiful young daughter of Jesse Briggs, assisted her parents in cooking for and serving meals to the prisoners. She carried the meals to Charles Vest and as he was about her age, she took more than a passing interest in this handsome young patriot.

In a few days the news reached Richmond that the Vest lad had told the truth. He was immediately released. He continued his journey, found his brothers and soon became a full-fledged soldier. He fought in the Battle of King's Mountain under Colonel Joseph Winston. When the war was over, Charles Vest came back to Richmond. As soon as he arrived he made a deal with Jesse Briggs to be one of his hired men during the coming year.

Read about this Battle – very exciting

There were three possible reasons for Vest to return to Richmond.

First, he had probably been impressed with Mr. Briggs and the manner in which he apologized for his wrongful imprisonment. Second, Col. Joseph Winston, also from Surry, could [illegible] persuaded him to come and live there, [illegible]hird, the almost sure reason for coming here was a beautiful girl named Sarah Briggs.

They were married within a year. He bought a lot in Richmond about the time of their marriage and built a house. When the town was completely destroyed by a hurrican he took some of the timbers from it and built a new house in what is now the Antioch Church community.

Charles became active in the local government and was appointed a Justice of the Peace. He was the Captain in charge of training soldiers in the Captain Vest's District. This district included what is now King. He was also an election official in Germanton Precinct in 1792 and again in 1804. He owned 606 acres of land in 1800.

He must have painted a glowing picture of his adopted home to his parents, as the census for 1790 listed William Vest and his entire family in Stokes County.
